Infamous Ilse Koch Hangs Herself

AICHACH, Germany (AP)—Ilse Koch, whose sadistic treatment of prisoners in a Nazi concentration camp earned her the title of "Bitch of Buchenwald," hanged herself Saturday in her prison cell here, prison officials announced. She was 60.

Witnesses testified when she was tried for war crimes after the Allied victory that she had tattooed prisoners killed in order to make lampshades of their skins, that she roamed the camp with whip in hand and used it frequently, that she set dogs on prisoners, that she wandered the camp naked to the waist and had prisoners punished for looking at her.

MRS. KOCH HAD spent two decades in prison, first under a U.S. court sentence and since 1951 under a German life sentence. Officials at Aichach women's penitentiary expressed surprise at her suicide, saying she had not appeared depressed, nor her behavior unusual. They said she had been writing poetry and studying English in her cell.

A spokesman said she had torn her bed clothing to strips, knotted the strips into a cord with a noose and fastened it to a metal heating pipe running across her cell. She was found by a guard bringing her breakfast.

She had married SS (Elite Guard) Col. Karl Otto Koch in 1937, the year he became commandant at Buchenwald concentration camp. His treatment of prisoners there was so vicious that the Nazis arrested him in 1941 and put him to death after a trial.

BUCHENWALD WAS ONE of the most notorious of the Nazi death camps. Mrs. Koch apparently enjoyed it so much she stayed on after her husband was hanged by the Nazis for corruption in 1944. She earned a number of nicknames from the prisoners: "the Red Witch," "the Blonde Beast," and "the Bitch of Buchenwald."

"She was not a woman in the normal sense, but rather a creature from another, inhuman world," wrote William D. Denson of Washington, D.C., who was the prosecutor at her first trial.

Her husband built a $62,000 riding hall at the concentration camp for the amusement of his horsewoman wife. She also amused herself by beating hundreds of the prisoners with her whip, many of them until they died.

Mrs. Koch killed other prisoners less strenously by picking them out almost at random to be sent to the camp bunker, where they were beaten to death by guards or poisoned with injections.

The skins of tattooed prisoners were set aside for her lampshade collection. Others were used to bind the books in her library.

The director of the women's prison here said Mrs. Koch turned "calm, gray, inconspicuous and reserved" during 22 years behind bars.

WHEN MRS. KOCH came to trial before an American court in 1947, one of the SS judges who tried her husband testified that treatment of prisoners at Buchenwald defied description.

The American court imposed a life term, but a year later the U.S. military governor, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, cut the sentence to four years and she was released in 1949. The West Germans promptly arrested her and, in 1951, sentenced her to life imprisonment for instigation of murder and cruelty to concentration camp inmates.

Shortly after beginning the life sentence, she gave birth to a son. The father never has been identified publicly.

Q. I have a small oil painting of a landscape which is signed A. C. Howland. The picture is not dated, but the frame is stamped 1807. Can Action Line find out something about the painter and his work? J. V., Norwalk.

A. Your picture probably is one of the landscape and rural scenes painted by American artist Alfred Cornelius Howland, who signed his works A. C. Howland. Not one of the better known American painters, Howland was born Feb. 12, 1838, in Walpole, N.H. After receiving training from a Boston engraver, Howland studied art in Germany and France in the 1850s. Most of his major work — which is characterized by his choice of common men and scenes as subjects — is on display on the East Coast. After living most of his life in Massachusetts, Howland moved to Pasadena, Calif., about 1906 and died there in 1909. You can see a reproduction of his works and a copy of his signature in the July 5, 1948, issue of Life magazine, available at the Long Beach Public Library's Main Branch in Lincoln Park.

Q. My question is a rather sensitive subject. An executive I know had a hair piece made recently that looks terrible. It seems too bad that an otherwise handsome man would display such poor taste. Could you give me the names of establishments where some of the movie personalities are advised on this subject? P. C., Long Beach.

A. Your question is a bit hairy, but a list will be sent to you of toupee manufacturers who will gladly give free consultation and advice. Also see Parade Magazine today.

Q. We've heard about a Good Emergency Mother Substitutes program. Can you tell us more about it and if Long Beach has one? S. F., Long Beach.

A. The GEMS course is for training young people 12 to 18 who want to do baby-sitting. The Woman's Auxiliary of the Los Angeles County Medical Association sponsors the free five-session course which covers the do's and don'ts of baby sitting, accident prevention, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and the care and feeding of infants. Each hour-long session is taught by a professional, such as a doctor, nursery school teacher or policeman. Long Beach doesn't have a program, but you might want to join the Downey GEMS. For information, contact Mrs. John R. Judge at 862-4560. "Besides our class for young people, we are thinking of establishing a morning session for adults," Mrs. Judge explains. To reach GEMS groups in other nearby areas, contact Mrs. Norbert E. Kramer, 3988 Prospect Ave., Los Angeles.

Q. I'm 9 years old. A few months ago, I won a bowling game prize on the Baby Daphne TV Show, but I still haven't received it. When I tried to talk to someone at the television station, no one would speak to me. Please help. M. D., Cypress.

A. ACTION LINE rolled a split. We contacted Kathlene Underwood, who is in charge of sending out prizes for the morning cartoon show. She checked her prize files back to January, but found no record of your name. "Sometimes, youngsters hear a name which sounds like their own," she explained. Although you have no prize, ACTION LINE will get you a toy bowling set.

Q. On a visit to Tijuana recently, my husband and I saw animals with stripes on them. I thought they were burros with painted stripes, but my husband insists they're zebras. He said he examined the animals closely and the stripes weren't painted on. Please help settle a friendly little argument. R. R., Los Alamitos.

A. You both can have a horse laugh over this one. ACTION LINE checked with the Tijuana Tourist Bureau. Vincente Navarete, information officer, says the animals are burros with painted stripes. "There are about seven in the city and tourists sit on them to get their pictures taken." To help you distinguish between the small donkey and his cousin the zebra, ACTION LINE is sending you a picture of each.

Q. Before starting my present job at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard, I worked for the naval shipyard in New York and was covered by insurance for many years. Some

Tourists Marooned in Baja

One American and two Mexican girls, all unidentified, were reported dead Saturday in the onslaught of Hurricane Katrina in the Baja California fishing village of San Felipe.

The community of about 3,000 on the Gulf of California coast was described as "just one big lagoon" by Dr. Frederico Martinez Manautou, acting governor of Baja California who made an aerial inspection of the area.

More than 2,000 persons, many of them Labor Day tourists from Southern California, were reported marooned.

* * * *

URGENT PLEAS for food, water, fuel and medicine were picked up by ham radio operators. Other communication with the outside world broke down.

Early reports from an amateur radio operator in San Felipe indicated five Americans had been killed, but the Red Cross in Mexicali said only the death of one could be confirmed.

The hurricane, its winds roaring at 96 miles an hour, struck the popular tourist and sportfishing spot Friday afternoon, knocking out communication and highway links.

Effects of the raging tropical storm appeared to have missed Southern California Saturday, as the weather bureau reported it heading inland. It is expected to dissipate over Yuma County, Ariz.

Though amphibian aircraft serving Avalon Harbor on Catalina Island were diverted Saturday afternoon from their usual water landings to use of the island's airport, the Avalon harbor master's office said this was only because of af-

Mother, Child Die in Freeway Crash

REDLANDS (UPI) — A mother and her small child were killed Saturday and seven other persons injured in a flaming rear-end collision on the San Bernardino Freeway.

Highway patrol officers said the car carrying the woman and seven other members of her family had pulled off on the freeway shoulder because of mechanical trouble. The second car, in which the driver was alone, slammed into the parked vehicle. Both burst in flames.

Reports Indicate Big Turnout at Historic Election

SAIGON Sunday (AP) — South Vietnamese voters braved Viet Cong terror today to vote in national elections that could help shape the war-ravaged country's future. Early reports indicated a heavy turnout of voters who went to their polling places in Saigon, jungled areas or in hamlets rimmed by rice paddies.

There also were reports of more Viet Cong terrorism right before the polls opened at 7 a.m. and immediately thereafter. Government spokesmen said the Viet Cong kidnaped 277 civilians from two villages southwest of Da Nang on Saturday night and there were a series of harassing mortar attacks in the two northernmost provinces Sunday morning.

Favored to win among the 11 slates for the presidency and vice presidency was the military ticket of Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky whose military regime has ruled by decree for two years.

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist guerrillas ambushed a 25-truck American convoy in the central highlands, killing eight Americans and wounding 18 others, U.S. officials said today.

At least six terrorist incidents were reported in the Saigon area in the two hours before voting started and immediately afterward.

GOVERNMENT spokesmen said there were 70 incidents of terror and sabotage around the country in the 24 hours preceding the balloting, most of them aimed at frightening voters away from the polls.

In Saigon, a Vietnamese election official was injured when a grenade exploded in a Buddhist pagoda being used as a polling place. Another grenade, thrown in a primary school used for

Harbor Short on Manpower

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

On Tuesday, Aug. 29, as a result of the greatest shortage of longshore gangs in the history of the sister ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach, 22 ships were idled.

Another five ships were partly idle as the Pacific Maritime Association revealed a shortage of 126 gangs —an all-time high.

That same day, the Fern Line freighter Ioanna elected to bypass the Port of Los Angeles and docked in San Diego rather than face the gang shortage at the local port.

* * * *

THE JOHNSON LINE advised the London representative for the Port of Los Angeles that unless the gang shortage eased off, it intended to reroute six of its ships to other Pacific Coast ports.

Ship owners, operators and agents complained bitterly about the shortage to the PMA, to the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, to port officials, to the press — to anyone who would listen.

The cost per day of an idle ship can run from $2,000 for a small freighter

Elaine Kirschke—What Type of Girl Was She?

By MARY NEISWENDER

"Nice" is a word reserved for people who give to the poor, help their neighbors, don't kick dogs and aren't found dead in bed with somebody else's husband.

But nice is a word that fits Elaine Terry Kirschke . . . even though Elaine Terry Kirschke doesn't fit the established mold.

The trial of Jack Kirschke in the murder of his wife and her lover, Orville Drankhan, is expected to begin Wednesday, after the impaneling of a six-man, six-woman jury.

Tuesday, four alternate jurors will be selected.

"It's hard to get people to believe something good about a person found in the circumstances Elaine was found in but, believe it or not, she really wasn't that type of a person."

ELAINE KIRSCHE
"Had High Morals"

So say her friends, her acquaintances and her coworkers.

"She worked with intensity, never had her nails done, rarely had her hair done. She wasn't the playgirl they're painting her out to be," says George Jacobs, her employer for five years.

"Even though she was found dead with some other guy, she was honest, intelligent and had high morals. I think this was the first guy she'd been involved with — I think it was serious," Jacobs claims.

"She never had time to fool around."

Jacobs said he let Elaine borrow his car on the Friday before her death, because she was to go to work, Saturday to help him get out a newspaper advertisement in conjunction with a downtown Los Angeles store.

"I called her Saturday morning when she didn't show up, but no one an-

L.B. Comes Up 'Cool'; More Relief on Way

Temperatures will continue to moderate in the Long Beach area today, the weather forecaster says, offering further relief from the muggy heat wave.

Humidities also will continue to go down, "and it will be quite a bit more comfortable," he adds.

The break in the oppressive weather was indicated Saturday by the trend of temperatures at Long Beach airport, which Friday equaled the hottest places in the nation with 100 degrees.

Though the low dropped only to 80 Friday night, Saturday's maximum climbed to "only" 87 — as recorded about 9 a.m.

Then the temperature continued to ease and was down as far as 79 by 4 p.m. At 9 p.m. Saturday night it had fallen to about 75 as it continued to head downward.

Awesome Idaho Fire Races Unchecked; Thousands Battle Northwest Infernos

The U.S. Army entered the battle against the worst Pacific Northwest forest fires in modern history Saturday, and the first two deaths in the three-week seige of flame were reported.

A task force from Fort Lewis near Seattle was dispatched to northern Idaho to join the fight against a tremendous fire racing on a hot gale along a four-mile-wide front. The wild blaze on Sundance Mountain had charrred a 60-mile streak through the timberlands.

Two men were reported burned to death on the lines in the fight to control another Idaho fire, the 22-day old Trapper Peak blaze. Their bodies were found under a bulldoze where they had apparently sought refuge from the flames. They were the first fatalities among the armies of firefighters at work on the forest of the western states and Canada. A number of firefighters have been injured.

Other fires were out of control in British Columbia and Oregon, but officials reported progress against outbreaks in Washington and Montana.

The Army assigned "task force 75," an engineering and construction battalion from Fort Lewis, into the northern Idaho forest to join forestry crews and hundreds of volunteers fighting the Sundance Mountain fire. The force included first-aid units, trucks, jeeps, bulldozers and five full field kitchens.

Found dead in the Pack River area of the Kaniksu National Forest in northern Idaho were Luther P. Rodarte, 36, Santa Maria, Calif., and Lee Collins, no age, Thompson Falls, Mont.

The wind-whipped "Sundance" fire in Idaho, pushed by winds up to 60 miles an hour, roared through nearly 80,000 acres of timber and brush in less than 24 hours.

The awesome blaze left 125 square miles of charred trees and blackened brushland in its 60-mile-long wake. The Forest Service rushed in additional forces of firefighters, but they were unable to slow the "Sundance" measurably.

Borate bombers, modern man's most effective weapon against forest fires, were useless against the big fire because of the strong winds.

The Forest Service called on the Army for help. Military trucks, jeeps and other equipment were rushed to the lines, along with all available public and private equipmnet within a 400-mile area.

Thousands of men were pressed into action throughout the Pacific Northwest to fight fires that also frustrated Labor Day weekend campers. Many recreational areas were closed.

Netherland's Infant Prince Baptized in Hague Ceremony

Silent, smiling and completely absored by the proceedings, tiny Prince Willem-Alexander of the Netherlands was baptized Saturday into the Dutch Reformed Protestant Church in a christening service televised throughout the nation.

The 4-month-old son of Crown Princess Beatrix and Prince Claus opened and closed his fingers and turned his head to watch as Rev. H.J. Kater welcomed William-Alexander Claus George Ferdinand into the church with three sprinkles of water.

Six godparents who included Prince Bernhard and Crown Princess Margrethe of Denmark, were told by Kater it was their responsibility to support the parents in raising their son in a truly Christian manner.

For the ceremony in the ancient St. Jacob's Church in The Hague, Prince Willem-Alexander, who was born by ceasarean section April 27, wore the 87-year old family christening gown of Brussels lace and tule.

A former newspaper publisher and an insurance salesman have been charged with counterfeiting following recovery of $200,000 in bogus bills from the trunk of a car parked at a Waterloo, Iowa, motel.

The two, are Joseph "Lee" Grant, 37, former publisher of the weekly Cedar Rapids Citizen-Times, and Lee J. Geart, 35. Each was freed on $1,000 bond.

Grant said he had printed the money, but had been leading on others in the ring, taking pictures and obtaining evidence for an exclusive news story that he hoped to sell to news media.

Grant said the federal agents moved in "too soon." Grant said one of the Secret Service men had told him that it was "stupid" for one man to get involved in a ring like this.

Asked if he now thought the Secret Service man's view was right, Grant said "You'd better believe he's right."

LAST ASSIST

Thomas Kille was a member of an organization that spent the long holiday weekends helping motorists in trouble.

But Friday night, the 44-year-old Toledo Ohio, resident went to the scene of a two-car crash and was killed by a careeing auto.

When he got to the crash scene, another approaching car was unable to stop and headed for the accident. Kille managed to push three children from the path of the oncoming car, but was unable to jump out of the way and was struck and killed, police said.

Kille was a member of "React," a group of private citizens who patrol the highways to aid authorities in assisting motorists.

POET DIES

Poet Siegfried Sassoon, one of the last survivors of Britain's "lost generation" World War I intellectuals, died Friday night after a short illness, it was reported Saturday.

Sassoon, who would have been 81 this month, died in his 52-room mansion near Warminster, Eng.

The poet was among the flower of British youth who marched blithely to the trenches when the World War I erupted.

Most of his companions from Cambridge University, Oxford and other centers of learning never came back. Among them were Sassoon's fellow "soldier-poets," Rupert Brooke and Wilfred Owen.

Sassoon returned with a near-fatal bullet wound — saddened, angry and embittered. Lamenting, he wrote:

"Pray God that you will never know

"The hell where youth and laughter go . . ."

Recovering from his wound, Sassoon gave vent to his conscience, which had raged for three years within him.

"I have seen and endured the suffering of the troops," he wrote his commanding officer. "I can no longer be a party to prolonging those sufferings for ends which I believe to be evil and unjust."

Sassoon, ripped off his decoration for valor and hurled it into a river.

He flatly refused to return to the front, despite the threat of a court martial.

Sassoon's friend and fellow poet, Robert Graves, persuaded him to submit to a psychiatric examination. The army, embarrassed by the storm of attention the affair had aroused, sent the poet to a sanatarium for victims of battle fatigue.

Intruder Kills Girl, 8, Stabs Mother, Father

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — An intruder who entered an apartment about dawn today stabbed an 8-year-old girl to death, raped and stabbed her mother and critically stabbed the girl's father.

Police shortly thereafter arrested a 27-year-old man, Phillip Ray Allen, on chages of murder, rape, burglary and two counts of assault.

Killed was Richey Leona Jones, daughter of John R. Jones and Mrs. Joyce Jones. Taken to a hospital in critical condition were her mother and father, both suffering multiple stab wounds.

A son, Tommy, 10, was not harmed.

* * * *

THE ARRESTED man was taken at his home after, officers said, they received a tip. He lives a short distance from the Jones apartment.

Police quoted Mrs. Jones as saying shortly before she went into surgery that she was awakened by a man fondling her. She said she screamed and her husband awakened. The intruder, described as a blond in a plaid shirt, stabbed her husband when he came to his wife's defense.

The man forced the wounded Jones and the boy in a closet, Mrs. Jones related.

Officers said Mrs. Jones told them her attacker said he would kill her and her daughter unless she submitted. Mrs. Jones said the man then raped her, killed her daughter and began stabbing her.

TOMMY BEGAN screaming when the attack on his mother began. Mrs. Hazel Moore, a neighbor, heard the screams and called police.

Joe R. Arriozola, 20, told officers he was leaving his home when he also heard screams and saw the blond man in a plaid shirt run toward him.

Arriozola, said he grabbed at the man but he twisted loose and fled.

The first officer on the scene found the girl dead in the kitchen. Mrs. Jones was on her daughter's bed. Jones was in the closet and unconscious with his son.

Labor Pact Row Hits Schools

DETROIT (AP) — Labor contract issues remained unsettled in about 60 Michigan school district Saturday, and bargainers in some districts settled down for a Labor Day weekend of contract talks.

The unsettled districts represent more than 60,000 pupils in Michigan, Lt. Gov. William Milliken's office estimated. Schools open next week.

"We're going to get this thing ironed out," a spokesman for Milliken said. "Many of the districts will bargain straight through the weekend and on Labor Day."

* * * *

MILLIKEN'S office in Lansing, keeping tabs on the situation while not personally intervening, also will be open throughout the holiday period.

Since Friday night, 15 districts have reached agreement on contracts, with a half dozen other districts also involved in negotiations Saturday, he said.

Several districts have postponed for a day or two the scheduled opening of classes. Unfair labor practice charges have been filed with the National Labor Relations Board in some cases.

The Detroit district, most populous in the state, was among those without a settlement of contract issues.

Yemen's President Flies to Cairo for Showdown

United Press International

Yemeni President Abdullah Sallal arrived in Cairo Saturday for a showdown with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser over a peace plan to bolster Arab unity by undercutting Sallal's government.

The Yemi president complained in a radio broadcast from his capital earlier in the day that the peace plan was an "abnormal interference in Yemeni internal affairs."

His country's only official political party held a protest rally and threatened a general strike and possible armed resistance to any outside Arab peace makers.

The Arab peace plan was one of the major accomplishments of the 12-nation Arab summit meeting, which also decided to end its oil embargo against the West before it broke up Friday in Khartoum.

The plan calls for Egypt to stop helping Sallal with its army and for Saudi Arabia to stop bankrolling the royalist guerrillas whom Sallal has been fighting for the past five years.

But it also calls for three neutral Arab nations to set up a virtual protectorate over Yemen, and Sallal says he will not accept this.

The Arab summit did not come up publicly with any plan for peace with Israel, but diplomatic sources in Belgrade said Saturday that Nasser, the key Arab figure, had agreed to consider proposals made by President Josep Broz Tito of Yugoslavia.

Tito's plan would allow Israeli goods to pass through the Suez canal for the first time in Israel's history, if the Israelis would give up the Egyptian territory they conquered in June. But Israeli ships still would be banned.

Other facets of Tito's plan were revealed earlier. They involve an Israeli withdrawal from all their recently conquered territory, and an Arab undertaking to stop trying to drive the Israelis into the sea.

The Arab summit did not close with the usual ringing vows to exterminate Israel by force of arms. Nasser and the representatives of 11 other Arab nations produced instead their most moderate communique in years.

The Arab radicals agreed at the meeting to let the richer countries at the summit begin selling oil again to western countries whom they had condemned earlier as allies of Israel. The oil-rich, moderate nations paid for the agreement by promising $252 million to Egypt, $126 million to Jordan and $14 million to Syria, all of whom lost money and territory in the war with Israel.

Resumption of oil shipments will benefit Britain the most, because the United States has its own oil supplies. But the new money for Nasser will permit him to keep the Suez Canal closed for several more months, according to observers in London, and that will be costly to Britain, some Asian countries and even the Soviet Union, which supplies most of Nasser's aid.

Unruh Hits Medi-Cal Cutbacks

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh charged Saturday the Reagan administration acted recklessly and without cause in ordering drastic cutbacks in services under the Medi-Cal program.

The Inglewood Democrat said the administration used "fiscal gimmickry" to manufacture a $210 million paper deficit in the program this fiscal year.

He said the reductions would be used to produce a cash surplus which would "create an artificial image of economy" for the benefit of Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Unruh said the administration announced the proposed cuts Aug. 16 in a "sudden and unilateral move."

"This action was taken after the Legislature recessed and after the Legislature had given the governor the laws and the funds he asked for to maintain the program at its current level," Unruh said.

"In its cutback order the administration contended there was only $600 million available for Medi-Cal during the current fiscal period. It said the program would cost $810 million if the present level of services was maintained. Unruh said he was "unable to determine" where the $600 million figure came from.

"In fact, the governor can spend at least $748 million during the current fiscal year," Unruh said. "This is the combination of federal, state and county money that has been legally approved."

The cutbacks would reduce Medi-Cal services for about 1.5 million needy to the emergency level. They eliminate all but emergency surgery and dental and eye care, greatly reduce drugs available under the program, and limit stays in private hospitals to eight days.

Meanwhile, Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles, asked Reagan to meet Wednesday with south central Los Angeles legislators to discuss alternatives to the cutbacks.

Dymally, the senate's only Negro member, said his constituents were "angry, bitter, frustrated and overwrought" over the reductions. He termed the cutbacks "cruel and inhumane."

At legislative budget hearings, Unruh said, the administration did not indicate in any way that additional funds were required because a deficit had been discovered.

Church Union Talks Assailed in England

LONDON (AP) — The ancient cry "no popery" was raised in London's Trafalgar Square when Protestant militants demonstrated Saturday against talks which the Church of England is having with Rome.

Only about 250 persons turned out for what had been billed as a massive Protestant rally. They prayed, sang hymns and shouted slogans while most of the holiday crowds in the square continued feeding pigeons and snapping photographs.

Rev. Ian Pasiley, firebrand Belfast preacher who runs his own Presbyterian church in the North of Ireland, cried from the foot of Nelsons's Column: "God save England from Popery. We will never make peace with Rome until Rome makes peace with God. Unity means submission and enslavement."

Banners were paraded denouncing "Mr. Ramsey!" (Dr. Michael Ramsey, Archbishop of Canterbury) as a traitor to the Protestant reformation.

Earlier, a bus load of demonstrators drove to Huntercombe Manor, 30 miles west of London, where 12 Anglican and 12 Roman Catholic theologians have been in weeklong conference about possible steps toward reunion of the two churches.

The Rev. Mr. Paisley and Rev. Brian Green of London, representing the British Council of Protestant Christian Churches, were received at the gate by Canon McWilliam Purdy, representative of the Vatican Secretariat for Promoting Church Unity, and Canon John Satterthwaite, secretary of the Church of England's Council of Foreign Relations.

Paisley and Green handed over a letter from their council, addressed to the Archbishop of Canterbury. They expressed alarm to newsmen about "another subtle attempt by the Vatican to reverse the Reformation and rob our country of its distinctive Protestant Heritage."

He Was a Fishmonger, the Wealth is a Wonder

By BOB GEIVET

Disposal of the $500,000 estate of the late John P. Horman, a Newport Beach fishmonger and property owner who died Chrsitmas Day 1961, may soon be ordered by Santa Ana Superior Court.

Whether it goes to the State of California or to supposed heirs of the enigmatic Horman, will be decided after the court determines the validity of the claims of Siberian residents who claim kinship to Horman.

Orange County Pub Administrator James E. Heim said that he will ask the court to give the Horman estate to the people, as Santa Ana Superior Court Judge Bruce Sumner once ordered.

Judge Sumner's order was set aside when Attorney Edwin Mosk submitted claims from supposed relatives in Siberia. Judge Herbert L. Herlands held that their claims were not sufficient, and gave Mosk more time for investigation.

Few knew Horman intimately, even though he peddled fish in Newport Beach for 50 years and owned several properties in that city.

No one has come forward with information on Horman's life, his relatives if any, his intentions to dispose of his property at his death, or any other details which would help untangle his estate.

When he died, officials found meticulous records of his assets — but none of his origin.

Horman was reputed to have migrated to the United States after the Russian revolution of 1917, but records traced by authorities showed he arrived in San Francisco in 1907. He sailed in the U.S. merchant marine in World War I.

Driver Hits 24 Persons, Injures Nine

ENGLISHTOWN, N.J. (AP) — A woman motorist struck 24 persons with her car at a market here Saturday after she accidentally backed her car into a truck and then sped forward, state police said.

Nine persons were hospitalized, one of them — a 9-year-old boy — in serious condition.

The motorist, Dorothy J. Schulke of Camden, was released after questioning. State police said no charges had been made pending further investigation.

British Wire Off Chinese

HONG KONG (AP) — The British began rolling out a coiled barbed wire fence along 10 miles of its border with Red China Saturday as a safeguard against the possibility of a flood of refugees from Red China's Kwangtung Province, where bloody fighting has been reported.

British colonial leaders expressed fear that a heavy influx of refugees, untrained and unskilled, could swamp Hong Kong's economy.

Various reports from inside Red China say a sharp struggle continues in Canton, about 60 miles northeast of Hong Kong's border, between supporters of Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and his opponents.

RAIL TRAFFIC from Canton to the border halted Saturday. This, plus a Radio Moscow broadcast saying fighting continued, cast doubt on claims by Maoists that they had seized control of Canton. The Moscow broadcast quoted eyewitnesses in Kwangtung Provine.

There was no independent confirmation of the reports.

The barbed wire barracade actually is going up between a few hundred yards and a half mile behind the actual border fence itself. It is designed as a secondary line of defense.

The fence was being set up despite the fact that colonial officials said they had no confirmation of reports that 30,000 to 70,000 Chinese were poised in Kwangtung for flight to Hong Kong.

But the building of the fence itself shows that the government has not forgotten its refugee crisis of 1962, when 200,000 Chinese flooded into the colony.

AN ESTIMATED 80,000 got through the rural New Territories to safe hiding places in Hong Kong's teeming tenement areas and hillside squatters hut areas.

Another 100,000 to 120,000 were rounded up in the New Territory hills, penned briefly in emergency wire-surrounded camps, and then trucked back to the border and handed over to the Communist Chinese authorities.

Criticized in the United States and other non-Communist nations, Hong Kong lashed back with its own bitter criticism: Neither the United States nor any of the other nations were willing to offer refuge to the Chinese.

Hong Kong faced then what it would face now if there should be a mass exodus of Chinese into Hong Kong: The colony is working to house, clothe, feed and find jobs for the nearly 2 million Chinese refugees that have arrived since the Communists took China in 1949.

Officials expressed hope that the mere presence of the new fence will act as a deterrent.

In 1962, Communist Chinese officials made no attempt to stop the refugees.

THIS YEAR, however, all signs along the tense border indicate that the Communists are — at least as of this moment — preventing refugee escape from China.

The Radio Moscow broadcast, monitored in Tokyo, said witnesses in Canton reported that a few Maoists managed to seize the Canton radio for a brief time Thursday and broadcast a claim they had seized the city.

Moscow said the reports it had received described the clashes around Canton as widespread and bloody. It said about 1,000 persons had been killed.

Radio Moscow said trouble had broken out also in the industrial city of Chengchou, capital of Honan province, about 500 miles south of Peking. It reported fresh clashes had broken out Friday. The city is noted for its large textile mills. Radio Moscow said production in Chengchou had been hit hard by the unrest.

Hurricane Maroons Hundreds

ternoon winds, choppy waters and heavy boat traffic.

* * * *

WINDS AT Avalon were down to a mere three knots and waters off the island were smooth Saturday night, the spokesman said.

The storm that devastated the Baja California town is the type of hurricane that periodically reaches Southern California, such as one that in 1939 inflicted severe damage and loss of life on Long Beach and other coastal points.

Weather statisticians noted that historically the Southland is struck by the tail of one of these hurricanes on a cycle of 17 years and the area is "overdue."

Typically, hurricane lashing comes with a prolonged heat wave, the weathermen noted, with a warming of the coastal waters such as occurred last week.

* * * *

CONDITIONS WERE similar when the 1939 disaster broke on Sept. 24 and 25, ending a hot spell that had driven water temperatures up to 71 degrees — the reading around which the water reading has hung this week.

That hurricane took a reported death toll of 40 persons in Southern California, two of them drowned on Long Beach beaches.

Property damage was heavy, ripping away protective seawalls and destroying or undermining houses in the Alamitos Bay Peninsula area.

Damage throughout Southern California ran to millions of dollars.

Thousands of sightseers flocked to beaches in the Long Beach area, despite gale-force winds, to watch the effects of mountainous waves, taxing police and lifeguards to keep them out of danger.

Many beach lifeguard stations were swept away and several piers damaged.

In Friday's Baja California hurricane, the San Felipe fishing fleet was reported wrecked, as well as many yachts and other pleasure boats in the harbor of the town 125 miles south of the U.S. border.

* * * *

THE ONSLAUGHT caught inhabitants and hundreds of Labor Day tourists unaware.

"We spotted many cars all along the highway," reported the governor, whose plane was unable to land at San Felipe because of flooding.

"The road itself is not visible because it has become in most places a flowing river," Dr. Manautou said. "Many of the cars are overturned and we fear for the fate of the occupants."

The Red Cross said one American, who was not identified, drowned when a car containing five plunged into a deep, rain-filled hole on a road near San Felipe. The other four passengers survived with minor injuries.

Police in Mexicali said there were unconfirmed reports that a number of persons, including several Americans, were stranded in a cafe in La Ventana, a village about 20 miles north of San Felipe.

Viet Cong Terrorism Fails to Deter Vietnamese Voters

voting, injured three women.

The election was being watched by 120 official observers from 24 countries and some 600 newsmen. They included President Johnson's 22-man team of poll watchers who traveled up and down the country to observe the fairness of voting procedures.

U.S. observers went to Hue in the northern end of the country, others to Can Tho in the Mekong delta south of Saigon, and still others remained in the capital.

Among the early voters was former Premier Tran Van Huong, 64, a leading civilian candidate for the presidency who cast his ballot at Saigon's city hall and told newsmen afterward that he did not vote for himself.

Thieu, favored candidate for president, said before the polls opened that the election "will be the crowning achievement of this arduous process of democracy building."

* * * *

THE ELECTION could be a step toward constitutional government and stability, goals espoused by the United States which has committed half a million U.S. troops to South Vietnam and has mounted an air offensive against North Vietnam in an effort to slow infiltration of Communist reinforcements and supplies from the North.

The election's outcome also could have an impact on the war. All presidential candidates except one-Pham Huy Co-called for attempts to meet with Hanoi to seek peace.

About 80 per cent of South Vietnam's 5.85 million eligible voters were expected to turn out to choose the president, vice president and a 60-member Senate.

The election follows a campaign marked by political controversy, charges of fraud, Communist terrorist attacks and, finally, discounted rumors of a coup attempt.

On Saturday, the government announced the arrest of three military officers and ordered two Saigon newspapers suspended on charges of printing pro-Communist propaganda.

* * * *

IN MILITARY action, two missiles fired at raiding U.S. jets over North Vietnam fell back and blew up in a village 20 miles from Hanoi, the Air Force reported today.

The Air Force reported an F105 Thunderchief was brought down by "unknown causes" Saturday and the pilot is missing. It was the 671st announced U.S. plane loss in North Vietnam and the only one announced in Saturday's raids.

Hanoi claimed two U.S. aircraft were shot down Saturday morning. It claimed the North Vietnamese have downed 2,258 American planes.

Earlier, in a periodic report, the U.S. Command said 2,632 U.S. planes had been destroyed by combat, accidents and other causes in North and South Vietnam. It said 670 planes and eight helicopters had been lost over the North.

Pilots returning from a strike about 20 miles northeast of Hanoi said they evaded two Soviet-made missiles fired at them from one site after they had attacked another.

They said the 36-foot missiles fell into a populated area near Dong Lo village and sent up a large fireball.

Other Air Force pilots ranged north and south of Hanoi to pound at railroad bridges and yards and at truck convoys. One flight reported destroying or damaging six big trucks and another claimed seven.

* * * *

THE TWO planes the North Vietnamese claimed to have destroyed allegedly were brought down near Haiphong and in Thanh Hoa Province south of Hanoi.

The U.S. Command reported no strikes in the Haiphong area, but Navy bombers struck near Thanh Hoa. Navy pilots reported damaging rail lines, five boxcars and two antiaircraft sites.

In the only significant ground action reported Saturday, a U.S. truck convoy was ambushed near An Khe, 250 miles northeast of Saigon.

OBSERVER REPORTS

Vietnam Voters Face Problems at Polls

EDITOR'S NOTE: Gov. Thomas McCall of Oregon is a member of the special team sent by President Johnson to observe South Vietnam's national election.

By GOV. THOMAS McCALL
Written for The Associated Press

SAIGON — This election would bring a frown of concentration to the brow of even the most practiced and informed American voter.

Millions of unsophisticated Vietnamese will have three or four minutes in the polling booth Sunday to choose between hundreds of candidates on 11 presidential and 48 senatorial tickets. Fortunately, they are not required to place an X before each favored name — but just picking the lists and tucking them into an envelope entails both mental and manual dexterity.

Few voters will recognize most of the names. Some will be guided by symbols and pictures. Many will find the lists almost totally unfamiliar. Much of the voting, then, will be done in the dark.

As is true in every election everywhere, the so-called incumbents in Vietnam have the advantage of superior public exposure. It is also true that the military or the state police here have a big say over the placement of election personnel and this, of course, has a potential for fraudulent manipulation of honestly cast ballots.

All these disadvantages having been cited, does it necessarily follow that Sunday's election will be a sham?

I can't speak for more than one of the 22 U.S. election observers, but it is my impression that few, if any, in our group are ready to write it off as a sterile exercise. And this is not a stacked contingent, loaded by President Johnson to produce an unquestioning accolade to the election.

The members, diverse in background and independent of thought and expression, have spent three days patrolling the countryside, cities, villages and hamlets. They have talked with leaders at all levels of government but, more important, have visited with peasants, villagers and urbanites.

All have inspected some of the 8,808 polling places to which a major part of the nation's 5,853,251 voters will troop.

The number of such places is striking since it can be regarded as evidence of the determination of authorities to establish balloting stations within reach of every elector in this war-torn country.

Even more impressive are consistent predictions of an 80 per cent turnout.

Interestingly, the democracy of this election is less exclusionary than that accorded American citizens today. In Vietnam both men and women 18 years of age and over can qualify for the franchise.

For decades our reformers have sought without success to finance individual election expenses with tax dollars levied by the federal government. The government of Vietnam is providing such subsidy for the presidential and senatorial candidates in this election.

The actual polling system here is probably as airtight as in any nation anywhere. As a former state elections officer, I have gone over it with national province and village officials both on paper and in the polling stations themselves and have failed to find any loopholes for the cheater.

LBJ Aims at Nation's Sore Spots

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson called on Americans to "pause and reflect" on this holiday weekend about the gains of recent years but to consider "thre great unfinished business" of solving nagging problems at home and seeking peace throughout the world.

In a special Labor Day statement Saturday, Johnson emphasized national progress.

"I believe every American family should know this Labor Day that life is steadily improving in America," he said.

Johnson immediately added, however: "We have moved forward — but not nearly far enough."

* * * *

PROSPERITY IMPOSES "a solemn responsibility on every citizen," he said, then went on:

"We who own so much must work more actively for equal opportunity because we have learned that a victory for the poorest among us is a victory for everyone among us."

Urging rebuilding of the cities, purification of air and water and greater efforts in the fields of health and education, Johnson added a veiled reference to urban riots that have been the No. 1 domestic topic during the summer.

"Together, we must build a nation in which respect for law is the creed of every citizen. We must work so that justice is not only a legal term but a condition of life in every neighborhood and that peace with justice is the ruling condition throughout the world."

Johnson cited "peace in all the world and justice for all men" as the most important national goal.

* * * *

PROMPTED PERPAHS by his own current difficulties, reflected in slumping popularity ratings, the President said:

"Today, it is good to pause and reflect about the course we are taking; about what it means to live and work in this rich nation and about where we are going from this critical moment in our history.

"Too often, I believe, we see events only dimly; we concern ourselves with the passing affairs of the present and miss the meaning of the quiet, deep-running currents in our time."

The past few years, he added, have seen "a time of historic economic growth and social progress; a period almost without precendent in our nation."

But he added that "most of us have accepted this swift and profund change as though it were routine."

UAW in Deadlock With Ford

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers, locked in showdown contract bargaining with Ford Motor Co., Saturday promised to continue sessions straight through the holiday weekend. Both sides reported no progress.

Walter P. Reuther, the UAW president who has promised to strike Ford unless he wins a contract by midnight Wednesday, emerged from a two-hour session after taking personal charge of the bargaining.

"I could not say that there is any change in the company's position," he told reporters. But he said he still had hope.

"We live on high octane optimism," the 60-year-old red-haired labor leader said.

Ford Vice President Malcolm L. Denise added; "I cannot honestly say I detect any progress so far."

A strike at Ford would put 152,000 UAW workers on the streets at 101 plants and parts depots in 100 communities spread through 27 states.

The company, the nation's fourth largest corporation, would have to stop its extensive spending for parts and supplies, an important chunk in the national economy which amounted to $7.9 billion last year.

While Reuther pledged crisis bargaining sessions at Ford straight through until the Sept. 6 deadline, talks at the other two major companies — General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. — recessed for the weekend. Bringing pressure on Ford is the union's whipsaw play to force a pattern contract out of one company while allowing the other to keep operating.

There was a brief session at GM Saturday during which the UAW offered to extend the contract. The company refused and said that was a matter for bargaining on the deadline day.

UAW Vice President Leonard Woodcock charged GM with playing "charades" and not trying to reach an agreement.

"If they propose to force the union into working without a contract as they did back in 1958, they did not break the union then and they will not break the union now," he said.

GM previously denied UAW charges that it engineered a "conspiracy" to lock out the UAW with an industrywide shutdown in the event of a strike at Ford.

Reuther demanded Saturday that Ford offer a cost-of-living clause so that pensions for its 27,000 retired workers would rise periodically to meet inflation. He said there would be no contract unless such a plan was included.

He said such a plan would not cost Ford because it would be paid for by interest on invested pension fund money.

He also said the matter of equal pay for Canadian UAW workers was still a live issue. Canadian workers make 43 cents an hour less than their American counterparts.

Denise said the matter would have to be settled by separate bargaining in Canada.

Ford has offered to increase its pension payments by one dollar per month of service for future retirees. Reuther said those already retired should be given a raise and demanded changes in the current system so workers could gain more pension credit.

Transatlantic Canoe Voyage Abandoned

DUBLIN (UPI) — Two Canadians attempting to cross the Atlantic in a canvas canoe were forced to abandon their voyage Saturday. They were trying to prove an Irish saint reached North America before Columbus.

Capt. Louis Lourmas, 46, and Vintan Lloyd, 26, went aground at midnight Friday near the uninhabited island of Inniskea, about seven miles off the west coast of Ireland.

Elaine Kirschke—What Kind of Girl

swered. I figured maybe she got on her boat and didn't get back in time.

"She was so conscientious, she used to call me from her boat — she was always with her husband — she did everything in the world for him.

"She sewed at night and worked during the day to put him through school. Without her he would have been nothing.

"I knew she was a social bug at the Yacht Club — but she never mixed her social life and business. The Yacht Club was another world.

"She never used foul language — she was compassionate with the Mexican seamstresses — nice to everyone — she was a lady — honest."

One of her best friends, Mrs. Norma McIntire of 16611 Nalu Circle, Huntington Harbor, agrees with Jacobs.

"Everyone, including Jack and her son, knew Elaine was seeing Bill Drankhan," said Mrs McIntire, "but I've wracked my brain trying to think of another man that she'd ever been with — and I can't.

* * * *

"SHE WASN'T a sexy playgirl — her hair was a mousey red with grey running through it — she wore glasses — had freckles — didn't have a fantastic figure — didn't dress well, despite the fact she was a dress designer, and her nails weren't even polished when she was found dead.

"But she was the greatest girl I've ever met. She was so capable, I always felt worthless compared to her."

Mrs. McIntire, who said the two of them planned to go to Hawaii together this summer, quoted Mrs. Kirschke as saying two weeks before her death:

"Doug's graduating in June . . . Terryl (her daughter) is married . . . and for the first time in my life I can relax."

"But I don't think Elaine could ever have relaxed — she was always doing something for someone — mostly her children."

Another friend, Mrs. Marma Herfter of 35 Vista Del Golfo, quoted Mrs. Kirschke.

* * * *

"ONE OF THE things she wanted to do was get a divorce. She told me she had asked Jack for a divorce at Christmastime, but he refused because in his position it wouldn't look good."

"Often she would call me and say she couldn't find Jack," Mrs. Herfter said. She quoted Mrs. Kirschke:

"'I don't know where he is and I've called all the bars. Can I come over?'"

"So she'd come over and we'd sit and talk for a couple of hours. But she was a bundle of energy all the time, and only near the end complained that she and Jack didn't do anything together any more — except sit in a bar'."

* * * *

ANOTHER PLACE Mrs. Kirschke visited frequently was the nearby Rivo Alto Canal home of Mrs. Pat Katz.

"When she came home at night and Jack wasn't there, it was so easy to come by here. She wouldn't sit by herself so she'd call and we'd sit around here or go to the Yacht Club," Mrs. Katz explained.

The plans for June — her plans to see that her son was through college and her plans to leave her husband — were "on her mind continuously," Mrs. Katz said.

And, to one of her longest friends, Mrs. Betty Lou Krutzfeldt of 83 Corinthian Walk, she mentioned her plans to "relax" in June — only two days before her life abruptly ended.

"Wednesday night, before she died, she and Jack walked over to see us. She talked about her forthcoming grandchild and joked. She was delighted about the baby and said she was 'going to have all kinds of grandchildren'," Mrs. Kurtzfeldt said.

* * * *

THE KRUTZFELDTS — Betty Lou and her husband "Dutch" — went through school with Jack Kirschke, and were married only a week before the Kirschkes.

"Dutch and Jack were in the Coast Guard together during the war — she lived with me briefly when she was pregnant with her first child.

"Most people won't believe this — but she was a beautiful person inside — and didn't have an enemy in the world."

There was one.

No Progress Made in TV, Union Talks

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Negotiations over a contract dispute that brought on the threat of a technicians' strike against two major radio and television networks continued Saturday without an agreement.

Federal mediators sought a compromise between the National Association of Broadcast Employes and Technicians AFL-CIO and the National Broadcasting Co. and American Broadcasting Co.

"There is so much tension that a break must come soon," said Tom O'Sollivan, a member of the NABET team.

The NABET contract with NBC and ABC expired Thursday midnight. After that, the technicians continued on their jobs, but O'Sullivan said NABET locals probably would insist on striking if an early agreement was not reached.

time ago, I was forced to cancel the insurance in New York. When I came to Long Beach insurance payments were deducted from my check at first. Now the deductions have stopped, and I'd like to know what's happening. J. N., Long Beach.

A. Since you're more than 50 years old, you no longer qualify for insurance under the Federal Employes Life Insurance Act. A spokesman for the Long Beach Naval Shipyard says the deductions made from your first checks here were in error. The matter was corrected after your personnel records arrived from New York.

Q. What is the purpose of those conical-shaped concrete weights I've seen some places hanging from telephone cables midway between poles? C. R., Long Beach.

A. They are used in particularly windy areas — usually on lighter, plastic-covered cables — to prevent "cable dancing" and subsequent chafing. J. J. Bresnahan, plant superintendent for General Telephone's southern area headquarters in Long Beach, says high winds can cause the cables to chafe against their steel support or "messenger" wire. The chafing eventually can wear a hole in the cable's plastic covering and knock the lines out of service. "I've seen places — up around Cucamonga — where the problem was so severe cables would wear through in six months," Bresnahan says.

Special Session Could Be Dull or Momentous

From our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — California's legislators Monday will begin a five-day special session which could be either a do-nothing week or one of the most momentous gatherings in recent state history.

The session is ostensibly for the purpose of giving the 40-member Senate and 80-member Assembly the opportunity of reconsidering those bills which had been passed by both houses during the regular seven-month long session, but which had been vetoed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

BUT LITTLE ACTION in that area is expected, mostly because few of the bills the governor has vetoed are controversial.

If any excitement occurs, it will happen because the Republicans have chosen this time to try to oust Democrat Hugh M. Burns from his post as president pro tempore of the Senate, a position he has held since 1957.

The "chairman" — in effect — of the Senate, the president pro tempore is in charge of the committee which appoints senators to all senate committees, which assigns proposed bills to various committees for study and report, and which is responsible for the overall administration of Senate affairs. It is the most powerful post in the upper house.

The opportunity to supplant Burns was given the Republicans last month when Judge Milton Marks won a special election in San Francisco to fill the seat formerly occupied by the late Sen. Eugene McAteer, a Democrat.

THE ELECTION of Marks, a Republican, gave the GOP 20 seats, the same number as the Democrats. When voting ties occur, the deadlock is broken by the president of the Senate, Lt. Gov. Robert Finch, who is a Republican.

Although Burns is confident he will retain his post, Republican Senators last Thursday held a unique caucus in Los Angeles and vowed to put one of their members in the top seat.

Named most prominently are Sens. John F. McCarthy of San Rafael, Richard J. Dolwig of Atherton, Donald L. Grunsky of Watsonville, and Howard Way of Exeter. All have indicated their desire for the job.

If a stalemate occurs, freshman Sen. George Dukmejian of Long Beach or Robert J. Lagomarsino of Ojai are considered dark-horses.

The Republicans have not indicated when they will make their bid for power, but there was the possibility they would delay the attempt until the regular session starts in January because one of their members, Clark Bradley, is off on a honeymoon and every vote might be needed.

IF THE attempt to unseat Burns doesn't take place, the week figures to be dull. The final report on the bills signed or vetoed by the governor won't be available until Monday morning. Despite the Labor Day holiday, the Assembly will convene at 2 p.m. and the Senate an hour later.

Little more than a roll call will take place, probably, with the serious business commencing Tuesday morning. Also scheduled Tuesday, at 2 p.m. is a special session called by Gov. Reagan to permit the legislature to remedy a $50 million drafting error in a school finance bill passed last month.

Manpower Shortage Hits the Waterfront

to $9,000 for a passenger liner such as the Lurline.

One shipping company complained that during the past year, it has suffered 29 idle ship days. At a minimum cost of $2,000 per day, it represented "$58,000 down the scuppers."

* * * *

THE GANG SHORTAGES have set up reverberations throughout the southwestern states, which have been felt from a housewife's kitchen to a construction foreman's office in Colorado.

Officials of both ports have complained to the PMA and to the union. The gang shortage is causing the ports the loss of thousands of dollars in daily revenue.

Bernard J. Caughlin, general manager of the port of Los Angeles, says the critical shortage is costing the taxpayer-owned port "unestimatable loss in wharfage fees" (the charge leived for use of the pier and backlands.")

* * * *

CHARLES L. VICKERS, general manager for the Port of Long Beach, claims the delays created by the gang shortages have caused a backup of ship traffic and over-burdening of available berths.

Last Tuesday's record broke the previous record for gang shortages set the day before when 27 ships were idle and another six partly idle because of a shortage of 114 gangs.

On Aug. 24 when the gang shortage figure hit 108, Pietro Di Carlo, president of the Los Angeles Board of Harbor Commissioners, appealed to the PMA and the union to "furnish more men."

* * * *

JERRY PLANTE, 39-year old president of Local 13 of the ILWU, while admitting that at the moment there is a need for more gangs, hastens to declare:

"But what happens this winter, when the summer rush is over? We will have men sitting on their hands."

Di Carlo's appeal appears to offer a simple solution to the problem. Ofifcials of the PMA and the union say that IF a solution does exist, it is far from simple.

The reasons for the shortage are many. They range from a record smashing August heat wave to alleged blackmarket sale of longshoring jobs.

* * * *

THE PMA ALLEGES that due to the closing of the Suez Canal more ships are being rerouted to Pacific Coast ports.

Some shipping lines have charged they are victims of "blackmail." They say that unless they order gangs during the weekend, and pay time and a half rates, the PMA won't assign them any gangs on Monday or Tuesday.

The PMA claims the practice of assigning gangs to work ships which used gangs during the weekend is just a matter of giving "a good customer preferred service."

But the key factor in the PMA's and the union's inability to meet the demand for gangs is the critical shortage of trained winch operators.

* * * *

A WINCH OPERATOR on a longshore gang is vital — like a pitcher on a baseball team; no winch operator — no team!

A gang is a team of longshoremen ranging from six to eight men and up to 20. The winch operator works the machine that lifts cargo from the loaded ship's hold onto the pier or visa versa when loading.

And unless a gang has a winch operator, the cargo does not move. There is no need for "hold" men — men who work below decks loading cargo into nets or onto pallets. There is no need for "front" men — men who handle the cargo on the pier, and no need for jitney and fork-lift drivers who move the cargo into transit sheds.

PMA and union officials point out several reasons for the shortage of the key-men winch operators.

* * * *

The retirement age was recently lowered from 65 years to 63 years. A number of winch operators retired last year.

Another problem results because longshoremen receive their vacation pay all at the same time — usually in early summer. A longshoreman with two weeks pay in his pocket frequently "just takes off."

(In the second of a two part series on longshoremen gang shortages plaguing the back-to-back ports of Long Beach and Los Angeles, Marine Editor Jack Baldwin will discuss Monday programs under way by the Pacific Maritime Association and the union to ease the critical shortage.)

SWEDEN SWITCHES

Big Yump Bane Made by Drivers

Only emergency vehicles were allowed on the streets.

The changeover will be made early today. Drivers in other parts of Sweden were allowed to keep driving until midnight Saturday. The driving ban was imposed in the capital from Saturday morning to Sunday afternoon to allow workmen to change traffic lights and road signs.

Police with helicopters and loudspeakers directed drivers out of Stockholm before the deadline for halting traffice.

Police, hospitals and emergency squads prepared for a rash of accidents after the changeover as drivers alter their habits of a lifetime.

Mansfield Asks Pause in Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield hopes Sunday's presidential election in South Vietnam will be followed by new peace explorations — possibly including a pause in U.S. bombing of the Communist North.

"I would hope that no means which could shorten this war, save American lives and bring about an honorable settlement would be overlooked," Mansfield said, "and I'm certain that is the view of the administration as well."

* * * *

THE MONTANA DEMOCRAT said in an interview he has no indication that there will be a post-election suspension of U.S. air raids on North Vietnam. But Mansfield said he hopes such a move has not been ruled out of consideration within the administration.

President Johnson, questioned Friday about speculation on a bombing pause, replied:

"We do ourselves a great disservice if we conjure up something out of clear air."

"I would hope that once the elections are over," Mansfield said, "that they would serve as a benchmark for the exploration of further ideas seeking to bring the Vietnamese war to an honorable conclusion."

But Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., accused Johnson of putting too much emphasis on the election. "I think it has been oversold by our administration here as a kind of be-all-end-all, which in turn has led to disappointment and therefore, criticism," Case said.

Case said the Vietnamese balloting is "a useful step in a long process but not anything immediate" to produce a cease-fire or peace negotiations.

* * * *

CASE SAID THE Johnson administration must persuade South Vietnam to undertake social and political reform — making clear that the U.S. will not continue the fight "unless they do the things that must be done."

"If we are going to fail anyway we had better stop right now before we kill any more American boys," he said.

Mansfield said there is "a perfectly feasible alternative" to the bombing of North Vietnam in the suggestion of Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., that the U.S. limit its air raids to Communist supply lines along the 17th Parallel, dividing line between North and South Vietnam.

"In my opinion, the results there could be achieved more effectively than has been the case in the bombing of the north," Mansfield said. "A bombing pause of the north would occur if there was a concentration on an interdiction of men and supplies at the 17th Parallel."

The Senate preparedness subcommittee said Thursday a pause would be naive and foolish, and would increase U.S. casualties in South Vietnam.

Psychiatrist Likens Race Struggle to the American Revolution of 1776

By BERNARD CAUGHEY

WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI) — In 1775, the 13 colonies staged a bloody revolt for freedom from English domination. Today, Negroes revolt for freedom from white supremacy.

The comparison is drawn by Dr. John P. Spiegel, director of Brandeis University's Lemberg Center for the Study of Violence, which is making an exhaustive study of race riots.

"I don't believe America wanted to revolt against the crown of England," the 56-year-old Chicago-born psychiatrist said. "Many Americans were against the idea of a revolution. But we were driven to it. They wouldn't listen to us. All they did was jail, tax and punish us.

"We Americans decided that the only way we'd get our rights was through power. So we revolted. All because King George didn't get the message."

And, Spiegel fears, if the federal government doesn't "get the message" now, Negro ghettos throughout the United States could explode in a new round of rioting far more destructive than anything yet.

"RACIAL UNREST HAS entered a new phase," he said. "The ghettos are in a 'wait-and-see' period. They're waiting to find out if Congress is going to take any appropriate action to improve conditions in the ghettos.

"If the federal government assumes a punitive attitude or makes only a 'throw them a bone' token effort, I would expect a second round of rioting which will be more organized than the first and more clearly in the direction of an insurrection.

"This second wave could be much more destructive. And the destruction could be of the conflagration type—with cities knocked to their knees by fires."

No law enforcement could prevent people from setting fires, Spiegel said.

"How long would a total curfew—like Milwaukee enforced—last before businessmen would be yelling that it was hurting their profits?

"Cities could b eparalyzed. They could hit all at once or it could be protracted—dragged out week after week. No one would know when they'd hit. Or where. And you can't guard every business," he said.

"Everyone is holding his breath. A lot depends on what happens in Congress to improve the ghettos. Congress flubbed a chance to do something about rat control. No one can say how long this 'wait and see' period will last."

THE LEMBERG CENTER for the study of violence was set up in September 1966 to conduct research in the area of violent behavior in the hope of learning how to control or prevent it.

It is conducting a study of race relations in six northern cities, three of which had riots in the summer of 1966 (Cleveland, Dayton and San Francisco) and three of which didn't (Boston, Akron and Pittsburgh).

Spiegel said his research disclosed that riots have a four-step structure:

—An "inflammatory event" usually initiated by white persons which is perceived by black people as an act of injustice or an insult to their community.

—A period of confrontation between the ghetto dwellers and police or local administration. This is when the problem must be resolved peacefully to head off a riot.

—If unresolved, it moves into the "Roman holiday" or "game" phase usually played by children 12 years and older. They throw rocks, bait police and break windows.

"I have seen it myself. There is an inordinate amount of laughter. My third ear—my psychiatrist's ear—tells me that it is a tensional release rather than a response to something the kids think is funny.

"It becomes like a football game. Every time there is a hit, it is like scoring a goal."

—If the disorder continues, older people get drawn into the rioting.

"It's now serious. The play ends. Parents join in, especially as stories spread about how their children who were arrested are being treated. It's now like a war. And the goal is to get the police or whoever is enforcing the law."

SPIEGEL, WHO SAID he had found little or no evidence of outside agitation in most of the riots, hopes to develop a set of predictors to serve as an "early warning system" of violence.

Here are the highlights of a 24-page preliminary report issued by the violence study group:

High levels of Negro dissatisfaction are correlated with high levels of feeling that the city government has done too little to encourage integration. Therefore, the perceived attitude of the city government toward integration and increased opportunities for Negroes seems to be the key factor in determining the riot potential of a city.

The greater the proportion of Southern-born Negroes living in the ghetto, the higher the possibility that a city will have a riot.

Hard-core white resistance to change and equality has little bearing on a city's riot potential.

Twice as many Negroes as whites see broken promises as a cause of riots and, in most cases, the responsibility for the broken promises is laid squarely on the shoulders of city governments.

Very few whites see police brutality as a cause of riots. Many Negroes see this as a major cause.

The only factor that large percentages of whites are willing to see as a major cause of riots is "outsiders coming into a city and stirring up trouble," which the vast majority of Negroes reject as a major cause.

The vast majority of Negroes support open housing laws, but only one-third to one-half of the whites are willing to see such laws passed as a way to reduce the possibility of future riots.

A majority of both races agree that "the mayor and other city officials should spend more time in areas where riots might break out, and should get to know more about what Negroes are feeling."

Lack of communications between the races is a crucial issue. Whites have simply not known, or have not fully realized, how much bitterness and frustration exists in the ghetto.

High levels of dissatisfaction with job opportunities, housing, school integration, police behavior, and the efforts of the federal and local governments to encourage integration characterize the feeling of the Negro population in all six cities studied.

The higher the grievance level within the ghetto, the slighter the event required to trigger a riot.

If city governments were to take more active steps to increase opportunities for Negroes and to relieve their sense of injustice, the riot potential within the ghetto would be reduced.

Negro Bloc Condemns the Israelis

CHICAGO (UPI) — A smooth-working Negro minority Saturday shepherded through the National Conference on New Politics a controversial 13-point resolution which included a condemnation of Israel's "imperialistic Zionist war."

A number of white delegates later termed the resolution, which also promises Negroes half the seats on all the conferences' committees, as "irresponsible" and an "ordeal of fire" for the white majority.

The resolution was adopted by a 3-1 margin, with about 10 per cent of the conference's 2,800 delegates abstaining. Negroes, who number only about 600 of the delegates, drafted the resolution at a "black caucus" from which all whites were barred.

* * * *

ERIC MANN, representing a Newark, N.J., community project, said the resolution was a mistake and the convention had allowed itself to be diverted into reducing the whole movement into a question of "whether whites like black people."

By adopting the resolution, Mann said, the convention is telling LBJ, "We are no threat to you. Our movement is weak."

William Pepper, the conference chairman, said, "The press will no doubt make this resolution the focal point, but the convention will go on and continue its work."

However, Pepper admitted that "serious disaffections are likely" among delegates as a result of the resolution.

Not all the dissidents were white. Robert Lucas, Chicago chapter chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality and leader of last year's riot-marred march into Cicero, Ill., walked out of the "black caucus" to join the rival "black convention" or Negro militants on Chicago's South Side. About 50 persons accompanied Lucas.

* * * *

IN A NEWS conference following the voting, Floyd McKissick, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) and his assistant, Lincoln Lynch, denied that CORE was working with the "black caucus."

When asked about the anti-Zionist plank in the resolution, McKissick said, "We consider Zionism a part of nationalism. We support black nationalism. I think nationalism is healthy."

IN L.B. CONCERT

Arthur Fiedler to Conduct Japanese Symphony Group

World-famed conductor Arthur Fiedler will make his first Southern California appearance Oct. 10 in Long Beach with the 100-piece Yomiuri Nippon Symphony Orchestra.

Scheduled for the convention hall of Municipal Auditorium, the event is being sponsored by the Long Beach Symphony Assn.

Los Angeles County Supervisor Burton W. Chace is serving as honorary chairman of the event.

Marking the first event in the new Symphony Association season, the Fiedler concert takes on an international flavor with the Japanese orchestra and special appearance of piano soloist Hiro Imamura.

Fiedler, acclaimed as one of the foremost conductors in the world, probably is best known for his work as

ARTHUR FIEDLER
Famed Conductor

conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra. He has held this position since his initial appointment in 1930.

When the Boston Pops season is completed, Fiedler travels throughout the world serving as guest conductor. These travels have taken Fiedler to Japan, where he conducted the Yoiuri Nippon Symphony Orchestra. He was particularly impressed with the group and suggested this tour of the United States.

Tickets for the L.B. concert, priced between $5 and $20, are available through the association office, 121 Linden Ave.

"The night of Oct. 10 promises to be one of the most outstanding evenings in the musical history of Long Beach. Arthur Fiedler is perhaps the only conductor in the world who, with equal facility, can turn in an outstanding performance of the classics and the up-to-date popular hits," Haltery said. "With the addition of the famous 100 piece all Japanese symphony orchestra, the Fiedler concert is an event you cannot afford to miss."

Cabin Cruiser Saw Drowning Sky Divers---Sailed Away

OBERLIN, Ohio (UPI)—A man who "didn't want to get involved" has cropped up in the Lake Erie sky diver disaster.

The only two parachutists who survived out of 18 who dived out of a plane and landed in Lake Erie by mistake last Sunday have bitter memories of the operator of a cabin cruiser who witnessed the tragedy — and then sailed away.

The survivors, Bernard Johnson of West Richfield and Robert Coy of Springfield, said a man in a cabin cruiser could have helped save some of the 16 jumpers who drowned, but that he apparently did not want to become involved.

* * * *

SO FAR, 15 bodies have been recovered, three Saturday, nine Friday, one Thursday and two shortly after the tragedy last Sunday.

A hearing into the incident by investigators from the National Air Transportation Safety Board ended here Friday. A report probably will not be ready for several months.

Johnson and Coy said the unidentified cabin cruiser was near the point where they landed in the lake. At first the cruiser headed toward Johnson, who was hanging onto a parachute inflated by an air pocket.

Coy landed near Johnson and was picked up by the crew of a small boat.

"We saw Johnson's canopy and we were headed toward him," Coy said. "When we saw the bigger boat — probably about 30 feet long — heading his way, we started going after the others. But the big boat went right up to Johnson and turned away. We went over to pick him up."

COY SAID while his rescurers picked up Johnson, the larger boat pulled off a short distance. Coy had no doubts that the operator had seen Johnson.

"Sure he knew Johnson was there," Coy said. "He almost ran over him. He sure didn't think he was out there to get a sun tan."

Johnson, who said he panicked when the big boat refused to pick him up, remembered that the larger craft was equipped with a radio transmitter, while the smaller rescue boat was not.

"We could have called the shore and reported the details of the accident," he said. "That might have been the difference between life and death for some of them."

Harold Lloyd Must Pay $38,583 in Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Silentfilms comedian Harold Lloyd has been ordered to pay $38,583 damages to a 27-year-old bookkeeper over a car collision in 1965.

The comedian was found liable for damages in a superior court.

The complaintant, Miss Danyta Mockevicius, had asked for $150,000 from Lloyd.

Mystery Blasts Rock Two Mills

GRASS VALLEY (AP) — Mysterious explosions rocked lumber mills in Tuolumne and Nevada counties two hours apart early Saturday.

At 2 a.m. a blast wrecked equipment and started a small fire in the brunswick Timber Products Corp. plant just outside Grass Valley. One machine valued at $6,000 was among the equipment ruined.

At 4:10 a.m. there was an explosion under the main carriage which brings logs to the saw at the Sequoia Pines mill 10 miles west of Jamestown. A sheriff's office investigator estimated the damage there at around $100,000.

Milwaukee Priest Leads Negroes on March Through Polish Section

MILWAUKEE police wade into demonstrators with riot sticks flailing. The rally was protesting for open housing when the police enforced the mayor's ban on public assembly.

—AP Wirephoto

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — A firebrand white priest Saturday led 1,400 open housing marchers to Milwaukee's City Hall and then, in a surprise, moved on into the Polish neighborhood where four days ago angry white mobs had attacked them with bottles and stones.

The march led by Rev. James E. Groppi, a Roman Catholic priest denounced by Milwaukee's mayor as a "white Uncle Tom," seemed a peaceful, even cheerful affair on the way to City Hall.

Then, from City Hall's steps, the slim, intense priest challenged his followers.

"Are you tired?"

"No!" the crowd shouted back.

"Where do you want to go?" Groppi asked.

"South Side, South Side," the crowd answered, and took up a chant of "Fair Housing."

* * * *

THIS WAS THE signal for Groppi and his marching mate, civil rights militant and entertainer Dick Gregory, to lead their followers out into the South Side Polish neighborhood which was the scene of tumultuous marches Monday and Tuesday.

It was here that Groppi's marchers, demanding open housing for Negroes throughout Milwaukee, had been met with mob violence so intense that police had to use tear gas to keep the white crowds under control.

As the long line of march crossed into the South Side Saturday night, the neighborhood seemed peaceful. Crowds of whites were sparse and fairly orderly.

* * * *

SATURDAY'S march was the most ambitious launched by Groppi, an assistant pastor of a Negro "inner core" neighborhood church who has become the storm center of the civil rights movement in this racially tense city.

For two nights, his marchers had been blocked by policemen using tear gas and swinging night sticks. The officers were enforcing a "state of emergency" ban on demonstrations imposed by Mayor Henry Maier Wednesday. Groppi himself was arrested twice, along with hundreds of others.

Maier lifted his march ban Saturday, even though he denounced Groppi as "a white Uncle Tom." The mayor, who quelled a full-blown race riot five weeks ago by clamping a 24-hour curfew on the city, said that if Milwaukee has another riot, "Father Groppi is responsible."

Gun-Toting Klan Meets in Alabama

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — About 300 members of the United Klans of America, many of them carrying guns, poured into a downtown hotel Saturday for the group's two-day national convention.

All meetings were closed to the public, but Imperial Wizard Robert Shelton, a resident of Tuscaloosa, said Klansmen will consider a number of resolutions and elect officers.

Shelton predicted as many as 2,000 delegates would attend, but only a fraction of that number showed up.

Most of the Klansmen wore black suits and white socks, and hotel employes said many of them had guns when they checked in — including one man weighted down with four rifles.

Instead of tipping hotel employes, Klansmen handed them cards saying: "You have just been patronized by a Knight of the United Klans of America."

L.B. Children's Clinic Gives Help to Desperate Parents

Recently a child cried out in the night and by morning was in convulsions. The parents were desperate. Their modest budget never had stretched far enough to include a family physician and there was little left at the end of the month for an emergency.

Fortunately, a concerned neighbor recommended a call to the Long Beach Children's Clinic, a United Way agency at 430 W. 14th Street. While the child was examined by one of the 31 staff pediatricians who donate their services, the parents were interviewed and their child was accepted for treatment at a fee they could afford.

The story is typical of 75 or more weekly treatment visits at the Clinic for Children up to age 15. The child could have come from any of the areas served, including Bellflower, Lakewood, Signal Hill or Dominguez as well as Long Beach.

"A child's family doesn't have to be destitute to qualify for our services," explained Mary J. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Clinic. "Fees are determined by family income, the number of children and the scope of the treatment required. In many cases, there is no fee at all."

"Services include those of more than 60 medical specialists who serve as consultants without charge and bed care in Long Beach Memorial and St. Mary's Hospitals when required. United Way-United Crusade funds provide 65 per cent of the operating budget and hospital care is furnished through the efforts of auxiliary groups at the two hospitals.

The non-profit United Way Agency was founded in 1939 by a group of local pediatricians who recognized the need for an outpatient clinic to serve children of families unable to pay for private medical care, especially in cases of chronic or economically catastrophic illness.

Physicians rotate their services on a five-week consecutive schedule in the Tuesday - Thursday acute pediatric clinics from 8 a.m. to noon. Interns and resident doctors at the cooperating hospitals also volunteer their services to complete their out-patient training.

Other services include the allergy clinic every Friday from 8 to 10 a.m., the chronic illness clinic on the first Wednesday of each month and the preventive medicine or well-baby clinic on the second Friday of each month. A child development clinic for medical referral cases is held on the fourth Friday of the month.

Facilities at the Long Beach Children's Clinic include a cheerful playroom used as a waiting room, a patio with toys and play equipment and a laboratory for basic diagnostic work.

The chief objective of the clinic is medical service to children who otherwise would not receive needed care. At the same time, social services rendered through interviews are aimed at helping families back to private medical care.

Like 32 other United Way Agencies in the Long Beach Area of Bellflower, Lakewood, Long Beach, Paramount and Signal Hill, plus the local Red Cross Chapter, the Long Beach Children's Clinic is financially supported by the dollars you and your family will contribute to the United Crusade.

SNEAKING A PEEK

Cynthia Garcia, 6, of 4628 Pixie Ave., Lakewood, peers through a microscope at the bugs causing her tonsilitis for which she is being treated at Long Beach Children's Clinic, a United Way agency. Helping her is Dr. Sidney Newman, a resident pediatrician at Memorial Hospital, who serves at the clinic without fee.

L.B. Meet Scheduled by WCTU

The Los Angeles County Women's Christian Temperance Union will hold its annual meeting in First Methodist Church, Fifth Street and Pacific Avenue, Tuesday through Thursday.

The three-day program will feature speakers and special musical and youth programs.

All sessions of the convention will be open to the public, including the annual banquet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, at which Dr. Percy Sanders of North Hollywood will give the address.

New officers will be elected at business sessions Thursday.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY

ARIES (March 21-April 19): New moon stresses work, health, the way you unite opposing forces. You are protected by associates in new, daring venture. Know this. Be confident, true to convictions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Vigor, new lease on life featured today. Children, young persons play prominent role. Be receptive. Gain through observation. Absorb experience. Heed inner voice.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): New moon position coincides with concern over property, real estate, basic conveniences. Try various methods. Check alternatives. You are not restricted to one course. Expand.

CANCER: (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on short journeys. Completion of tasks inspired by recent idea. Reject haphazard methods. Get to heart of matter. Be versatile. Show that you have sparkling talent.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New moon spotlights finances, ability to add to income. Your special and unique talents add up to profit. Be confident. Express yourself. Exchange ideas. Get money's worth.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Fine for making wonderful contacts. Doors previously closed now open. Get going. See people, go places, do things. Day when you are appreciated, admired. Act accordingly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Morale support on home front could help solve dilemma. Don't underestimate power of family unity. Confide ideas, problems. False pride can only lead to additional delay.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Older individual befriends you. Heed words based on experience. Be practical about hopes, wishes. Reckless action could cause loss. Know this. Look before you leap.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Spotlight on ability to handle special assignments. Find out what succeeded in past. Apply and improve those methods. You could receive significant long-distance communication.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Obtain hint from Sagittarius message. Keep communication lines clear. What you learn today could affect future negotiations. Gain shown through advertising, written word.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your recommendations to mate, partner, close associate given serious consideration. Be sure your information is accurate. Check authoritative sources, including your paper.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be more listening than talking. Gain through observation. Make notes. Check legal sources. Take nothing for granted. Cement relationship with one close to you. Steer clear of disputes.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are meticulous concerning truth, principles. Your conscience truly is your guide. You complete a major cycle now and prepare to embark upon a new adventure.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Lunar position emphasizes revision in work methods. Many are affected by a sweeping agreement which concerns hours and wages.

TO APPEAR

Tom McClure (left) of the Dukes of Rhythm and Steven Graham of the Exceptions will be featured at Tuesday's Mad Nite Sale by Downtown merchants.

L.B. Stores Brace for Mad Nite Sale

Downtown merchants will hold their second and final Mad Nite Sale of the year Tuesday from 7 to 11 p.m.

Besides bargains, shoppers will be treated to the music of three Los Angeles teen-age combos — The Exceptions, The Dukes of Rhythm and Mike and the Impressionables. The sale will begin at 7 p.m.

"This is our most popular sale" said Warren Harper, DLBA promotion chairman. "Response last April was nothing short of fantastic, and with the added incentive of our fine evening weather, we are expecting many, many discriminating shoppers — but we will be ready for them." Most stores will be open Tuesday evening because Monday is a store holiday.

10 From L.B. State Will Study Abroad

Ten students from California State College, Long Beach — including a married couple — will go to school in Europe this fall.

They will be among 275 students from 19 state colleges to study in seven foreign countries. The students will take the same courses as the students where they enroll. The also will live with the native students.

Credits acquired abroad will be incorporated into the students' state college programs.

Qualifications for the trip include upper division or graduate standing, outstanding grades and character and proficiency in a foreign language.

Students going include:

Alexander Sparkhul and his wife, Barbara, of 1765 Temple Hills Drive, Laguna Beach, and Lenore Schwankovsky, of 431 Silvera Ave., all to study at the University of Heidelberg, Germany.

Carol Dickason, of 361 13th St., Seal Beach; John Vanderby, of 1842 Devlin Ave., Artesia, and Sheree Weiner, of 5233 Adenmore Ave., Lakewood, to study at the Free University of Berlin.

Andrea Hawkins, of 27300 Sunnridge Rd., Rolling Hills and Greg Smalley, of 2407 Golden Spur Lane, Miraleste, to study at the University of Stockholm.

Judith Foster, of 1223 S. Gaymont St., Anaheim, and who will attend the University of Aix-Marseilles in France; and Lois Madson of Pacifica, who will attend the National University in Formosa.

Red Cross Extends Time for Gifts

Mailing time has been extended to Oct. 1 for 1500 gift-filled Christmas bags from Long Beach Chapter, American Red Cross to servicemen and women in Vietnam, according to Gordon C. Young, local chairman of the project. The local gift bags will be part of 525,000 such bags being sent overseas from all over the nation.

The additional time will allow Long Beach individuals and groups about two weeks extra in which to participate, Young said.

Underwriting at $3 each as many as possible of the 1500 gift-filled bags by the community is the prime need, Young said. Sufficient volunteers already are sewing the bags and gift-wrapping the articles, twelve for each bag.

L.B. Yank Boosts Youths Out of Venezuela Slums

By LES RODNEY

Speaking of the Yankee image, this country can't have had many better ambassadors to South America than Long Beach's 28-year-old Jerry Gaudlitz.

Jerry is back from Caracas, Venezuela, where he has spent 3½ years working up a YMCA camping program. Starting from scratch, and training his ultimate Venezuelan replacements as he went along, he has seen the program grow steadily into one which takes thousands of kids out of the crowded slums to the beach and mountain camps for fun and fellowship in the Y tradition.

While poverty is no fun anywhere, "there is no comparison between the lot of poor kids here and down there," the tall graduate of Poly, Long Beach City and Cal State at Long Beach noted this week in the downtown Y. He is en route to Springfield College in Massachussetts to work for his master's degree in community leadership. But his thoughts will be with Venezuela for a long time.

"Compared to the poor of Caracas, the poor up here live like kings," he said. "I've seen three families living in a single, small room." Boys often get kicked out of the house when they are six to make it on their own."

YMCA was started in Caracas just 21 years ago. Long Beach in fact is a sort of "Y Sister City" to the Venezuelan metropolis. The very first Y secretary in Venezuela was Clair Johnson, now secretary of the Downtown Y in Long Beach.

The Caracas Y, headed by a Venezuelan who was a kid of 15 when the program started, now runs seven large youth centers in the poor barrio areas, each with a swimming pool — only swimming pool around, in each case.

"When you talk about youth work in Caracas, you are talking about the Y," Gaudlitz says. The government and the churches, although some cases after initially suspicious and hostile, have cooperated in the program.

JERRY GAUDLITZ
Fine Ambassador

While creating an atmosphere helping to open youngsters to the precepts of religion, the Y is non-denominational and does not "push" the subject. It feels that as nature takes its course, all the churches will benefit from rejuvenated youngsters.

Despite the grinding poverty he noted and does not minimize, Gaudlitz believes that Venezuela is moving in the right direction.

"You can see the changes," he says. "Just in the past five years, there is a bigger middle class, while not so long ago it was only the very rich and the very poor. In fact, the Y is taking the middle class into account already in its building program and approach."

News of unrest and opposition to the Venezuelan government, he says, "is exaggerated up here. Anywhere in the world where there are large masses of people there is poverty. Venezuela has a real problem. But Bettencourt is only the first president in their history who served a full term. I could see the gains while I was there."

What anti-Yankee feeling exists, he believes, "is due to lack of education."

The thing he feels best about in leaving Y work in Venezuela is the growth of autonomous leadership right out of the ranks.

"I'm not worried about the camping program. Both the new camping director and his assistant are good young people. And they are Venezuelans."

Divorcee Found Dead Below Cliff

The body of a divorcee who left a note describing despondency was discovered Saturday wedged in rocks below a 120-foot bluff at Dana Point's Street of the Golden Lantern.

Orange County Sheriff's Det. William Johnson and Dep. Coroner James Massey identified her as Gloria Faye Edmonds, 28, of 24521 Del Prado, Dana Point. They said she had been divorced last July and had lost custody of her three children to their father.

Taxes Rise in Third of States

WILLIAM R. BRINTON

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Nearly a third of the nation's states increased taxes this year. Only two states reduced them, Kansas and North Carolina — and the Kansas tax cut was aimed more directly at the pocketbook.

While 15 states were upping the two most direct sources of income for state government — income and sales tax — Kansas was the only state in the nation to lower the income tax rate. North Carolina reduced taxes in that state by increasing exemptions for dependents.

Seven states increased income taxes. Eight increased their sales tax.

The amount of tax liability differs from state of state depending on the tax base rate, the amount and type of exemptions and tax credits.

Kansas in reducing taxes by one and one-half per cent on the first $2,000 of taxable income, also reduced the rate of withholding by one-third. North Carolina increased personal exemptions from $300 to $600 with an additional $600 exemption for taxpayers with children in either college or trade schools and another $1,100 for persons 65 years of age or older.

North Carolina's action will mean a loss to the state of about $11.5 million annually, The Kansas tax cutting will save taxpayers about $8 million a year.

The Kansas reduction was made retroactive to January 1. In addition to the income tax cut, the Legislature also adopted the federal income tax conformity statue, which will provide another $400,000 reduction in personal income taxes, and allowed a reduction of $700,000 for corporate income taxes.

IT IS EXTIMATED the tax savings will mean a reduction of $10 per person for those filing separate returns and $20 for couples filing joint returns.

The withholding rate, although it does not affect the tax liability, was reduced from 15 per cent of the federal withholding to 10 per cent of the federal withholding.

Despite the larger reductions of taxes in North Carolina, Kansas gain an advantage because federal taxes paid are not deductible in North Carolina.

States raising taxes this year included Michigan, Maryland, Montana, Nebraska, Vermont, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Nevada, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Texas, Washington State, Wyoming and California.

Bombing Contest Canceled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cost-cutting has forced cancellation of this year's Strategic Air Command (SAC) simulated bombing competition.

The Pentagon said the competition, originally scheduled for Oct. 5-11 at Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash., was considered desirable but not essential, and was called off as an unnecessary expense.

The exercise would have involved chosen planes and crews from SAC bases around the nation in radar and computer-scored navigation and simulated bombing runs at high and low altitudes.

Aden Crisis Spurs British Reactions

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's high commissioner in violence-gripped Aden is returning to London for consultations amid reports new dramatic moves may be afoot in the colony.

Official sources said Sir Humphrey Trevelyan was arriving early today for talks expected to start shortly after he lands at London Airport.

Hattiesburg Buses Rolling Again

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — City buses will roll again in Hattiesburg on Tuesday, more than six weeks after a Negro boycott stopped service.

Mayor Paul Grady said Friday the City Council had insisted that Hattiesburg City Lines resume service by the time schools opened.

Admiral to Speak to Chamber Forum

Retired Navy Rear Adm. William C. Chambliss, will speak to the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce Community Forum at 7:15 a.m. Wednesday in the Crown Cafeteria, Alamitos Ave. and First St. His speech is entitled "The Vietnam Mess."

Chambliss worked his way through Columbia University including law school, as a newspaperman, while in school he took two years leave to undergo Navy flight training and flew with the Atlantic Fleet.

In 1940 he returned to active duty in the Navy on the staff of Adm. William Halsey. As navigator of Task Force 18 for the invasion of Guadalcanal, he was aboard the carrier flagship Wasp when it was sunk off the island. In 1944 he served as one of the counsels to Adm. H. E. Kimmell at the Naval Court of Inquiry into the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Chambliss transferred to the regular Navy and served in Europe, North Africa, Middle East, Far East and Washington. He retired with the rank of rear admiral and re-entered business as a corporate executive. He is the author of four books and numerous short stories and is a member of the New York bar.

Jim Morrison is forum chairman. The public is invited.

Youth Sentenced to Cane Lashing

HONG KONG (AP)—A 16-year-old youth who resisted arrest when police caught him carrying a dummy bomb here was sentenced to nine lashes of the cane Saturday.

"Discard these half-baked ideas of political violence," declared the Hong Kong magistrate as he doled out the traditional punishment. He promised the "severest thrashing that can be ordered" if the lad ever appeared again in his court.

Sequence of Photographs by Paul Butler Show Medics Evacuating Wounded Soldier from Vietnam Combat Zone

'YANKS STRUT TOO MUCH'

Vietnam Vet Cites Arrogance

By CHARLES SUTTON

Twenty-one months in Vietnam haven't shaken combat photographer Paul Butler's conviction that his country is fighting a just war in Southeast Asia. But they have left him a somewhat sadder man than when he went over.

The Long Beach GI, recently home on leave from the war, is distressed by the unhappy state of Vietnamese-American relations.

THE EVIDENCE ON BOTH SIDES, he says, makes it painfully apparent that neither people really cares for the other.

"Nobody in this country seems to like the Vietnamese." And as for the GIs and other Americans in Vietnam, there's an air of self-importance and even arrogance about them that is clearly perceived by the Vietnamese, he says. "The result is that they dislike us in return."

Butler, who spent 19 of his 21 months in Vietnam as a paratrooper with the 173rd Airborne Brigade, stayed with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Newby, at 5643 E. Second St.

The 24-year combat veteran feels the sometimes misplaced sense of superiority in Americans results largely from the education they receive — an education that leads them to think all things American are best, and that Americans are "infallible" in all they do and think.

"The whole thing is wrong," he says a bit angrily.

"I'd like to know why, if we're supporting these people, we don't let them into this country," he adds.

Yet Butler doesn't think the situation is beyond repair. What he would like to see is a deliberate effort on the part of this country to appreciate the Vietnamese and their culture.

If Butler had any say in the matter, he'd launch a cultural exchange between the two peoples.

"Their artists are very talented. And some of their art — especially that of the Montagnard tribesmen — is fabulous," he says.

Butler disagrees with those who charge the Vietnamese with being poor fighters.

"It's our fault," he says. "Implicitly, we've said they're not good enough. But if you give them a reason to fight, they can be fine soldiers. Some of their Ranger battalions are great."

In addition, he claims, the Vietnamese units are often "undermanned and undertrained."

Despite his melancholy, the rangy young trooper is convinced that the United States is doing the right thing in Vietnam.

He has little but contempt for America's draft card burners, whom he regards as cowards.

His position, in fact, may be summed up in his statement that "We need people who can function, not philosophize."

At the end of six months, his 3-year enlistment will be up, but he says he'd like to stay on in Vietnam as a freelance magazine photographer.

A COMBAT LENSMAN ONLY TWO months, Butler is still perfecting his trade.

He's also trying to shake loose some of his fighting habits.

"One of the things that makes a good combat photographer," he claims, "is the ability to completely forget your own safety. And I haven't reached that point yet.

"Every time I hear the crack of those shots, I hit the ground and instinctively reach for my gun. I'm afraid I'm still an infantryman," he grins.

Photographing the war in Southeast Asia is extremely difficult — perhaps more so than in any previous conflict, where the enemy's movements and the certainty of action could almost be determined in advance.

Not only is the density of the jungle a real problem in Vietnam, but the phantom character of the Viet Cong makes it virtually impossible to know when and where they'll strike, he explains.

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

L.B.'s Mad Ratters Get the Job Done

By GEORGE LAINE

Looking for a needle in a haystack seems like child's play compared to searching for rats in Long Beach.

L. G. Estes, director of the Environmental Health Department of the Long Beach Department of Public Health, sent teams of pest exterminators throughout the Long Beach area three months ago. Their orders: trap live rats for laboratory exams.

BY SATURDAY, not one rat had been captured although the traps were planted "everywhere," Estes said.

"We know there are rats out there," Estes said. But they are either so few or they're so cagey that they can't be caught. If there are rats around, there's usually one so stupid he gets caught.

"We just haven't caught one."

Estes, with measureable pride, was paying tribute to the men under his direction in the Environmental Health Department. It is his contention that if every city in the U.S. had a program similar to the one which has been in effect in Long Beach for decades, Congress would never have been called upon to enact its "Civil Rats Bill," under which the Department of Housing and Urban Affairs would wage war on the nation's estimated 100 million rats.

Long Beach City Health Officer Dr. I. D. Litwack is less restrained.

"The City of Long Beach had an effective rat control program long before the federal government evinced any interest in the subject," he said. "We've already done what the government now suggests as a program. And we've been doing it for years."

RATS MAY BE MAN'S oldest foe. Zoologists estimate that the ancient ancestors of the Norwegian brown and white rat probably made nuisances of themselves about 50 million years ago (or nearly 49 million years before man put in an appearance. They've never been much help to homo sapiens.

Even before the dreadful plagues that swept the civilized world in the 14th, 15th and 16th centuries, Biblical authors told of the deprivation caused by rats. Between 1345 and 1350, rat-caused bubonic plague —better known as "The Black Death" — claimed 43 million lives across the length and breadth of Europe.

In addition to the dreaded plague, rats also carry typhus, Wiel's disease, hepatitis, salmonellosis, trichanosis, hemorrhagic jaundice, rat bite fever and half dozen other maladies.

Today, although man now talks of rockets to the moon and organ transplants, the control of the rat is still — in much of the world — a myth. There are 470 million people in India, the World Health Organization says, but they are sharing their crops with 4.8 billion rats. More than 1,300 cases bubonic plague were reported in 1966 to WHO and to some of their experts, the rats seem to be gaining.

But not in Long Beach.

BECAUSE LONG BEACH is one of the nation's principal seaports, the city was virtually forced to adopt some sort of rat control program. With vessels from every corner of the globe transporting wares to the Long Beach Harbor area, the arrival of each new cargo carried with it the possibility of rodent emigrants.

"Each vessel that comes into Long Beach Harbor has to be able to produce a 'de-rat' certificate," Estes said. "This means that the vessel has been fumigated and inspected and found free of rats.

"In addition, however, each ship that ties up must affix metal rat shields to its hawsers.

"Finally, each cargo is inspected — some of them under 'black light' — and if they are found to be contaminated, those cargoes are rejected."

The harbor, Estes says, is "tight." He means that it is all but impossible for a shipborne rat to find his way ashore. Despite the safeguards (and because the rat is among the most tenacious of all animals) some do hit the beach.

Whether they slip ashore or arrive "overland" from other states, Estes and his troops have some bad news for the rodent newcomers. A variety of rat poisons — including some that the rats consider a gourmet treat — are currently in use in the area and, undoubtedly, provide a partial answer to Estes' inability to trap a rat for the past three months.

"They really go for the poisons," Vector Control Officer Bill Tyra smiled. "They come back for seconds and don't even know it's killing them."

Jesse Strider, Tyra's partner, nodded acknowledgment.

Strangely enough, a rat's best friend often appears to be man — particularly when the man doesn't care about how he disposes of trash or garbage, doesn't properly maintain his sanitation facilities and can't be bothered with keeping house vents properly and thoroughly screened.

Long Beach school children, undertaking the raising of white rats as a class project, unwittingly contribute to the community problem when the rats are loosed.

"Another thing," Estes said, "is that every rat bite we've had in Long Beach in the last three years came from a so-called tame rat."

Estes and his chief aide, Supervising Sanitarian Robert Hale, produced these other figures:

—About 400 citations charging violation of rodent control rules are issued in the City of Long Beach each year.

—Long Beach has never recorded a case of plague or typhus.

—More than 1,000 citations are issued charging other violations of sanitation regulations.

Statewide, the figures are different. Richard Peters, director of the Bureau of Vector Control of the State Department of Public Health, said that in the past 10 years, California has recorded three cases of plague and 15 cases of typhus.

But the figure that Estes is most impressed with, the single statistic that he most enjoys explaining is that one about the three-month hunt that has failed to produce a single rat.

AFTER I had experienced a September or two as a new Long Beacher I wrote a column attacking the month. "Tear the sheet out of the calendar," I cried, describing September's weather as "the hot backwash of summer."

That was in 1950. The other day Reader Dian Morris mailed me a clipping of my column of Sept. 1, 1952, which shows I was still at it, giving September the devil.

All to no avail, of course. Three years later, Sept. 2, 1955, the mercury climbed to 110, whicch I think is an all-time heat record for Long Beach.

But September has been known to relent. From 1930 to 1933, when people here, like those everywhere, were harrassed by a horrible economic depression, September took pity. In September, 1933, the worst depression year, L.B. temperature got up to a cool 74 and no further.

So it's not impossible that this September can be moderate. But don't count on it.

HERE's something else: September can not only be hot, but it can produce some wild storms. And we're overdue.

The historical pattern shows that violent weather spawned by dying hurricanes affects Southern California markedly about every 17 years.

The last such storm was 28 years ago — Sept. 24-25, 1939. Preceded by a scorching heat wave, the storm dumped more than five inches of rain on our area. The wettest September day on record here is Sept. 25, 1939, with a total of 2.48 inches.

Wind velocities hit more tha 50 mph. and did a lot of damage.

The weather bureau records indicate we're 11 years overdue for such a storm. You might start figuring ways to batten down the hatches.

CALIFORNIA, mainly through the foresightedness and technical know-how of its own people, are spared of water shortages such as harass residents of some other areas. Around here, at least, we have no rationing, we water lawns when we want to, we keep parks, golf courses and other selected areas green. We're even permitted to waste water, with no official curbs or reproofs.

But apparently, in the water dept., we're conservation-minded, as is indicated in a little incident reported by Bill Jensen, L.B. educator.

Bill, in Green Lake, Wis., attending a meeting, noticed a drinking water fountain that kept running. After taking a drink, he looked all around it for a place to turn it off. He couldn't find any. About that time several local people, who had been watching him, began laughing.

"You're from California," said one of them. "We can always tell Californians. They try to turn the water off."

It seems that all the fountains in that building run steadily because of an ample water supply, an apparent waste that bothers Golden Staters. I didn't know we were that way, but that's what happened at Green Lake, Wisc.

DRIFTWOOD — Two pretty Anaheim gals, Michelle Danielle and Phyliss (Sam) Ham, will go as goodwill ambassadors to Sacramento Monday to invite Gov. Reagan to attend a state GOP meeting in Anaheim Sept. 22. I imagine Reagan knows about the session and will be there, anyhow, but it should be a pleasing gesture . . . Memorial Hospital Clerk Mary Clifford got a call about somebody who had been saved by "artificial inspiration." . . . Mrs. R. D. Lyon has a cat named Nuisance that can see tv and has a good viewer reaction. When commercials come on, Nuisance attacks the set.

Avalon Battling the Bees Again

By BARBARA KNESIS

These "tourists" don't support Avalon's local merchants.

They sting them and anyone else, for that matter, who happen to be around when they are hungry.

This summer Avalon city fathers forked over $712 for a massive welcoming reception for the guests—the estimated 250,000 yellow jackets who arrive on schedule like tourists on holiday.

Knowing the bees' love of picnics (they turn up uninvited at any they can find), city officials had a mouth-watering spread of nectar fit for a queen bee, prepared and set out in bright yellow containers.

"We are not interested in trapping the queen bee," city Street Superintendent Kenneth Carney explained. "We want her to go back to her nest and feed her young. When she does, they burn up."

The second prong of the city's bee welcome are picturesque traps which lure the stinging culprits within 150 feet with such delicacies as cat food, chlordane 40-W propolene glycol and water. The receipe is that of Robert Wagner, a professor at the University of California Los Angeles Entomology Department.

Carney grinned.

"You know it works," he said. "If it didn't the bees would be all over the city by now."

He said he thinks the traps eventually will kill off all the yellow jackets "but not in a single season."

The extermination project is a joint effort of Avalon city officials and the Santa Catalina Island Company, with the city's costs at $712.

Altogether there are 216 traps scattered in strategic spots on the island. Fifty-one belong to city officials.

"We just had to do something after last summer," Carney said. "You couldn't hold a picnic, the kids couldn't even eat a piece of candy without being attacked by hundreds of them.

"There was a cloud of yellow flies around all the time. People were getting stung by the hundreds."

Our Vote Observing a Charade

TWENTY-TWO prominent Americans are in South Vietnam as presidential poll-watchers in today's national elections. They were sent there by President Johnson in one of those absurd charades he is so fond of stage-managing to bolster his political image.

George D. Aiken, dean of Senate Republicans and a plain-spoken Vermonter, says the mission "can't amount to a damn." Senator Aiken couldn't be closer to the truth. More importantly, the presence of the presidential mission can undermine the basic American position in the long run.

PURPOSE OF the elections, in the U.S. government's view, is to legitimize the South Vietnamese government. It is the President's hope that a popularly elected government will somehow remove some of the stigma attached to what is patently a military dictatorship. And so Mr. Johnson pushed for early elections.

It is difficult to determine whether the elections will be that significant. The names of the most serious challengers have already been removed from the ballot. And the Ky government has further endangered the electoral process by announcing it will form a "military affairs committee" which would continue to direct national policy no matter who gets the most votes.

When that became known, there was an outcry of criticism from many members of Congress. And so Mr. Johnson, who had already oversold the possibilities of a democratic election, engaged in one of his typical grandstand plays. To pacify the critics at home, he whipped up the poll-watching mission. Its chances for success are minimal and its existence provides fodder for communist claims that the South Vietnamese government is a U.S. puppet regime.

Why minimal? There isn't a single political party in South Vietnam that can claim more than 3,000 members. The people have never known anything but autocratic rule. The vast majority are illiterate.

NATIONALISM permeates Vietnamese life. It is not surprising that former Premier Tran Van Huong, a leading civilian candidate for the South Vietnamese presidenecy, concluded the U.S. observer group is causing the Vietnamese people "grief and humiliation."

The President is said to be concerned about his falling popularity in public opinion polls. This most recent demonstration of the President's propensity for oversell and clumsy stage-setting is an example of why many Americans find it difficult to place total trust in the man.

A Question Business Must Face

CONSERVATION battles can be expected to grow as our population increases.

They can be quite spectacular. Should dams be built in the Grand Canyon by the government? Should a public utility be allowed to locate a plant on a particularly beautiful stretch of sea coast?

Often the battle is forged between conservation groups and private industries trying to place new facilities along scenic rivers or canals.

THE QUESTION of how much responsibility industry has toward the public welfare and how much to its executives and stockholders is a nagging one that dramatically is being posed in a remote area of Washington's North Cascade Mountains.

The corporation involved is Kennecott Copper and this case brings up a new dimension of the problem. As Harper's Magazine points out this month, what Kennecott proposes — in contrast to earlier exploitation of the public domain by other companies — is strictly legal.

Briefly the situation is this: The area is a wilderness "Alps" region under the jurisdiction of the Forest Service. But Kennecott owns 300 acres in the area and has some 3,000 acres in mining claims staked out under free and easy laws prevailing at the turn of the century.

Under 1964 wilderness legislation this area is protected from lumbering, road-building, 'etc. But the act permitted prospecting until 1984. Kennecott now proposes to begin a 30-year development of an open pit copper mine half a mile in diameter and 500 feet deep and to construct some 15 miles of access roads through the wilderness area.

The question posed by Harper's is whether the firm should voluntarily refuse to develop the mine so as not to spoil the wilderness. A number of precedents are cited, including Yosemite and Yellowstone.

Kennecott's position so far is that it must, for the sake of stockholders, develop the property. Kennecott may, of course, change its stand.

IF NOT, then what? Best suggestion so far is that the government be empowered by Congress to buy up such mining claims. But should that be necessary? Big corporations have gradually come to recognize a greater responsibility to our society than just to make a profit for stockholders. Public health, arts, letters, education, pollution have all been accepted by big firms as part of their public responsibility. As Harper's asks: Should preservation of natural beauty alone be excluded? We think not, but short of government intervention, only Kennecott can answer in this case.

ART OF THE WORLD OF THE STEPPES. By Karl Jettmar. Crown, $6.95.

Gold lies not only in them thar hills. It lay, and quite likely still does, in great profusion, under the vast steppes of the south of Russia and Siberia, in the form of exquisite works of art, fashioned by such peoples as the Sarmatians and the Scythians between the 6th century B.C. and the early Christian era.

Gold and bronze jewelry, rare silks and weapons were among the treasures found in the graves of these nomads, fighting horsemen who had contacts with the Greeks, the Chinese and the Persians. Prof. Jettmar writes of the secrets yielded by the graves covered for millennia by the ice of the Altai Mountains. Until explorers arrived in the name of science, only looting grave robbers knew these secrets. — N.H.

'I Didn't Know We Were on It . . .'

GOP Not Ready to Oust Burns

GOV. REAGAN'S Friday call of a special session cleared the decks for a Republican effort to take over the State Senate—but don't expect it to happen now. The GOP isn't ready yet.

GOP senators, in a 20-20 standoff with Democrats since a special San Francisco election Aug. 15 to fill a vacancy, and with Republican Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch able to cast a tie-breaking vote, just about decided last Thursday night to wait until January to challenge Senate president pro tem Hugh Burns, D-Fresno.

Although Sen. Robert Lagomarsino, R-Ventura, chairman of that Thursday skull session in Los Angeles, told newsmen afterwards that the GOP would certainly have a candidate for Burns' chair "the next time there is a leadership election," he modified the declaration Friday.

HIS STATEMENT, issued before Reagan's call of a special session, had reference to the leadership election at the next general session in January, he said.

Republicans would move if they were ready. In fact, some who were summoned to the L.A. strategy session were all set to vote for a candidate. They felt an obligation to the state's GOP rank and file who were promised a GOP-controlled Senate if the voters came through with a victory for the 20th Republican in San Francisco.

Candidates in main contention were Sens. Howard Way, Donald Grunsky, Richard Dolwig and the present minority leader John McCarthy. But none of them had much time for campaigning or aligning votes since Republican Milton Marks won that special San Francisco election.

There was some unpleasantness among the GOP caucus over leadership. It didn't set well with some when McCarthy predicted in a recent statement that Burns would be retained as president pro tem.

Freshman Sen. John Harmer, Glendale, called for ousting McCarthy, a move in which candidate Howard Way is known to concur. McCarthy is reported to have reminded Way of some past favors he did him, including turning over his own spot on the Finance Committee to Way.

The caucus is reported also to have discussed an "ace in the hole" — the resort to forming a coalition with disgruntled Democratic liberals to get the required 21 votes for a Republican president pro tem. The caucus agreed not to press this development for now however. The liberal Democrats oppose Burns' conservatism generally but want specifically to get better representation for the South and for cities.

This representation, at least in token, is probably forthcoming within the week, perhaps, but not necessarily as a result of the caucus and pending popularity pressures on Burns and McCarthy.

In fact, Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach, said he would move in Rules Committee session next Thursday to have a Los Angeles County senator named to the powerful Finance Committee. Kennick said he thought both McCarthy and Burns favored such an appointment to fill a current vacancy.

ALTHOUGH KENNICK is sympathetic to the need for a continuing greater voice for Southern California and for urban complexes, he suggested Friday that dissidents, "instead of thinking of ousting Burns, should be encouraging him to keep the job. I see no one on the horizon who could fill the job so adequately."

And so the Republican caucus is expected to go through the motions of another strategy session Monday on the leadership matter. But until the caucus has time to decide on a candidate and do some head counting — including Democratic defections against Burns — it is more than likely this special session will end with Burns and McCarthy keeping their seats at least until next January's general session.

LBJ Again Flips Over News Leak

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's obsession with keeping all options open by shrouding his plans with complete secrecy may have reached its zenith or nadir — recently.

Johnson was said to be on the verge of making two key appointments until he saw newspaper stories identifying his choices. Incensed at their premature disclosure, he quickly let it be known that neither appointment would be made.

The two unfortunate individuals involved were Howard Samuels, a New York industrialist reportedly slated to become under secretary of Commerce, and Walter Washington, New York urban expert being considered for the top-ranking commissioner post in the newly organized District of Columbia government.

Both men were regarded as extremely well-qualified and no doubt would have been popular choices, but after the leaks, Johnson reacted in a predictable manner and peevishly quashed the appointments.

The latest word is that White House aides are gently trying to persuade Johnson to change his mind and make the appointments after all.

THE PRESIDENT'S current low rating in public opinion polls was reflected in a letter sent to Rep. J. Herbert Burke, R-Fla., from one of his constituents recently.

"President Johnson said to go to church and pray," the constituent wrote. "I did. I prayed for another president in 1968."

IT SEEMS that every politician wants to claim the "peace" label for the 1968 campaign.

House Minority Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan, a leading hawk, is calling on Republicans to become the "peace party" next year. While Democratic doves in the Senate also want to be known as "peace" candidates.

And, President Johnson, who maintains that he'll go anywhere and talk to anyone to achieve an honorable settlement of the war, has confided to associates that despite the escalating war, he thinks he can win votes from war-weary citizens for his efforts to achieve peace.

MINISKIRTS are a mini-issue in the South Vietnamese election, Washington newsmen were told last week by Bui Diem, the ambassador to the U.S. from Saigon.

"One of the candidates, who's 62, says he would ban mini-skirts," said Diem, "but Premier Ky likes them."

ONE OF THE MOST intriguing mysteries in Washington these days is not what the CIA is up to but who the senator is who ran up a $5,000-plus lab in the Senate Dining Room.

Several journalistic sleuths are checking around the Senate to solve the question, which was raised when Senate officials recently leaked word about the big bill, which was promptly paid by the senator.

Lyndon Johnson: The Real Issue for 1968

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The election year 1968 is beginning to look like 1948 in more ways than one. President Johnson almost surely faces a third party on the right, headed by George Wallace, and probably a fourth party on the left, possibly with Martin Luther King as its candidate. This would roughly reproduce the situation of Harry S Truman two decades ago, flanked as he was by the insurgencies of J. Strom Thurmond of the States Rights Party and Henry Wallace of the Progressives.

Johnson also is beginning to hoist faint signals suggesting that, as Truman did in similarly unpromising circumstances, he may run a strongly partisan campaign against Republican iniquities, particularly those of the Republican delegation in Congress.

One of these signals came from Larry O'Brien, the genial Irishman who runs the Post Office department with one hand, the President's congressional relations with the other, and keeps both wrist-deep in the Democratic Party.

O'Brien prefers to slap backs rather than faces and for at least another year he will have heavy responsibility for guiding the Johnson legislation on Capitol Hill. The President himself has usually chosen to read Isaiah rather than the riot act to those who oppose him, and so far in his presidency he has limited his attacks almost exclusively to the Ku Klux Klan, Barry

TOM WICKER

Goldwater and "nervous nellies" on Vietnam. In 1964, the word "Republican" scarcely passed his lips, except in slyly inviting them as admirable Americans to join him repudiating Goldwater.

So when O'Brien went for the Republican jugular in recent speeches in California and Ohio, with caustic stress on their "obstructionism" in Congress, he was out of character—personally and in his role as the President's agent on Capitol Hill. In private, at least, Johnson himself is speaking just as sharply of the congressional Republicans, on whom he tends to lay the blame for every rebuff he has suffered this year.

All this well may indicate a Johnson re-election campaign next year on something like the following theme:

When the Democrats swept the elections in 1964, the liberal 89th Congress that went into office with the President produced more legislation for the good of the people—in Medicare, civil rights, education and other fields—than any in history. When the electorate nevertheless replaced 47 House Democrats with reactionary Republicans in 1966, the conservative 90th Congress immediately frustrated everything else the President and the Democratic Party wanted to do, tried to undo everything already done and sought to turn the clock back to Herbert Hoover, or maybe even to William McKinley.

Thus, if such a party gets control of Congress and the White House, progress and prosperity will surely be demolished, and so the only safe thing to do is to vote for the kindly old Democratic Party and its benevolent President.

This could have a dual effect. It could give the President and those who will be on the ticket with him in various states a target to shoot at—as Truman used the "do-nothing 80th Congress"—rather than merely fending off Republican attacks. And it could arouse the old party loyalties and emotions against the divisive pull of minor parties, disaffection with the war and the President's personal unpopularity.

Truman used this ploy most effectively; so did John F. Kennedy in 1962, when in a vigorous campaign against Republican negativism he avoided the mid-term congressional losses usually suffered by the party in power. Thus, the precedents are good, and the congressional Republicans have provided enough ammunition for the President to give a ring of truth to such a partisan campaign.

On the other hand, "Republican obstructionism" is not responsible for the war in Vietnam: It did not bring the necessity for a major tax increase. It has helped block useful action to prevent more racial rioting, but the President himself has done no more about that than to appoint a committee and appeal for the passage of the underfinanced programs he already had proposed.

Aside from the fact that there are 25 Republican state administrations, most of them progressive and responsible; Johnson may therefore have difficulty in making the Republican Party the issue in the 1968 elections.

He may, that is, if the Republicans recognize the fact that in 1968 their best issue is not the war, not the deficit, not the great society, but Lyndon B. Johnson. Their job is not to defend their record or propound some ideology but to provide an attractive alternative to the President himself.

L. A. C. SAYS

Economic Facts

By L. A. COLLINS, SR.

LAST WEEK an aide to Governor Reagan told a Palos Verdes audience about some more cuts to be expected in the state's spending. One referred to was giving up some rental offices by the state. The departments would be moved to state-owned buildings where there was unused space available. It might even mean crowding some departments to accomplish this which will not be popular with those workers involved. But it is a process now being used by many private businesses which find it essential to cut down their expenses if they are to stay in business.

Other economies the speaker referred to was better utilization of data processing machines so more agencies could use the same machines. It was estimated $2 million could be saved by a more stringent control over telephone calls by state employes. It was argued that the vast state food purchases could be cut down by buying larger quantities rather than the small monthly purchases under the present system.

WHEN IT was announced that the Medi-Cal program would be cut by $200 million a year to bring it down to $600 million it caused great apprehension among the 1.5 million persons receiving this free medical aid. It called for curtailment of some of the services that had been provided the last 18 months. But this $200 million was the increased cost that the program is costing over the highest estimate when it was put in effect.

It is probable a large portion of this cost would be eliminated if the recipients were required to pay something toward each service they received. If it was only $1 per doctor visit or day in hospital or for a prescription it would avoid many unnecessary calls for these services. This amount of payment would not be an unbearable burden on most of the patients. The additional cost could even be a part of their welfare check. But if it meant coming out of their pockets it would cause them to be less inclined to use the otherwise free services.

These may seem like drastic changes. But it is clear we must accept some changes in government subsidies if taxes are not to skyrocket. Those affected see them as catastrophic. The state departments that may have to put a few more desks in an office think they are being greatly harmed — as would the state employe who uses his telephone credit card for unnecessary calls — or the Medi-Cal patient who is forced to realize each service costs him something.

THERE are very few business or industrial offices or plants that are not putting these economies into effect. They have to if they hope to stay in business. Profit margins are being sharply curtailed as labor costs, taxes and materials cost more. Any business that cannot produce some savings in operations is probably looking for new management that will face up to the needs for economies. If they do not they will soon find, with very few exceptions, that they cannot survive as a profit making institution. A sick business would hire a top man to do just what Reagan is doing.

The Reagan economy policies are hitting some groups with each cut. They may be all for his program for cuts for others. But when it hits them they cry out with anguish. It is a program he promised before he was elected. The people liked it so much they elected him by almost a million vote majority — which meant a large portion of Democrat votes. Now that he is trying to do what he promised he deserves the backing of all those who voted for him. In this respect he is unique — very few elected officials really go all out to do what they promised.

Stalin a Doting Father to His Little Daughter

JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Of all the figures of history, few have been more enigmatic than Josef Stalin, the dreaded dictator whose grim, mustachioed face still haunts the communist world. Now his daughter, Svetlana Alliluyeva, has lowered his mask a little.

This column has obtained a draft of her forthcoming memoirs. Her description of the doting father is a side of Stalin that the world little suspected. Yet even in his dealings with his family there was a touch of the sinister in Stalin.

"Father," she recalls, "was always taking me in his arms, used to like kissing me loudly and with great zest and calling me all kinds of affectionate names. Once I made a hole in a new tablecloth with the scissors. Good Lord, how my mother slapped me on the hands! I cried so loud that father came, took me in his arms, kissed and quieted me as best he could . . . Several times he saved me from cupping glasses and mustard plasters. He could not bear to hear children weeping and crying."

They played a game, the dictator and the daughter, in which she was mistress of the house and he was her humble secretary. Sometimes she would write out orders directing him to take her to the theater. The orders would usually come back endorsed: "I obey. J. Stalin, Secretary No. 1."

They also created an imaginary girl, named "Lelka," who set an ideal example. With a twinkle in his quick, brown eyes, Stalin would compare Lelka's behavior with that of his "Setanka" or "Setanochka," as he called Svetlana.

When she was 13 she wrote her father about going to a resort with a boy. The delighted daddy wrote back on August 8, 1939: "So you have been to Ritsa and not alone at that but with a young man. Well, it's not bad. Ritsa is a nice place, particularly when you are accompanied by a young man, my little sparrow . . . I'm a little lonely without you, but then you'll come soon, won't you? Love and kisses, my little sparrow."

FOUR years later, Stalin slapped and humiliated his "Setanochka" when he discovered she had been stepping out with an older man. Thereafter their relationship was strained.

As she describes the breach, "I had the feeling that I was standing at the foot of a tall mountain and that he was on its summit. You'd shout with all your might but only separate words would reach the top."

Sometimes he would ask her irritably: "Are you still living like a parasite?"

"More than anybody else," she explains, "he kept dinning it into the heads of his children that they had to live on their own means. The dachas, the flats and cars provided by the state—none of them belong to you, and don't think they're yours' he kept insisting."

Stalin himself, though he could command almost anything he wished, lived simply. His favorite luxuries were paneled walls made of different kinds of woods, a thick carpet, a table spread with fine liquors and fruits, and a roaring open fireplace. He also kept remodeling his dachas.

But he scorned most other luxuries. For clothes, Svetlana recalls, he wore "a para-military suit in summer and a woolen coat in winter, which he never changed for 15 years. He had a short, shabby reindeer coat with a squirrel-fur lining, which he must have had made for him immediately after the revolution, and together with a fur cap he wore it to his last day."

He disliked the smell of perfume. "In his ascetic views," wrote Svetlana, "a woman should only smell fresh and clean."

He also had little use for the honors men heaped upon him, gave his expensive gifts from potentates to museums, showed signs of discomfort over the crowds that clamored for a glimpse of him.

"True," acknowledges Svetlana, "he was not distinguished for any special democratic attitudes, but he never imagined himself a deity."

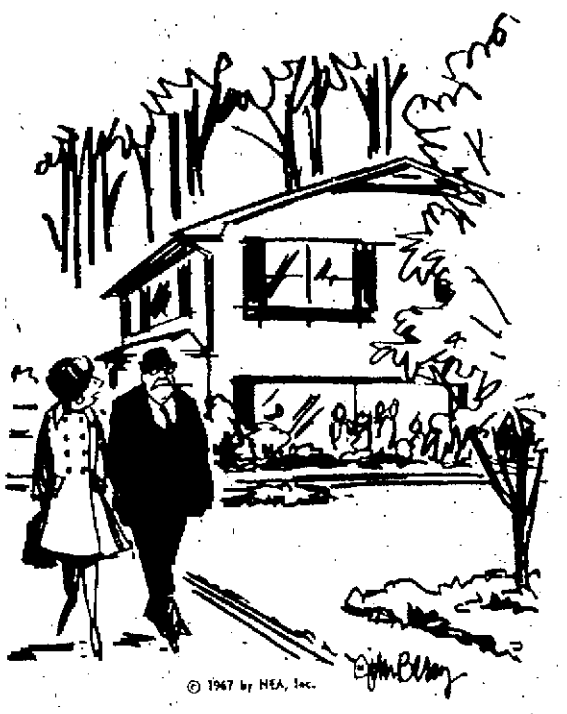

He could relax, and he enjoyed bursting into Russian song. "He had a good ear for music and a high clear voice, but for some reason, when he spoke it was in a soft voice which was toneless and low."

FOR recreation, Svetlana recalls, "Father would sometimes fire at kites from a double-barrelled gun or shoot the rabbits caught in the glare of the car's headlights at night.

Billiards, skittles, gorodki—everything that required a sure eye—were sports he loved. He never swam, he simply never learned to swim—did not like to sit in the sun and took only walks in a shady forest. But even this quickly tired him, and he preferred to lie on a couch with a book, with his business papers or newspapers, or sit at a table for hours with guests."

Stalin could also be hard as the granite of his native Georgia province. He ordered his son Vasily locked in a punishment cell for ten days for drinking and, again, personally signed the orders stripping Vasily of his command of the Moscow air defenses for misbehavior.

Another Kennedy View

EDITOR:

It is interesting to note that although Sen. Robert Kennedy frequently castigates and condemns the National Rifle Association his late brother, President John F. Kennedy, was a member of the NRA, an enthusiastic gun collector and had purchased a rifle, with the help of the Association, through the Director of Civilian Marksmanship. The example set by our late and loved President should be sufficient evidence that there is nothing corrupting or inherently evil in either firearms ownership, belonging to the NRA, or in guns themselves.

In my opinion, Sen. Kennedy is being very naive if he honestly thinks that crime may be stopped by disarming the law-abiding citizen who uses firearms for lawful purposes and under safe conditions. In fact, crime might actually increase if the muggers, robbers, rapists and rioters knew that their intended victims were, most likely, disarmed and helpless. Also, I predict that the underground traffic in guns would rival that of liquor during the Prohibition years.

The Senator should face the fact, that whether he likes it or not, guns are here to stay. Therefore, I suggest that NRA's educational program for safe and responsible handling of firearms should be supported rather than condemned.

Not Just the Shore

EDITOR:

Belmont Shore is not the only place that is attracting hedonists. This is true all over Southern California. This devil-may-care attitude is endemic. Why is this so? I do not know. The war? Rootlessness of urban life? Greed? Automobility? Parental indifference? A younger population? All possible factors.

These problems are for the government to solve. There must be a master plan involving sociology, psycho-cybernetics and business administrative know how. We are certainly not keeping up with the tornadic pace of displacement engendered by technological sophistication. We have the know how to produce wizardry with machinery. We are not paralyzed in our potential to help improve the human machine. People take precedence over things. To say it nay, is diabolical and arrogant beyond sanity.

Apathy is the cancer that rots civilization. The cautery must be applied stinging-hot, and fast.

I work in the aerospace industry. Part of our job is to escort visiting VIPs through the plant, making sure they see and hear what they want to see and hear.

Now this country is sending a delegation to Vietnam. These people are not people known for "roughing it" even here in the United States. How far from downtown Saigon will they get? They do not know the country, the people, the customs, nor the language. They will be at the mercy of the U.S. military in Vietnam, the U.S. State Department representatives in Vietnam and representatives of the dictatorial General Ky's regime.

On the basis of their brief observation we will be told that we loyal Americans should continue to pour over a million an hour and thousands of young Americans into that rat-hole because our handful of representatives saw an "inspiring display of democracy in action?"

How sick and insane can this administration and this country get before the people wise up and demand a halt to this deception and these lies?

Activists in High School in Student Power Battle

By ARLINE SHERER
Staff Writer

THE BERKELEY war over free speech, student power and education policy is being fought on a new front — the high schools.

In 1964, the dean of students at the University of California's Berkeley campus announced the university would enforce rules against political recruiting, fund-raising and mounting political and social action on campus.

The announcement sparked free speech demonstrations by student groups, conservative and liberal alike, and eventual protests against the Establishment — the university administration and Board of Regents.

Student unrest has continued; and in 1966, political activists and hippies joined forces to bring the university administration under the control of students and faculty members.

NOW, SOME high school students are demanding greater voice in school affairs, a campus open to outside speakers and unlimited distribution of literature. The young people publish their dreams and gripes in underground newspapers. So many of these protest newspapers have sprung up that the editors have formed their own professional organization, the Student Underground Press Association.

As with rebels throughout history, the young editors have learned that their activities are not without hazards. Some have been suspended or expelled from school. Many have been prohibited from distributing the papers on campus.

Despite the harassment, the editors continue to voice their views. Last weekend, 13 of them, 12 boys and a girl, took the educational system apart at a workshop sponsored by the Western Behavioral Sciences Institute of La Jolla, a non-profit research center receiving government grants.

"We criticized the control the administration has over everything a student does, says and wears; and we attacked the concept that the student must play the game and hear and voice only middle-of-the-road ideas," explained Mike Lukas, editor of the Long Beach Loudmouth.

"My own feeling is the schools don't follow their espoused philosophy of preparing students for life. We are protected, coddled and wrapped in cotton until we are 18. Then, we are tossed out into a world with the Communist Party on one side and the John Birch Society on the other, and we become really confused," he added.

Lukas' complaint is not a new one. It was voiced by Gaius Petronius, Roman satirist of the 1st Century, A.D.

"I tell you, we don't educate our children at school; we stultify them and then send them out into the world half-baked. And why? Because we keep them utterly ignorant of life."

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

The young editors' other suggestions were not necessarily new. Many have not only been proposed by educators before; some have been tried in various experimental programs.

They advocated the abolition of grades, the establishment of apprenticeship programs in which students could get work experience with companies in the community. They suggested making school non-compulsory to force schools to be so good the students would want to attend.

The young people also dwelt on the practical issues of getting voters to come out for school board elections and encouraging school boards to hold night meetings so parents and students could attend.

Both the practical and utopian suggestions of the young people were welcomed by Garry Shirts, youth study director for WBSI, who said:

"We selected underground newspaper editors because we feel they are original and critical thinkers. We tried a workshop with ordinary kids, but found they accepted school like they did air and water; there was no questioning."

Shirts' chief criticism of the editors was that they could not provide solutions for many of the problems they exposed. He also might have noted that the students, in their eagerness to point out what was wrong with the educational system, bypassed the problems of the so-called Establishment.

School administrators and teachers must deal with the nitty-gritty facts of school budget, special education classes, irate parents, balky school board members and irresponsible students who take advantage of the freedoms they get.

The editors should be encouraged, though. The Establishment they are so critical of will hear their gripes and recommendations. Shirts has made tape recordings of the workshop sessions, which will be the basis of a project report. The report will be sent to the U.S. Office of Education for study, evaluation and possible implementation.

DIANA THEBO . . . HavingTrouble Making Connections

—Staff Photo

WILL AID OTHERS

Girl 'Sees' With Her Heart

Diana Thebo is 19 and likes school, the Beatles and the St. Louis Cards, although not necessarily in that order.

If she sounds like just any teen-age girl, that's because Diana is like most teen-age girls. With one exception.

Diana Thebo is blind.

IF IT HADN'T been for a curious situation — one in which Diana Thebo's unusual combination of spirit and inventiveness was challenged — this newspaper (and its readers) might never have heard of the plucky Lakewood girl. She did call the paper during the past week, kidding with a reporter briefly before getting to the point.

"I've got a chance to go to a medical technician's school in Burbank," she said, "but I'm having trouble making connections."

The bus that picks up the students for the Burbank school comes as far south in Los Angeles County as Rosecrans Avenue and Atlantic Avenue, which would be far enough to suit most folks. It's far enough to suit Diana except for one thing.

When the subdividers were laying out the tract in which Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Thebo bought their home at 12408 E. 212th St., the surveyor apparently had a couple of martinis for lunch.

"I've tried to walk to the store," Diana says. "It's almost impossible. They made the streets different here."

The curbs slope away from the sidewalk, there isn't a concrete lip between the curb and the street asphalt and there are some other anomalies that tend to make walking — especially for a blind person — a distinct hazard.

"I'D STILL TRY it if the streets didn't curve so much," Diana said. Sometimes, Diana says, she has the feeling that she's walking straight ahead when she's actually headed for Hawaiian Gardens.

Diana is scheduled to begin her medical technician training in about six weeks. But Bill Massey, who is the Los Angeles County rehabilitation counselor assigned to the girl's care, maintains she needs more mobil training — the act of walking along a street or sidewalk.

When she finishes it, she'll have to arise at about 5 or 5:30 a.m., walk to the bus stop at Centralia Road and Pioneer Boulevard in time to catch the 7:03 a.m. Rapid Transit District bus which would put her within walking range of Rosecrans and Atlantic.

All of this would, of course, be simplified if Diana could find someone already headed for the Rosecrans-Atlantic intersection at about 8 a.m. who wouldn't mind carrying her along.

Diana wouldn't make the request straight out. She's not overly proud but she does relish what she does for herself.

SUCH AS MASTERING her own language (Braille) and handling her own affairs at home. She picked up a book of Braille and her fingers leaped lightly over the raised impressions.

"'My heart leaps up whenever I see a rainbow in the sky,'" she began, then interrupted herself. "Oh, it's Wadsworth. Do you like Wadsworth?"

Yes, the reporter acknowledged, he did like Wadsworth. But, he admitted to himself, he had never really treasured the sight of a rainbow in the sky before.

Alamitos Bay Battle for Land Resumes

The city's on-again, off-again plans to acquire the Alamitos Bay waterfront property owned by the Ross Boat Co. and Frank S. Wade will be on again Tuesday.

Councilmen are scheduled to act on a recommendation by City Manager John R. Mansell that they order eminent domain proceedings on the property, which is on the north side of Ocean Boulevard just east of the Leeway Sailing Club.

As early as 1940, the city tried to purchase the property from the owner, William E. Ross, who is now deceased. A long-standing dispute developed, however, over the northerly boundary of Ross' property.

The city contended that Ross, and two owners to the east, including Wade, were partially encroaching on city-owned land and water areas.

Mansell said Ross and the other two owners claimed the north boundary of their property extended "considerably further" into Alamitos Bay than the city conceded.

IN 1942, the City Council went so far as to order condemnation and obtain appraisals, but did not follow through. The purchase plan came up again in 1947 and 1952.

Mansell said his office was contacted in 1965 by George Knowlton, one of the present owners of Ross Boat Co., who informed the city he and his partners had purchased the company following Ross' death.

Mansell said Knowlton proposed to make extensive improvements on the property, but was told the city intended to acquire it for public use. Knowlton then said they would be willing to sell to the city if agreement could be reached on price, the manager said.

LATER, HOWEVER, the owners backed away from selling the property, and said they wanted to build a 17-story, twin-tower apartment building on the site, Mansell said.

The city said such a facility could not be built on the size lot which the city contends is all the company owns, Mansell reported.

On Aug. 12, 1965, attorneys for the Ross Boat Co. offered to sell the property to the city for $300,000, Mansell said, but were told the city was making a study of property lines in the Alamitos Bay area in conjunction with the state attorney general's office.

Following such study, the city offered to buy the property for $110,000, but got no response, according to the manager's office.

Mansell pointed out that the city is conducting a program to acquire all beach property south of Ocean Boulevard as far east as 55th Place, and said 55th Place is the "logical separation" between public beach and private property on the north side of Ocean Boulevard.

Because of the long-standing dispute, it does not appear likely the city can negotiate a settlement, Mansell said, so he has recommended the eminent domain proceedings, with payment from tideland revenue.

Russ Chemists Grinding Away

Russia's chemists will make their nation a scientific power within a few years, according to Dr. F. Sherwood Rowland of University of California Irvine.

Home from the eighth annual International Symposium on Free Radical Chemistry, the UCI professor of chemistry said he was impressed with the knowledge achieved by the Russians within a relatively short time.

And, he said, he noted "fairly substantial scientific freedom" according them in their fields of study and research.

THE SOVIET government has created a "science city" for the nation's researchers in its industrial, educational and scientific development; it is Academgorodok, a suburb of the almost-new city of Novosibirsk in southern Siberia.

"It is a little easier to appreciate the emphasis the Russians are placing on science when you realize that Academgorodok didn't exist until about five years ago," Rowland said.

The city now has a population of 35,000, and Novosibirski has a million people. The weather is like that of Edmonton, Canada; summers are long and pleasant, and winters are severe.

Russia's goal apparently is to unseat Great Britain as the No. 2 ranking scientific power, Rowland said.

He found that the Russian chemists attending the symposium, which drew 150 scientists from throughout the world, were knowledgeable "and proud of their progress."

The UCI professor said, however, that he found their scientific presentations "were not tinged by the nationalistic approach", but instead were "purely scientific" and "showed startling advances."

Hinshaw's Act Nets $213,000

It was worth $213,000 to the County of Orange for Assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw to challenge the state's determination of the ratio of assessments he made for the 1967-68 tax year.

Hinshaw objected to the State Board of Equalization finding that the county assessment averaged 21.3 per cent of market value, and he flew to Sacramento to present his case.

The state board disclosed Wednesday that it revised its finding, and set the average ratio at 21.5 per cent.

THAT WAS NOT much of a change, but it amounts to $213,000 in state apportionments to schools which are now at their limit of bonding and tax levies.

A so-called "equalization tax" is applied under state law for the financial benefit of the districts taxed and bonded to capacity — if the country's assessemnt is less than the state average.

This year the tax will be cut three cents to 15 cents, because of the $213,000 additional income.

Hinshaw said he hopes to eliminate the equalization tax by jacking up the county's assessemnt averages to the state level in future years.

New Recreation Building Planned in 19th St. Park

The Long Beach city manager's office is seeking bids on an estimated $170,000 project to build a recreation building in the expanded 19th Street Park.

The City Council authorized the building of the structure, which was designed by architect Thomas J. Russell.

City Manager John R. Mansell told councilmen the building will be in the block bounded by 19th and Rhea streets and by Lemon and Ceritos avenues, and said acquisition of property in this area is "virtually complete."

Mansell said the building will be of contemporary design and will provide 7,800 square feet of floor area. It will have a large social room with a raised platform stage and dressing rooms at one end.

The social room can be expanded by retracting folding doors which lead to the adjacent activity room, Mansell said. The building also will house a game room, kitchen, director's office rest rooms and service rooms.

Canada's Tories to Choose

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's Conservatives, bidding for a comeback, will decide this week on the man they'll trust to lead them into the next election campaign. The nation's next prime minister may be chosen in the bargain, since this job goes to the leader of a party that dominates an election.

It's largely a question of whether John George Diefenbaker, nearing 72, will cling to the leadership or make way for a younger and possibly more aggressive blood.

Diefenbaker has led the Tory party since 1956, and held the prime ministry until Lester B. Pearson's Liberals ousted him in 1963. The Tories prevented the Liberals from winning both 1963 and 1965 elections by clear-cut majorities, forcing them into a minority rule that continues to this day.

* * * *

THE CONSERVATIVE rank and file became restless after the 1965 election, and Diefenbaker had to fight off challenges to his leadership. Last November a group led by the party president, Dalton Camp, a Toronto advertising man, forced a decision for a leadership convention.

That is the meeting to be held this week.

Diefenbaker hasn't made it clear whether he will be a candidate, but nine prominent men in the party, apparently counting on Diefenbaker to withdraw, are running for the job.

One of the candidates' aides says there will be panic if Diefenbaker stands pat.

Anti-Diefenbaker forces presumably would combine efforts in an attempt to beat him.

Diefenbaker will address the convention on Thursday night. Official nominations will be made the next day, and the voting will come Saturday.

* * * *

WHILE THE former prime minister is keeping his plans to himself, hints of his views have come from associates. For one thing, he is said to believe that one group, mainly representing Toronto financial interests, seized the party machinery last November to force the leadership convention. He has always expressed himself against special interests. Supporters say he has tried to make the Conservatives "a people's party."

Such ideas, if they reflect Diefenbaker's thinking, would indicate that he intends to make a fight on it.

The announced candidates include six men who were in Diefenbaker's Cabinet in the course of his six years as prime minister. They are George Hees, Davie Fulton, Donald Fleming, Michael Starr, Alvin Hamilton and Sen. Wallace McCutchen.

Two premiers also seek the national leadership—Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia and Duff Roblin of Manitoba. The list is rounded out by John Maclean, an Ontario automobile dealer.

* * * *

PRIME MINISTER Pearson's Liberals also may be choosing a new leader before the next election. There are guests that Pearson, 70, will step down next year. Four of his Cabinet are among the obvious candidates to succeed him—Paul Martin, Mitchell Sharp, Allan MacEachen and Paul Hellyer.

Canadian elections are not held at stated intervals as in the United States. Normally they are called every four or five years, but they can be held sooner if the party in power is successfully challenged in the House of Commons, or decides on its own that a particular period is suitable for a test at the polls.

SEMINAR OPENING

L.B. Studies Nuclear Defense Plan

The Long Beach Plan for managing basic resources following a nuclear attack will be scrutinized by top government and industry officials at a Civil Defense seminar here Wednesday.

More than 90 persons are expected to participate in the seminar, which will be held at Veterans Park, 101 E. 28th St., starting at 9 a.m.

Among them will be Joseph Romm, national director for Civil Defense, and Col. Charles Samson, California state director for Civil Defense.

The seminar will culminate a six-month study of methods of maintaing the economy within a community cutoff from outside supply sources because of nuclear war.

Evar P. Peterson, Long Beach coordinator of disaster services, explained that in prior wars, controls over supplies were planned and managed by the federal government. This, however, took several months to establish.

"In a future war, we will not have the luxury of taking that much time," Peterson said. "We may be temporarily cut off from national control and direction. Local government must also be prepared for the possibility of losing effective contact with stae government."

"The primary purpose of this meeting is to determine if, in fact, it is feasible for a local community to adequately meet these responsibilities in a nuclear attack situation," he said.

LONG BEACH WAS selected as the test site for drafting a resources plan after federal Civil Defense officials visited the city in August, 1966. The City Council subsequently approved the pilot program.

Last April, officials from private business and industry met with city, county, state and federal officials to review the preliminary plan and make recommendations. A series of individual meetings were held over the next two weeks to incorporate these suggestions in the Long Beach Plan.

Not all of the resource areas will be tested at the seminar, only those involved in "consumer rationing," such as water supplies, and the wholesale and retail trades concerned with food and petroleum products.

Other resource areas, which will get an indirect check, are construction, telecommunications, housing, industrial support, manpower and other utilities.

City Manager John R. Mansell, who is the Long Beach director of Civil Defense, will open the seminar, which will include group sessions for evaluation of the Long Beach Plan.

"The purpose of the group sessions," Peterson explained, "is to measure the adequacy of the plan, not the operational ability of the participants."

Frank Curran and "Pegleg Prince"

—Staff Photo

Pegleg Prince Lives 9th Time

By MOLLY BURRELL

"Pegleg Prince" he's known as down on Irvine Ranch.

He's a 5-year-old grey and white tomcat, former lover and fighter, now in semiretirement, basking in the notoriety which followed his near-fatal accident, long recuperation, and his major claim to fame — a plastic leg.

Prince's owner Frank Curran, 8, 3412 Roberts St., Santa Ana, explains:

"We thought he'd used up his nine lives after he lost a leg in a threshing machine. But the veterinary said he seemed to be a good strong cat and he might recover and then we could see about an artificial leg."

THAT WAS three months ago — the day the Currans finally located Prince after a five day absence. "He hid for four days after the accident. The doctor said it was a miracle he survived," says Frank.

It was touch and go for the next two months as Prince got injections, vitamin shots, and began the first of several fittings for his new leg. The first model — grey and white plastic and leather.— was too long and had to be refitted. The new leg is tied in place and Prince is playing with the family dog and cats and putting on a few pounds what with all the leisure and the extra attention and the extra goodies the family is passing his way.

THE CURRANS ARE USED to crises with Prince. He arrived as a four-day-old kitten, was nourished with eyedroppers of baby formula, slept next to the water heater, and went through several cases of baby food before he learned about cat food. "When he grew up he was quite a fighter — 27 pounds of howl and battle. He used to drag home so beat up he'd look like he was going to die in an hour," says Mrs. Curran.

The run-in with the thresher has altered his whole routine, say the Currans. He has taken to watching daytime TV, spends the night on Frank's bed, and in between recounting the story of his operation to the other cats, he just lounges around and purrs.

Siberia Offers New Wealth and Power for Russia

By RICHARD LONGWORTH

MOSCOW (UPI) — Reputations die hard. To most of the world, Siberia still means a cold wasteland of bears and prison camps.

But mention Siberia to a Russian and he will talk of new frontiers, of a Soviet Klondike, of wealth and power—and the future.

For Siberia is Russia's ace in the hole, a vast area of such incalculable riches and potential that the country which controls it controls almost all the resources it could conceivably need for scores of years to come.

Russia controls it now—and that explains some of the Soviet confidence in the future.

Teeming China wants it —and that explains much of the real force behind the Sino-Soviet quarrel.

* * * *

SOME comparisons help tell the story:

Siberia is one-twelfth of the earth's surface. From the Urals to the Pacific, from the Arctic to China, it encompasses nearly five million square miles, enough to swallow the United States and two Mexicos in one gulp.

Recent discoveries have made it clear that it is the world's greatest treasure trove.

It has more diamonds than South Africa, more forests than Scandinavia, enough oil and gas to rival the Mideast, more coal than the United States, Canada and France combined, untouched caches of lead, nickel and tin, and such exotic resources as tungsten, mercury, cobalt, uranium and titanium in abundance.

It is a huge Fort Knox, with enough gold to end all doubts about Soviet reserves. Its area—possibly its greatest resource — erases the population explosion from the list of Soviet problems.

Its rivers—the Lena, the Ob, the Yenesei and Angara —are among the world's mightiest. The Bratsk Dam, on the Angara, already generates twice as much power as America's Grand Coulee. The Krasnoyarsk Dam, on the Yenesei, will go into operation this year and will put out three times Grand Coulee's power.

* * * *

SIBERIA has other, less desirable, superlatives.

It has one of the world's meanest climates, and some of its biggest mosquitoes, uninhabitable bogs and unexplored territory.

The real exploitation of Siberia began barely 10 years ago, when the Kremlin began pouring billions of dollars each year into its development. This already is paying dividends.

Oil discoveries this year along near Novosibirsk and Tyumen are estimated big enough to satisfy Siberian industrial needs for 50 years.

One scientist has estimated western Siberian oil reserves alone at tens of billions of tons, gas reserves at thousands of billions of cubic meters, and the overall gas and oil area at 1 million square miles—an area equal to Arabia.

More than 110 billion tons of iron ore have been found near Bakinar.

* * * *

THE FAR eastern peninsula of Kamchatka, known for its fish and seal fur, is said to be rich in gold, coal, sulphur, mercury, nickel and ore.

Oil even has been discovered in the Arctic Ocean, off the Yamal peninsula.

Siberia presents special problems to its developers. Many are being met with skill and ingenuity.

The Yamal peninsula oil lies beneath Arctic ice. So scientists are making plans to drill for it—straight through the ice.

Temperatures down to 90 below zero make diamond mining in Yakutia a tough job. Solution—plans to build huge weather-proof domes over the towns.

Power is a problem. So mobile atomic reactors, putting out as little as 500 kilowatts, are being shipped into remote areas.

* * * *

MANY OF Siberia's richest sites are locked deep inside Tundra or Taiga (forest). The airplane links these inaccessible settlements to the outside world and small airstrips dot the region.

Only one railway, the Trans-Siberian, crosses Siberia. Another, about 200 miles north, is being built to handle transport for rich mining areas.

Siberia's main problem still is people. Some cities are booming—Novosibirsk, founded only 64 years ago, has a population today of 1.1 million persons.

But Siberia as a whole has only five persons per square mile on the average —and in many large areas, not one living soul.

The Soviet government is luring new workers to Siberia with high wages—100 per cent or more above Moscow salaries—and the promise of frontier-style adventure. Plus television.

Twenty relay stations are being established this year just to bring Moscow television more than 6,000 miles to the reindeer herders and gold miners of the frozen north.

New Congo Complex

KINSHASA, The Congo (AP) — President Joseph D. Mobutu cut a ribbon Saturday opening a luxurious complex of 41 buildings, tennis courts and a swimming pool on a site that was a growth of brush seven months ago. It is expected to be the scene of the fourth summit session of the Organization of African Unity later this month.

Boy Who Fell in Boiling Vat of Wax Dies of Burns

Mark Zylstra's indomitable courage faltered Saturday, and he died in Orange County Medical Center, where he had been semiconscious since he fell into a vat of boiling paraffin Aug. 25.

Te 13-year-old lad's battle for life touched the hearts of the staff of physicians and nurses who gave him care day and night. Many of them cried unashamedly when Mark left them.

Mark was burned when he was visiting his father, Henry, at his job at the Badger Paper Co. in Los Angeles, Aug. 25.

The boy stumbled and plunged into the boiling paraffin, which is kept bubling for use in making wax paper.

Rushed to Pioneer Hospital, Norwalk, he was sent to the Orange County Medical Center's burn treatment unit.

Physicians there said burns covered 100 per cent of the boy's body; they had "never seen such a case." They were frankly amazed that he survived eight full days after the tragic accident.

His father and mother, Norma, live at 11848 187th St., Artesia. The body was taken to Artesia Mortuary.

Parrot Fever

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Parrot fever, a pneumonia-like disease medically known as Psittacosis, was diagnosed last year in 50 human cases in the United States — the lowest total since 1951, the National Communicable Disease Center reported Saturday.

Clues Found in Probe for Lost Youth

TRENTON, Fla. (AP) — Searchers probing a yawning sinkhole for a 20-year-old youth and his horse missing since Aug. 14 pulled part of a man's leg from an underground stream Saturday.

Gilchrist County Sheriff's Deputy Alvin Akin said workers broke through to the stream with dynamite during the afternoon and hooked a pair of boots and a sock.

He said some hours later the hooks hauled in the portion of a leg. "We believe it's Cecil Davis," Akin said.

Akin said divers would continue the search for the rest of the body Saturday night.

Davis, a quiet farm youngster, reportedly rode away from his parents' home five miles northwest of Trenton and vanished. Tracks led searchers to the edge of a sinkhole 20 feet across and 50 to 60 feet deep.

7 Grain Elevators Struck in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Seven grain elevators which handle about 90 per cent of the grain moving into and out of Chicago were picketed Saturday by members of Local 418 of the Grain Elevator Workers Union.

An eighth major elevator whose employes belong to the United Packinghouse Workers Union expected to continue operating pending further negotiations on a new contract next week.

Russian Sails Home

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (UPI) — Soviet Ambassador Dmitri Pojidaev sailed for home Saturday after serving more than two years as Russia's top envoy in Egypt. Pojidaev has been transferred.

All States Picnic Set for Sunday

The 46th annual picnic of the All States Society of Long Beach will be held next Sunday, in Bixby Park, featuring a program on "The Queen Mary Comes to Long Beach" at which Vice Mayor Robert F. Crow will recount the famous liner's past, present and future.

Registration will begin at 11 a.m. and the picnic lunch, for which participants may bring their own meal or buy it, will be at noon.

The afternoon program will also include a parade of flags of the 50 states.

Final of the event will be a 2:15 p.m. concert of states' songs and other music by the Long Beach Municipal Band under Director Charles J. Payne.

Wallace Gets Bronze Star Medal, Viet Navy Ribbon

The commanding officer of the SS Long Beach has been presented the Bronze Star Medal for "meritorious service in connection with operations involving conflict with an opposing foreign force."

Capt. Kenneth C. Wallace received the nation's fourth highest combat award from Rear Adm. Sam Moore, commander, Cruiser Destroyer Group, Long Beach.

The award was made for the nuclear-powered ship's activities while on its first war deployment from last November until July 4.

MUCH OF THE Long Beach's deployment activities is still classified.

The citation did note: "... As task unit commander he was responsible for primary early warning of hostile air threats, providing air control functions, maintaining current status of all air contacts in his area and furnishing early warnings in the event of surface attack . . .

". . . Capt. Wallace's personal efforts, imagination and ability to grasp and evaluate volumnious information contributed significantly to the defense of the 7th Fleet . . ."

The captain, selected for promotion to rear admiral on June 7, also received the Vietnamese Navy Distinguished Service Order for "his benefit to the Republic of Vietnam while commanding the SS Long Beach."

Stereo Stolen

A $250 stereo unit was stolen from the home of Alfred E. Gauthier, 1400 Walnut Ave., Long Beach police said Saturday.

Aid Check Stolen

A thief stole a $74 welfare check from the mailbox of Kathryn Peters, 2078 Olive Ave., Long Beach police said Saturday.

SALVATION SERMON

Youths Try Both to Believe, Deny

Young people today often try to balance on a thin line between Christian commitment and overt denial of active religious activity, a top Salvation Army official says.

Commissioner Erik Wickberg made the comment in a sermon Saturday night, during a rally in the 10th annual Southern California Camp Meeting series in Municipal Auditorium.

Drawing on anecdotal experiences of his youth in Sweden, the Salvation Army chief of staff said there can be no middleground for those who would follow Christ.

He said he identified as a child with the parable of Zacchaeus, the dwarf who climed into a tree to glimpse the Savior on his travels through the Holy Land.

But he, as many, lost that identification as he grew to young manhood and shed the child's sense of smallness, Commissioner Wickberg explained during the colorful rally.

REACHING A stage of youthful spiritual distress, the second-in-command of the Salvation Army told of opening his Bible at random one day to the passage:

"He who is not with me is against me."

Commissioner Wickberg said these words of Christ's were disturbing to him, so he closed the book and tried again later opening it to the same passage.

He finally reached a decision to accept Christ and began thereafter to work up in the ranks of the organization, in which his father had been a divisional commander.

"A small man's salvation is to him, the greatest one of all," quoted Commissioner Wickberg in closing, prior to prayer sessions.

Other rallies are scheduled today at 3 and 7:30 p.m., as the 10th annual Camp Meeting series reaches its conclusion.

Traffic Accidents Kill Four

Southland traffic accidents killed four persons Saturday including two El Toro girls who died in a two-car smashup and two pedestrians struck by autos.

The girls Thecla Peavy, 12, and Hazel Peavey, died in Orange County Medical Center after a station wagon driven by their mother broadsided another car, the Highway Patrol said.

Hospitalized with major injuries were the mother, Betty Peavy, 42, of 24862 Calle el Toro Grande, in Orange County territory near El Toro, and two other daughters, Janet, 7 and Beata, 9.

THE HIGHWAY Patrol said the Peavy car slammed into an auto driven by Juan Maza Salas, 35, of 18306 Culver Road, Santa Ana at Barranca Road and Harvard Avenue at 4:10 p.m.

In Compton, 18-year-old Caroline Jean Dennis, 300 S. Coral Ave., was struck and killed by an auto as she walked across Alondra Boulevard west of Acacai Avenue at 1 a.m.

Police said the driver, Alton Wooton, 36, of 1209 S. Willowbrook Ave., was booked on investigation of felony hit-run and felony drunken driving.

Seven minutes later, a Garden Grove woman, Mrs. Violet V. McCutchen, 65, of 13102 Partridge St. was struck and killed by an auto while crossing Garden Grove Boulevard near her home. The driver of the other auto, Lewis Kish, 23, of 12662 Buaro St., was not held.

Guards Arrest Felon, 29, on Prison Grounds

Prison guards Saturday nabbed a 29-year-old felon who hid for more than 12 hours in a work yard at Terminal Island Federal Correctional Institution.

Robert Maxwell Copley of Venice, who had just began a two-year term for auto theft, surrendered at 4:55 a.m. to guards who maintained a stakeout in the large yard.

Prison officials put out an alert for Copley when he disappeared from a work crew Friday afternoon.

Name New CSLB Dean of Fine Arts

A California State College at Long Beach music professor has been named acting dean of the college's school of fine arts.

College President Carl W. McIntosh said Dr. Robert E. Tyndall, 41, a faculty member in the music department since 1955, would serve as the acting dean.

Dr. TYNDALL

TYNDALL, current chairman of the college's academic senate and a member of various faculty committees, is president of the Long Beach Symphony Association and is a member of its board of directors.

His teaching experience has been in the field of composition and theory, and he has composed over 30 works which have been performed in the Southland and throughout the U.S. This year, the college band will premier his "Symphony for Band."

Tyndall received his B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Iowa and holds membership in Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Eta Sigma.

He and his wife, who is chairman of the music department at Huntington Beach High School, live with their children at 5911 Edmonds Circle in Huntington Beach.

Casino Robbed of $56,000

CARSON CITY, Nev., (UPI) — A gunman who may have had an accomplice held up the Nugget Casino Saturday and escaped with an estimated $56,000.

The robber accosted the cashier, indicated he had a gun and handed her a note demanding money.

The holdup occurred while security guards were diverted to a fight at a bar. Police believed the distrubance may have been started with the purpose of drawing the guards' attention.

Woodie Cannon, Orange County Newsman, Dies

Longtime newspaperman Woodward D. "Woodie" Cannon, 57, executive editor of the Orange County Evening News, died at home Saturday after undergoing abdominal surgery two weeks ago.

Private funeral services will be held Tuesday at Rose Hills Memorial Park, Whittier, for the descendant of George H. Cannon, a prominent early apostle of the Mormon Church.

Survivors include his wife, Phyllis, a reporter for the Pomona Progress-Bulletin, sons George and Derk, and daughters Kathryn and Julie.

ENGINEERS

SYSTEMS ENGINEERS and PROGRAMMERS

Move now to Douglas Aircraft Division where you will have the opportunity to become involved in some of the most exciting and challenging programs of this decade.

Electronic Systems Engineers

Many positions are available right now for Systems Integration Specialists, Avionics Engineers & Systems Evaluation Specialists. Assignments will be in the conceptual design and analysis of advanced airborne command and control systems and tactical warfare and air defense electronics systems. The development of realizable avionic concepts in response to military requirements will be stressed in particular. These concepts will be analyzed to predict physical characteristics, reliability and cost. These challenging positions require that you have good electronic systems experience and an engineering degree.

OPERATIONS RESEARCH

Assignments are in the development of systems analysis concepts of future advanced development military program. Will also be involved in operations research and cost effectiveness evaluations. Requires a degree and directly related aerospace systems experience.

Business Programmers

A variety of programming opportunities await you in one of the largest computer complexes in the industry. You will become involved in programming for various phases of business applications using the IBM system 360 computer series. Requires a minimum of 2 years of experience working with large scale equipment, operations systems and COBOL language.

Scientific Programmers

If you're experienced in systems simulation or modeling using GPSS, SIMSCRIPT or similar languages, we have exciting career challenges for you—and likewise if you're a programmer with Fortran experience. You'll be solving scientific problems using the IBM 360 Model 65 or 7094 computers. These positions require a minimum of two years of scientific programming experience with large scale equipment.

Reagan Wins Tuition in Form of Fee Hike

THE WEST

Increased student fees for the University of California were approved by the Board of Regents after they rejected Gov. Ronald Reagan's plan for tuition.

The amount of the increase is to be determined by a special committee. No date for imposition was set.

Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, who led the forces opposing tuition, said the fee increase is "no different than tuition" and termed the regents' vote "sheer hypocrisy."

"All it does is stall the decision. The governor could come back and ask for $5 or $200," Unruh said.

GOV. RONALD REAGAN
'What We Wanted'

Gov. Reagan said the increase would "achieve in principle what we wanted." He had asked for a $250 tuition fee, but lowered the request to $200 when it became evident the regents would not vote for it.

The $200 tuition proposal lost by a 14-7 vote, but the fee increase is to be used for many of the same purposes specified in the original request.

The vice president of the Board of Regents said he thinks the new student charge will be "somewhere in the vicinity of $100 a year."

Regent Philip L. Boyd of Riverside said he favors a $100 annual charge and thinks it will be the consensus of the entire board.

THE FORMER "Little Miss Marker" and skipper of "The Good Ship Lollipop" has decided to run for Congress.

Shirley Temple — now 39 and mother of three teenagers — told a packed news conference Wednesday that she would run for the congressional seat left vacant by the death of fellow Republican J. Arthur Younger, who represented California's 11th district.

During the past 13 years, she has played an increasingly active role in civic and educational affairs. Last October she stirred up a storm of controversy when she resigned as chairman of the San Francisco Film Festival's program division because it wanted to show a Swedish film she labelled "pornography for profit."

But she is best remembered as the moppet who during the 1930s symbolized all the best in childhood. She earned more than $3 million by the time she was 12 and President Franklin D. Roosevelt credited her with lifting the nation's morale during the bleak years of the depression. Her movie career ended in 1949. Since then she has narrated a television series, "Shirley Temple Story Book."

THE STATE SENATE'S Democratic leader said Friday that upper house Republicans may muster enough votes to oust him but he doubts they will be able to agree on any one man as a replacement.

Senate President pro tem Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, said he'll check his Democratic support at a caucus Tuesday.

"I don't feel as though there's any movement on hand to change the leadership of the Senate — seriously, I mean," Burns told newsmen.

Nineteen of the Senate's 20 Republicans met in Los Angeles Thursday to consider election of one of their own as the Senate leader. They agreed to meet again Monday, when the legislature returns to Sacramento to consider Gov. Reagan's vetoes.

The governor gave Senate Republicans a chance to try to unseat Burns this week by calling a special session beginning Tuesday. The new session would require a new vote on Senate officers.

The election of Republican Judge Milton Marks of San Francisco to the Senate last month gave the GOP a 20-20 party split with Republicans. If all members voted their party's line on a new Senate leader, then Republican Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch would have the deciding vote.

The special session was called to correct a technical error in drafting a new law giving $145 million in extra aid to state schools.

COUNTY GOVERNMENTS served notice they do not intend to pay for the services the Reagan administration wants to eliminate from the Medi-Cal program.

Directors of the County Supervisors Association met at the State Fair Grounds in Sacramento and adopted a resolution stating they will not assume financial responsibility for the program reductions.

The administration had planned to put extensive Medi-Cal cutbacks into effect Friday. However, the step was delayed by a temporary restraining order issued by Sacramento County Superior Court.

The court ordered a delay in carrying out the reductions pending the hearing of a case challenging the cutbacks Wednesday.

DEATH BY VIOLENCE came in the night to pretty Cheryl Ann Raby, 20, of 94 E. Market St., Long Beach. Her body was found in her bed Wednesday. She had been stabbed once in the left breast with a small-blade knife.

Police questioned two men, but did not hold them. Two youths were booked later; one was released and the other was still in jail Saturday.

THE BIG SHIPS calling at Long Beach and Los Angeles harbors were going it alone after tugboat crews walked off in a wage dispute.

Seventy-five members of the Masters, Mates and Pilots Organization shut down two companies that provide tugs for deep-sea shipping.

In sympathy, members of two other tugboat unions, the Inland Boatmen's Union and the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, honored the picket lines of the MMP. About 325 tugmen were involved.

A spokesman for the strikers said it appeared certain the strike would last into this week.

THE NATION

The first Negro nominated to the U.S. Supreme Court, Thurgood Marshall, won Senate confirmation Wednesday. On Friday, he was sworn in by Justice Hugo L. Black, who presented him with a Bible.

Marshall, the great grandson of a slave, took the constitutional oath in Black's office in the Supreme Court building.

"I sorta got sworn in," the new justice told a newsman after word of the swearing-in session leaked out. Marshall, 59, said he will begin work in his new job Tuesday.

THE OATH OF OFFICE also was administered to Paul R. Ignatius, the new secretary of the Navy. Ignatius, former assistant secretary of defense for installations, was sworn in by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

AFTER THREE WEEKS of closed hearings on the air war against North Vietnam, the Senate Preparedness Investigation subcommittee urged President Lyndon B. Johnson to scrap his policy of "carefully controlled" bombing and listen to the advice of his Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The subcommittee members said that unless the bombing was widened to include all targets recommended by the top military men "we cannot, in good conscience, ask our ground forces to continue their fight in South Vietnam."

The senators called for closing the port of Haiphong, stepping up attacks against Hanoi's lines of communications with Red China, and "striking all meaningful targets with military significance."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield joined President Johnson in insisting that the administration is not seriously divided over the way the air war is going against North Vietnam.

In Hanoi, meanwhile, Premier Pham Van Dong insisted that the U.S. air raids must halt before peace talks could begin. At the same time he apparently ruled out any mutual de-escalationn formula that could lead to negotiations.

"If the American side really wants to talk, it must first of all stop unconditionally the bombing of North Vietnam and all other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of North Vietnam. The United States has no right to demand any reciprocity whatsoever," he declared at a meeting celebrating the 22nd anniversary of the North Vietnam nation.

IN HIS FIGHT TO BUILD a Great Society, President Johnson lost a round to one Senate committee but won a round from another.

The Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee defied Johnson by adding a $2.8-billion ghetto job plan to the administration's antipoverty bill. As approved by a 10-6 vote, the emergency job plan would provide $2.5 billion in the next two years for 200,000 jobs and also would make available $300 million for loans to small businesses damaged or destroyed in city riots.

The bill sent to the Senate floor carries a $5-billion price tag, including $2.25 billion for the administration's antipoverty measure.

Meanwhile, the Senate Appropriations Committee approved Johnson's request for $40 million to run the controversial rent-subsidy program. The committee also appropriated $537 million for model cities projects. Both moves were hailed by Johnson who said the sums would "go far toward solving the critical problems of our cities."

MANY OF THE NATION'S leading steelmakers ignored a government request to hold the line on prices and announced increases in the cost of steel bars.

Republic Steel Corp. started it off Wednesday when it ordered a 1.8 per cent hike. U.S. Steel followed on Thursday, and Bethlehem Steel, Inland Steel, Jones & Laughlin and Armco announced similar increases on Friday. All the firms blamed rising costs for the increases.

THE PROSPECT OF AN automobile strike grew stronger last week.

The Big Three automakers—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler — made their first offers to the United Auto Workers after weeks of labor contract negotiations.

The union promptly called the proposals "inadequate and inequitable."

UAW President Walter P. Reuther charged at a news conference that the automakers were conspiring to shut down the entire industry. He said the UAW would go ahead with its plans to strike only one company at a time.

On Friday, the union picked Ford as the company it would bargain with in an effort to agree on a pattern-setting contract.

THE MAFIA, WHICH HAS LONG had almost a monopoly in the smuggling of heroin into the United States, is reportedly letting Spanish-speaking racketeers take over a large part of the import business, the New York Times Service reported last week.

Federal investigators and some local prosecutors report lessened Mafia activity in narcotics and a substantial increase in direct dealings by Cuban and South American nationals with the French-Corsican heroin manufacturers and their Canadian agents. Their findings are based on recent seizures and on some cases still under investigation, but they are unwilling at this time to predict how far the trend may go.

At present, the Mafia still has substantial interests in narcotics and its members control interstate distribution.

New York is the main distribution point for the rest of the nation.

STRONG WINDS WHIPPED forest fires into a frenzy in the northwest U.S. and Canada where parched brush and timberlands ached for September rain.

Many recreation areas were blocked to campers, fishermen and hikers for the Labor Day holiday.

In British Columbia, the big Sushwap Lake Burn blackened more than 30,000 acres.

On the U.S. side of the international line, wind caused several fires to "blow up." A 1,000-acre fire eight miles north of Pollach, Idaho, was out of control Friday and an 800-acre blaze raged out of control only a mile-and-a-half from Plummer, Idaho.

Progress was reported in containing other fires in Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada and Montana.

POLICE ACROSS THE NATION turned out in full force in a "bring 'em back alive" campaign as Americans clogged the highways in the traditional manner for summer's last holiday weekend, Labor Day.

But the National Safety Council predicted 560 to 660 persons would die in traffic despite all precautions and another 23,000 to 26,000 would suffer disabling injuries.

MILWAUKEE POLICE FIRED tear gas into the school yard of a Roman Catholic Church Friday night minutes after breaking up a march of young civil rights demonstrators.

The tear gas was fired after a shower of rocks came from clusters of youths who gathered in the churchyard after the march was stopped cold by police lines soon after it began.

The playground of St. Boniface Roman Catholic Church was the staging point for the demonstration in defiance of and in protest against a proclamation by Mayor Henry Maier banning demonstrations.

The edict was to expire Saturday morning. Tear gas wafted into a convent of the Sisters of Notre Dame, assigned to the St. Boniface parish.

The nuns were in the yard at the time watching the demonstration — which moved only 30 feet from the property before police dispersed it. The fumes prevented them from returning to their quarters.

Police Chief Harold Breier would not comment on police handling of the march, but said he had not been at the scene when the tear gas was unleashed.

"You can't violate the law," Breier said. "You can't defy authority."

A GROUP OF COLLEGE STUDENTS in Pittsburgh launched a national drive to advance the political career of California's Gov. Reagan because they believe "Reagan is more in the main stream of the Republican Party than Gov. Rockefeller" of New York.

"Reagan has the sort of youthful political appeal attributed to John F. Kennedy, and he unified the party in California," said Charles L. Williams Jr., a political science student at North Carolina University.

Williams is president of the student group backing Reagan. The group made known its presidential preference at the national convention of Young Americans for Freedom (YAF), a group of conservative young people. YAF has not endorsed anyone for the presidential nomination.

A BATTLE WITH A CIVIL WAR flavor is raging in government and the 83-year-old widow of a former secregovernment and the 83-year-old widown of a former secretary of the Navy. The stakes: her 84-year-old house.

And, here's the rub: Mrs. Katherine Goff's three-story mansion is situated right in the middle of town, a spot where the City Council has decided would be ideal for a $360,000 municipal parking lot.

The council has tried for years to buy the property, but Mrs. Goff has refused to sell. She is the widow of Nathan Goff, Civil War general and secretary of the Navy under President Benjamin Harrison.

Three of the four heirs to the house and its 1.18 acres of land have already deeded their options over to the city, but Mrs. Goff remains adamant in her rejections of city offers.

Speculation has it that Mrs. Goff got her fighting spirit from General Goff. She lives alone in the huge home and only holds claim to it until she dies.

But, the Clarksburg City Council has decided to begin condemnation proceedings which could take Mrs. Goff's home from her by force.

THE WORLD

In the predawn darkness, black-clad Viet Cong guerrillas crept up on a U.S. medical clinic at Hoi An, South Vietnam. Moments later they launched a horrifying, heartless attack in which patients were machine-gunned in their beds and shot down trying to limp to safety.

By the time the guerrillas were driven out after hand-to-hand fighting, the blood of the patients, hospital attendants and troops was splattered on the walls, smeared on the floors and soaked into the dirt.

The death toll was one American Marine, 18 Vietnamese soldiers, nine children, an unknown number of civilian adults and six Viet Cong. Eleven U.S. servicemen and 35 Vietnamese civilians were wounded.

The assault was one of scores of devastating terror attacks launched by the Viet Cong during the week in an effort to frighten South Vietnamese into staying away from the polls in the national election today. The Viet Cong hit villages and cities from the northern provinces of South Vietnam to the Mekong Delta and set off bombs from Hue to Saigon. More than 1,000 civilians were killed and some 100 young South Vietnamese were "drafted" at gunpoint.

The 22 prominent Americans hand-picked by President Johnson to watch for cheating fanned out across the country with observers from 27 other countries. Johnson has called the election a vital step toward democracy in South Vietnam.

THE BRITISH AND Red Chinese were at it again.

Members of the Communist Chinese mission in London, armed with clubs, iron bars and axes, brawled with British policemen after an argument over removing an unmarked police car stationed near the Chinese office.

In another incident, Red Guards demonstrated outside the British mission in Peking and manhandled Charge d'Affaires Donald C. Hopson.

Both demonstrations stemmed from the recent jailing in Hong Kong of several pro-Communist Chinese newsmen and the suspension of three left-wing newspapers.

The incidents pointed up the rapidly deteriorating ties between the two countries — ties that Britain hopes to maintain. In an effort to ease the tense situation, Foreign Secretary George Brown appealed on Thursday to Peking to restore more normal diplomatic relations.

It's Twins' Turn Again!

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Ted Uhlaender ripped three hits to drive in three runs and Dave Boswell checked Detroit on six singles Saturday, sparking Minnesota to a 5-0 victory over the faltering Tigers.

Boswell, 12-9 with three shutouts, weathered some hard shots by the Tigers in the early innings to best 17-game winner Denny McLain.

McLain blanked the Twins on two hits through four innings but contributed to his own downfall with an error in the fifth. Tony Oliva led off with a line single to center. McLain, trying to pick him off first, threw wildly and Oliva raced to third. Cesar Tovar's sacrifice fly then broke the scoreless tie.

The Twins added two more runs in the sixth when they banged four hits off McLain, 17-15, to send him to the showers. Boswell started it with a one-out double into the left field corner and scored on Uhlaender's single to right center. Rod Carew forced Uhlaender, then moved to third on Harmon Killebrew's single and scored on a single by Oliva. Fred Gladding, who relieved McLain, ran into trouble in the seventh when the Twins padded their lead on Tovar's single, a hit batsman, a sacrifice and Uhlaender's third hit — a two-run single.

Red Sox Fall to Chisox

Horlen Baffles Boston Off Top

Combined News Services

BOSTON — Joe Horlen's six-hit pitching and Tom McCraw's two-run first inning single led the Chicago White Sox to a 4-1 victory over Boston Saturday and dropped the Red Sox out of first place.

McCraw's key hit came as the White Sox jumped on Jim Lonborg for three runs with two out in the first.

Tom Agee drew a walk to launch the rally and went to third on Pete Ward's single. Rocky Colavito doubled for the first run and then McCraw delivered his single.

Chicago picked up another run in the sixth when Ron Hansen beat out an infield hit and scored on one of Walt Williams three hits in the game, a double.

Horlen collected his 15th victory as he walked only two and struck out four. He gave up the Boston run in the fourth when Reg Smith tripled and scored on Ken Harrelson's infield out.

The Red Sox had base runners in five other innings but didn't threaten seriously while falling behind in the four game series, one win against two defeats.

Lonborg failed to go the distance for the 11th time in 13 home starts this season. Despite an 18-7 record, he boasts only two complete game triumphs at Fenway, the last on May 19 against Cleveland.

RIGNEY, ADCOCK FEUD

Angels Win in 12th

By ROSS NEWHAN

His bat had once been a transfusion for Bill Rigney, but now bad blood exists between Joe Adcock and the manager of the Angels.

Rigney and Adcock exchanged words in the office of general manager Fred Haney Friday, on the eve of the current three-game series, this paper has learned.

The dialogue was brief, but sharp.

So was the pitching at the Big A Saturday night, George Brunet and Luis Tiant matched three-hitters through regulation rounds before the Angels won it for Minnie Rojas over Bob Allen in the 12th 1-0.

The hero again, emulating his actions of Wednesday night when he reversed Angel momentum with a ninth-inning triple, was Bubba Morton.

Bubba again busted a triple up the rightfield line and running, lumbering stumbling from first came Don Mincher.

Rightfielder Chuck Hinton had the ball as coach Billy Herman gave the 29-year-old, 210-pound Mincher the go-ahead.

Hinton missed the cutoff man with his throw and it painfully dribbled toward the plate. Mincher dove head first and not even the Rams Front Four could have stopped him.

The Angels rushed from the dugout and Adcock turned forlornly toward the clubhouse.

It was so typical of the tense, frustrating struggles played between the Rig's and Adcock's this season.

Now Cleveland has lost 13 of those 17 confrontations and the Angels have won six in their final at-bat.

On Friday night, Adcock watched his club collect 14 hits, strand 12 and blow a 3-2 ninth-inning lead.

A few hours before, he had stormed, into Haney's office with a copy of a story which had appeared in the Independent, Press-Telegram of Aug. 25.

It was the day after the Indians had edged the Angels, 2-1, in the finale of a four-game series in Cleveland.

Adcock had circled in red the following quote by Rigney:

"When we lose to the Indians," snapped the Angels' manager, "I feel like fining every one of my players."

With the story in hand, Adcock addressed Haney:

"I'm going to put this up in the clubhouse. I'm going to let it explode right in Rig's face."

At that moment, Rigney entered Haney's office.

"Listen, Bush," he growled at Adcock, "you won't need to put it on the bulletin board. I'll have it flashed on the message board so that everyone can see it."

Haney, as if a trial judge, gaveled for order. Adcock and Rigney glared at one another and then the Cleveland manager departed as the Angels skipper took a seat, preparatory to a private meeting with his general manager.

When he emerged, Rigney was asked to expound on the statement which aroused Adcock's anger.

"I simply hate to lose to the Indians," said Rig. "Every year the faces are the same. The talent is there, but it never goes anywhere."

Adcock was at the batting

Billie Jean Continues March Toward Title

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Wimbledon champ Billie Jean King, sharpshooting with a new steel racket, breezed into the third round of the U.S. tennis championships Saturday but Australia's veteran Roy Emerson had to pull through a five set nightmare against 21-year-old Jim Osborne of Honolulu, to keep his title hopes alive.

Mrs. King, favored to give the United States its first women's crown since 1961, whizzed past junior Wightman Cupper Becky Vest of Jackson, Mississippi, 6-2, 6-2, with complete control of all her shots off a steel-framed gut-strung racquet she adopted only a few weeks ago.

Then, with one seeded men's favorite knocked out earlier in the day, when Denmark's Jan Leschly bowled over fifth-seeded Cliff Drysdale of South Africa, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5, Emerson quickly found himself another potential upset victim against the sandy-haired kid from Honolulu who had sharpened his game on a European tour this summer.

Osborne, ace of the University of Utah team, went all-out behind a blooming service before crumbling at the finish under Emerson's unshakeable pose. The score was 7-9, 10-8, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4.

Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, seeded-seventh as America's chief hope of winning the men's crown for the first time in 12 years, hammered out a 9-7, 6-4, 6-2 victory over India's Jaidip Mukerjea, but Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., another Yank hope, was beaten in four sets.

Australia's Bill Bowrey, winner of the recent grass courts tournament at Newport, Rhode Island, bounced out Riessen 2-6, 6-3, 6-1, 6-0.

Fourth-seeded Nico La Pilic advanced in a rugged match against Leslie Buck of Montclair, N.J., Princeton's team captain, 3-6, 9-7, 6-2, 6-3, and Pan-American Games runner-up Herb Fitzgibbon of Garden City,

DODGERS CHANGE EVALUATION

Singer Not Another Koufax, Yet

By GEORGE LEDERER
Staff Writer

ATLANTA — The Bill Singer comparison to Sandy Koufax has subsided and Walter Alston now suggests a long-range view, as does Dodgers general manager Buzzie Bavasi.

Bavasi says Singer has the potential "to earn as much money as any Dodger pitcher has in one season," meaning the $125,000 Koufax drew last year. "Naturally, this isn't going to happen overnight."

Alston says it can't happen until Singer "learns to overcome adversity, to recover from a bad outing and come up with a good one. Don Sutton is in the same category. Both have to learn that the game isn't that easy."

It has been anything but easy the last two times out for Singer and Sutton.

Singer was the starter and loser Saturday night as the Braves shelled the Dodgers, 8-2. The night before, Sutton had allowed four runs and seven hits in 3 1-3 innings.

After a seven-game winning streak with an earned run average of 0.90, Singer has allowed 10 runs, eight earned, in his last 7 2-3 innings and lost twice.

"He didn't have his best stuff either time," said Alston. "He also let some other things bother him."

Koufax, too, might have been bothered by a series of incidents that led to a five-run second inning for the Braves Saturday.

It began with two close calls at first base, both against the Dodgers. Mack Jones and Mike de la Hoz led off with infield hits and a single by Denis Menke equalized a double by Ron Fairly in the Dodger half and made it 1-1.

Singer (9-6) was upset and walked winning pitcher Pat Jarvis, a .102 hitter who had been walked only once in 59 previous times up. With the bases full and one out, Lou Johnson dropped Felipe Alou's pop fly to shallow left, allowing the lead run to score and making another unearned.

A two-run single by Tito Francona and a single by Joe Torre completed the 11-batter inning and the Dodgers trailed 5-1.

They didn't come close to catching up against Jarvis, a winner for the 14th time in 20 decisions. Jarvis yielded eight hits, three of them doubles, but the Dodgers had the leadoff man on base only once and had successive hits only once.

Bob Bailey and pinch-hitter Len Gabrielson singled to start the seventh inning, but Nate Oliver hit into a force, Willie Davis struck out and Johnson flied out.

Davis was guilty of a major booboo in the third inning. With the Dodgers down 5-1 and one out, Davis singled and was out trying to stretch it as Alou juggled the ball momentarily in center field.

It was 6-1 before the Dodgers scored again on Bailey's double and a single by Oliver in the fifth.

Atlanta's last two runs were unearned, at the expense of Phil Regan in the

Port Fight Stable Has Horses for World Titles

Little doubt now exists that almost overnight Wilmington's Jackie McCoy and his silent partner, Lee "Gabby" Prlia, have put together probably the No. 1 fight stable in the world.

Dapper Jackie, who stands 5-7 and weighs a trim 149, isn't the type boxing manager you usually see in the movies or hanging round gyms. He's a clean-cut individual who makes certain his fighters' money goes to them, usually into the bank or into a trust fund.

The McCoy-Prlia combination boasts four top boxers with an impressive, combined 89-6-4 record:

Andy (Kid) Heilman, fifth-ranked middleweight now fighting out of San Pedro, is 35-3-3.

Mando Ramos, the 18-year-old fourth-ranked junior lightweight from Long Beach, is 18-1.

Richard Steele adds icing on the McCoy-Prlia cake. A light heavyweight, Steele is 5-1, with four knockouts in those six matches.

Not Cocky, but confident, McCoy believes he'll have three world champions before the end of 1968—Rojas, Ramos and Heilman. Within two years he thinks Steele will have the lightheavy title draped over his shoulders.

"Rojas already is the junior lightweight champ," points out McCoy. "Ramos definitedy has shown everyone he can be the lightweight champ in about a year and I really think Heilman, who's strong as a bull, can beat any middleweight in the world right now."

Rojas and Heilman will be showcased shortly (Sept. 14) on the same card at the Olympic Auditorium. Raul will defend his world crown against the tough Korean, Suh Kang Il, in a 15-rounder, with Heilman meeting Irish Mike Sevier (19-3), Pacific Northwest middleweight champ from Portland, in a 10-rounder.

Rojas is a slight 6-5 favorite now, with Heilman on the long end of early 2-1 odds.

The ancient Olympic will be sold out. Prlia saw to that, in part, when he secured 700 tickets for his harbor area fans alone.

ROJAS WILL BE ON A VENDATTA when he fights Kang. Two months ago Kang handed Raul's younger stablemate, Ramos, his first loss. Even though the decision was close, Mando was over his head against the far more experienced Korean and accepted the match only as a favor to McCoy and the Olympic group since Raul, originally slated to oppose Kang, had been floored by the flu.

Thus, a comparison took place immediately between Rojas and Kang. A powerful body puncher, Rojas has scored 24 knockouts, but Kang never has been on the deck, let alone knocked out, in some 60 matches.

"Someone has to go," says McCoy. "I know Rojas is strong. I think he's the strongest man in the world in his class. Yet we all saw Kang. He's tough, fast and experienced. But if young Mando carried him the distance—and he's neither as strong yet nor as experienced as Rojas—I've got to give Raul a great knockout chance."

Put this in your book: The opinion here is that Kang will be flattened by Rojas.

HEILMAN IS ANOTHER STORY. Almost forgotten with the publicity given the Rojas-Kang event is the fact that "The Kid" will return to the Southern California ring the same evening. "The Kid" turned 'em away in Oakland during his last three fights and is a real hero in that bay area city.

From Fargo, N.D., Heilman has been a Southland resident seven years and has moved into title contention for a shot at the 160-pound crown now held by Italy's Nino Benvenuti.

If you watched the Olympic fights on television Thursday night, you got an idea of what Oakland thinks of the Dakota Kid and what he thinks of Oakland. Heilman interrupted his between-fights interview with Mickey Davies to "say hello to all my wonderful friends and supporters in Oakland."

Sadly, Mickey had to inform Heilman that the telecast wasn't being beamed into the northern city.

HEILMAN MADE quite a financial haul in those last three Northen California fights. "The Kid" drew more than $135,000 in purse money, which is quite a step up the ladder from when he was making $50 and $100 purses in his preliminary days hereabouts.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

"It's hard to believe," commented Oakland promoter Don Chargin, who works closely with the Olympic Auditorium's Aileen Eaton, "but Andy's as popular up north as any fighter in Southern California, including Mando Ramos. His last three fights in our Oakland Sports Arena all drew over 10,000 fans."

Such are the vagaries of boxing. Rojas and Ramos were instant attractions in the Southland, while the Dakota Kid had to gypsy north to start a true following.

"THE KID" HIT the coveted "top 10" bracket after his last Southland fight in '66 at the Olympic when he put on a sparkling show by battering well-regarded Florentino Fernandez. He's been in the "top 10" ever since . . . and the middleweight branch of the fisticuff family always is loaded with talent.

"I've never known Andy to put on a bad fight," remarks McCoy. "He never takes a step backwards and that's what the crowd loves.

"We've been promised a shot at the winner of the Nino Benvenuti-Emille Griffith championship fight this month in New York. I honestly feel neither of those two could handle Andy."

Be that as it may, McCoy and Prlia have quite a stable and give one something about which to ponder — possibly four world champions from the Long Beach area.

Giusti's 3 Wild Pitches Tie Record

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Dave Giusti uncorked three wild pitches in the first inning to help St. Louis score four runs and the National League leading Cardinals pounded Houston 8-2 Saturday night. The win hikes the Cards' season-high lead to 12 games.

The Cardinals spotted Houston two runs in the top of the first inning, but rallied to take the lead for good in the bottom of the first.

Giusti gave up an infield single to Lou Brock in the bottom of the first. He walked Curt Flood, Bob Tolan lashed a single and McCarver walked. All four scored, helped by the three wild pitches, which ties a league record.

Bucs Explode Guns on Phils

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Willie Stargell, Roberto Clemente and Gene Alley drove in a total of seven runs Saturday night, leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 9-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies behind the eight-hit pitching of one-time relief specialist Al McBean.

McBean, who raised his record to 5-3, won his second consecutive game and went the distance for the second time since turning starter. He walked five and struck out one.

The Pirates jumped on loser Jim Bunning for four runs in the first inning and Stargell put the game beyond reach in the fourth with his 19th homer off reliever Bob Boozer behind singles by Maury Wills and Matty Alou.

Wills doubled in the first and scored on Clemente's triple. Wills singled in the second, took third when Alou's grounder went through second baseman Cookie Rojas' legs for a two-base error and scored on Clemente's sacrifice fly.

3 HITS FOR OLLIE BROWN

McCovey Slams Reds, 4-3

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie McCovey drove in three runs with a homer and triple Saturday night, propelling the San Francisco Giants to a 4-3 victory over Cincinnati.

Righthander Ron Herbel was breezing along with a 4-1 lead and a three-hitter until Vada Pinson led off the ninth with a home run. One out later, Lee May singled and Herbel was replaced by Frank Linzy, who gave up singles by Tony Perez and Art Shamsky for another run before getting the last out.

McCovey socked a run-scoring triple in the third inning after Jesus Alou's lead-off single.

In the sixth, Reds starter Sammy Ellis, (7-10), walked Willie Mays and McCovey followed with his 24th homer of the season.

Ellis left the game in the eighth after Ollie Brown doubled for his third hit. Brown scored what turned out to be the winning run on Hal Lanier's single off reliever Ted Abernathy.

The Reds, blanked 1-0 in Friday night's 21-inning marathon with the Giants, finally ended their scoring famine when Tommy Harper homered in the sixth.

Mantle's Pinch HR Wins for Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle's first homer in nearly a month — a two-run, pinch-hit shot in the eighth inning — gave the New York Yankees a 2-1 victory over Washington Saturday night.

Bob Priddy (3-6), had held the Yanks to two hits until the eighth, but Bill Robinson singled leading off the inning, stole second and went to third when catcher Paul Casanova's throw went into center field.

Mantle, hitting for Ruben Amaro, then drove a 3-2 pitch into the right-field stands for his 21st homer of the season and his first since Aug. 7.

Priddy singled in the sixth and later scored on Ken McMullen's single off Mel Stottlemyre, 14-11, who gave up just six hits.

DIS AND DATA — Bob Miller, who feared his right hand might be broken, will be able to pitch by the time the Dodgers open their 9-game home stand Wednesday night . . . X-rays showed no fracture and the swelling had decreased considerably in 24 hours . . . Miller stopped Tito Francona's line drive on the knuckles of his middle and index fingers for the final out Friday night . . . the ball also left a large bruise on Miller's left leg, just above the knee . . . "I felt like a pinball machine," said Miller. "The ball hit me all over."

Ron Hunt and Al Ferrara, still recovering from injuries, were dropped from the sterling lineup Saturday . . . Hunt still is bothered by a pulled groin muscle, Ferrara by a jammed left shoulder . . . Ferrara, who leads the Dodgers with 14 home runs as a platoon player, believes he could hit "25 or 30, maybe more if I played every day" . . . Frank Howard holds the L.A. Dodger record for most homers in one season, 31 in 1962.

Don Drysdale (16-13) pitches against knuckleballer Phil Niekro (10-7) in the final 1967 meeting of the Braves and Dodgers this afternoon . . . The Dodgers lead the season's series, 10-7, but the Braves have won six of eight here . . . Claude Osteen and Jim Brewer pitch for the Dodgers in the Labor Day doubleheader at Chicago, concluding the next-to-last trip.

DODGERS OF DAY

LEN GABRIELSON and BOB BAILEY each doubled and singled as Dodgers lost to Braves, 8-2.

Beban Propels Bruins in Scrimmage

The Beban Bomb, a weapon that propelled UCLA into the national football spotlight the last two years, was on display Saturday as the Bruins went through their first offensive scrimmage of the pre-season.

All-America Gary Beban tossed a 60-yard strike for a touchdown to end Dave Nuttall and completed seven of 11 passes in the scrimmage.

Perry Deserves Overtime

Pitching more than nine innings is nothing new to Gaylord Perry, but 16 innings is carrying things a bit far!

"My arm was so tired I couldn't lift it," Perry said after working seven innings of overtime in Friday night's 21-inning Giant-Reds affair. "Herman (Franks) asked me how I felt in the 14th and I told him I wanted to stay on — but I had just about had it in the 16th."

Perry pitched 12 innings against the Mets and 11 innings against the Cards this year.

Fasy, Tompkins Notch Wins in Rifle Matches

Theodore Fasy and Middleton Tompkins of Long Beach shot their way to victories at Camp Perry, Ohio, in the National Rifle and Pistol matches this week.

Fasy, putting 20 consecutive shots into the bullseye from 1000 yards, won the Leech Cup for high power rifle shooting. Fasy has been shooting only four years in competition and topped a field of 2,100 crack shots.

Tompkins scored 199 out of a possible 200 points to capture this year's Scott Match. Tompkins, a five time national champion, fired 20 bullseyes from a distance of 200 yards in rapid succession.

RICH ROBERTS

The Happiest Cardinal

"You gotta be happy wherever you go. You gotta look forward to going to the ball park. If you're not happy, baseball's no fun."—Orlando Cepeda of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The professional athlete, for basic purposes, is a piece of livestock subject to the businessman's demand of producing return on an investment.

When a thoroughbred breaks a leg, they shoot him. When a ballplayer wrecks his knee, they trade him. If they can.

The San Francisco Giants were lucky, then, when a high-priced piece of Puerto Rican merchandise named Orlando Cepeda came up gimpy a couple of years ago and they were able to horsetrade him for a milk wagon pitcher named Ray Sadecki.

Only one hitch: The thoroughbred got well, and is leading the runaway Cardinals down the home stretch in baseball's biggest stakes race.

Looking back, the knee was Cepeda's biggest break.

"Before I hurt my knee I was getting tired of baseball," he says today, basking among the highest batting averages in the National League. "But then after I hurt my knee they trade me to St. Louis. It hurt my pride. At first I was shocked because I was in San Francisco for so many years. My friends are all there.

"But I always say to myself, 'If they trade me I can do much better,' because things were going to be better for me. So I was very happy when they did it. I asked for it. I said, 'Trade me.'"

IF CEPEDA BECOMES, as anticipated, the league's most valuable player, Giant general manager Chub Feeney will have out-DeWitted the Cincinnati Reds, who swapped Frank Robinson to Baltimore.

However, in all fairness to Feeney, Cepeda never would have scored so well with the Giants.

"The Giants got one of the best owners in baseball," he says. "(Horace) Stoneham, he's a great man. But after him, the other people, it's more business than anything. They don't care too much about the players.

"They were good to me, the Giants, but they could have been much better, because after I had so many years I don't feel that I was treated right."

In Cepeda's years with the Giants they won a single pennant, under Alvin Dark when the Dodgers collapsed in 1962. But they lost the World Series to the Yankees in seven games. Orlando does not look back upon the year with warm memories.

"It wasn't fun for me, because I got benched two times in the World Series. I mean, the last game in the Series Dark benched me for no reason. So I didn't enjoy it at all."

The Kansas City Athletics, it was reported, wept when Charlie Finley fired Dark, yet many other players emote no grief for Alvin. It's perfectly understandable to Cepeda, who commented recently, "He took bread out of my mouth."

"Well, you know," he says, "I can be good to you — and I can be bad to somebody else. I never had a chance to get to him. Here, with Red (Schoendienst), we got communication much better. We don't talk much, but if I had anything personal I'm sure I can go to him and he can help me. Not Dark. I never have the confidence to go to him."

CEPEDA'S LATIN emotions are often less than skin deep. Even after two years it's hard to suppress the bitterness of those years when his talent largely went to waste.

"The year we won the pennant the club make a lot of money," he says, recalling personal statistics of ".310, 115 RBI, 36 home run — and they wanta cut my salary!"

After his smash season this year, he should have little trouble negotiating with the Cardinals but insists, "I don't even think about it, because sometimes you think too much. Things get tough for you. I just feel I'm a guy on the ball club.

"We got so many good guys on the ball club, every one a great guy. I do my share, Javier do his share, everybody do his share. Everybody try to help each other. It's a lot different than the other ball club."

84,236 See Packers, Vikings Triumph

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Green Bay Packers, spurred two long touchdown runs by Dave Robinson and Elijah Pitts, defeated the Cleveland Browns 30-21 in the second game of a National Football League exhibition doubleheader Saturday night.

Robinson's 62-yard run came after he picked up a blocked field goal, and Pitts ran 85 yards on a punt return.

A crowd of 84,236 saw the Packers, playing without the services of quarterback Bart Starr, come to life in the third quarter.

Down 14-13 at halftime, the Packers went ahead on a 21-yard field goal by Don Chandler, his third of the night. Then the world champions put it out of reach, giving them five straight preseason wins.

The middle of the Green Bay line blocked Lou Groza's 37-year field goal attempt and Robinson, a linebacker, grabbed it on the first hop. He beat holder Dick Shiner in a race down the sideline.

Pitts took Gary Collins' high, booming punt and was hit immediately, but trampled through heavy traffic and broke into the clear with only Collins in the way. He ran right by the Browns' flanker.

Zeke Bratkowski substituted for Starr, who is nursing bruised ribs, and kept the Packers close with a 25-yard touchdown pass to Carroll Dale in the second quarter.

The Browns stopped Green Bay six times within five-yard line in one series in the first half and Dale Lindsay raced 57 yards with an interception to set up the second touchdown pass to Collins.

In the opener, Minnesota's defense bottled up the Falcons and rookie quarterback John Hankinson turned two mistakes into tough touchdowns.

Carl Kassulke's pass interception and Dale Hackbart's mid-air fumble recovery set up the game's only two touchdowns.

RICHMOND RUNS UP 105-0 WIN

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Richmond Mustangs overwhelmed the Savannah Indians by the incredible score of 105-0 Saturday night in a United-American Pro Football League game.

Last week the Mustangs, coached by former Washington Redskins' back Dick James, romped over the Chattanooga Redskins, 73-0. Richmond opened its season three weeks ago with a 40-0 drubbing of the Georgia Raiders.

Chargers Rocked by NFL Again

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers built a 16-0 lead, mostly on the toe of Mike Clark, and then held off the San Diego Chargers for a 16-7 victory in San Diego Stadium Saturday night in an inter-league exhibition football game.

Clark accounted for 10 points with field goals of 38, 34, and 18 yards and one point after touchdown as the Steelers evened their pre-season record at 2-2.

Cal Fullback Lost

BERKELEY (AP) — Coach Ray Willsey says letterman fullback Rick Aschenbrenner may be lost to the University of California football team, and defensive halfback Gordon Johnson is out for the season because of an old ankle injury.

CAN'T GET ANY SLEEP

Success Hard on Allen

By AL LARSON

How does the head coach of one of pro football's two remaining undefeated, untied teams spend a day off?

"I didn't get to bed until 1 a.m.," George Allen said bright and early Saturday morning. "I woke up to phone calls. After I watch the baseball game on TV, I'm going to take the family to the beach and get away for a few hours."

Allen seemed even more elated over the Rams' scintilating 44-24 victory over the defending AFL champion Kansas City Chiefs than after walking off the field Friday night.

"I bet you'd given up on us at halftime," Allen laughed during a phone interview with this reporter. "But these guys believe they can beat anybody.

"We changed a few little things the second half (the Rams trailed 24-13 at halftime) such as calling fewer audibles on defense, and when our linebackers were red-dogging they came square across the line, hemming in (Pete) Beathard.

"Kansas City is a fine team, and we'd like to play them again — in the Super Bowl in January, that is.

"The only bad thing about the game was that we lost Rosey Grier for the rest of the season," said Allen. Grier, who underwent surgery Saturday on a torn Achilles tendon in his right leg, was chasing Mike Garrett in the second quarter when he suffered the injury. Nobody touched him. He simply lost his footing and fell.

"Rosey's not only a good football player, but a real asset to the team because of his attitude, leadership and experience. You don't replace a Rosey Grier very easy," Allen noted. "But that's part of the game. There's been a rash of injuries around the league. I think the reason is because there's a little more rivalry.

"Grier's loss puts a crimp in our plans. We lost Diron Talbert last week and now Grier. Dave Cahill filled in capably. We'll work Bruce Anderson in there starting Monday when we return to the practice field at Blair Field in Long Beach," Allen added.

Asked if there was any chance of making a trade for another defensive tackle, Allen said, "Good defensive linemen are scarce and not many coaches are willing to trade in this area."

Allen had these other comments:

On Gabriel: "The second half Gabe took over and threw and called with authority. I think the play

Channel 2, 11 a.m.

Gabe called when he passed on third-and-one to (Jack) Snow for the touchdown was the turning point."

The Rams were trailing 24-13 but took the opening third quarter kickoff and marched 90 yards for the first of 3 TDs in the period. With the Chiefs pinched in tight expecting the Rams to run a power play to pick up the first-down yardage on the K.C. 40, Gabriel faked a handoff into the center of the line and lofted the ball to Snow, who gathered it in on the 8 and stepped across for the TD that cut the gap to 24-20.

The same combination, Gabriel to Snow, worked 3 minutes later, this time on a 62-yard strike and the Chiefs never recovered.

On fullback Les Josephson: "He's been tremendous. He's got a lot of confidence now. With Dick Bass coming back next week for the 49er game, we'll work Josie at halfback this week."

Josephson became the first Ram runner to gain more than 100 yards (128) this summer, averaging 6.7 on 19 carries, including a 55-yard touchdown burst in the third period. Josie now has netted 342 yards in five starts, scored 4 touchdowns rushing and two via passes. Allen's problem, and it's a pleasant one, is finding room for the Augustana flash who's playing the best football in his 4-year pro career.

On Garrett: "We didn't set up any special defenses for him. We knew we had to tackle him high. If you hit him low he's hard to bring down."

Grier was operated on by Dr. Dan Levinthal. He will wear a cast for 5-6 weeks and it will be 2-3 months before he can start his rehabilitation. Said defensive captain Eddie Meador, in a reverent tone: "We lost a mighty fine player. Rosey Grier was playing the best football of his career (12 years). It's the same type injury that ended Alan Ameche's career. I doubt if he'll ever play again." Asked to evaluate the Chiefs, Meador said, "I don't believe they're accustomed to facing as strong a defense as the NFL teams throw up week after week."

Chiefs coach Hank Stram was envious of Gabriel's fine pass protection thrown up by Joe Carollo, Tom Mack, Charlie Cowan, Joe Scibelli and Ken Iman. "Our protection broke down and Beathard had to scramble for his life the second half," the Ram defense chased Pete into 4 interceptions, 3 in the last two quarters. After a 166-yard first half, the ex-Trojan quarterback completed only 5 of 17 for 61 yards during the rest of the game. Jack Pardee was credited with a key defensive play when he dumped Beathard for an 18-yard loss with the Chiefs perched on the Ram 29 following Noland Smith's 74-yard kickoff return early in the fourth quarter and K.C., trailing, 37-24.

It's been 13 years since Ram fans have seen their heroes win the first five pre-season games. The Rams have now won their last seven pre-season encounters, dating back to the final two games last year . . . Gabriel totaled 258 yards and 18 completions, including 8 of 9 in the third quarter . . . Bernie Casey wound up with 7 receptions for 70 yards while Snow doubled his season's output with 4 catches for 118 yards. His TD plays of 40 and 62 yards was first time Snow had scored this summer. Garrett, who averaged 2.8 yards against Green Bay in the Super Bowl, had 35 yards in 14 carries against the Rams . . . In the rest of battle Garrett squared off with Deacon Jones, but thought better, saying "He's too big to fight."

Cowboys Turn Back Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Don Meredith and Craig Morton divided the Dallas Cowboys of the NFL quarterbacking chores Saturday night for an untroubled 30-17 inter-league exhibition football victory over the Houston Oilers, who waited until the fourth quarter to show faint signs of life.

Together the Dallas quarterbacks completed 34 of 50 passes for 424 yards.

Meredith was in charge until the last minutes of the second quarter when he was shaken up slightly and retired for the evening.

4 Former Vikes Receive Praise

Four former Long Beach City College athletes, receivers Earl McCullouch and Ron Drake and defensive backs Pat Cashman and Mike Battle, received praise during Saturday drills at USC.

Head coach John McKay was delighted with the way McCullouch and Drake repeatedly beat defenders during a 40-minute passing drill.

Denver, Boston in AFL Opener Today

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The all-new Denver Broncos, riding their first three-game winning streak since 1962, try to extend their surprising pre-season success against the Boston Patriots in the American Football League season opener here today.

The Broncos, 4-10 at the bottom of the Western Division last season, enter the campaign with high hopes under coach Lou Saban, who has rebuilt the once docile Broncos into a fiery outfit.

Boston, nosed out of the AFL Eastern Division title last year with an 8-4 record, has had indifferent success this season but still boasts a potent offense with the league's best fullback in Jim Nance and veteran quarterback Babe Parilli. They are certain to offer a stern test for the rookie-studded Denver club.

Eagles Defeat Giants

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — The Philadelphia Eagles, after stopping a New York drive on the half-yard line, exploded for two fourth-quarter touchdowns Saturday and beat the Giants, 24-13, in a National Football League exhibition game.

Quarterback Norm Snead led the Eagles on a 99-yard drive in 10 plays to give the Eagles the go-ahead touchdown early in the fourth quarter. The final play was a 20-yard pass to flanker Ben Hawkins in the end zone.

Two minutes later the Eagles added an insurance touchdown after defensive back Ron Medved intercepted a Fran Tarkenton pass and took it to the Giants' 47. On the next play, a pass interference call put the Eagles on the Giants' 19. Two plays later Snead hit end Jim Kelly in the end zone.

Before the two touchdowns inside the first four minutes of the fourth quarter, the Eagles had trailed all the way and were unable to score in the first half.

49ERS, RAIDERS IN SELLOUT FRAY TODAY

OAKLAND — It's just another exhibition game, but a sellout crowd of 53,000 is expected at the Oakland Coliseum today when the Oakland Raiders and San Francisco 49ers clash for the first time in history.

Each team goes into the AFL-NFL test beaten the last two times out and somewhat racked up by injuries. Harrah's Tahoe racebook lists the NFL club a 10-point favorite.

The game features up as a test of 49er quarterback John Brodie's passing against a rugged Raider aerial defense. Coach Jack Christiansen has said that he will start Brodie and only use Steve Spurrier, the 49ers' number one rookie, if the occasion demands.

Coach John Rauch of the Raiders is prone to rate the contest as strictly an exhibition and stress that the Raiders are girding for the Sept. 10 season opener with Denver.

PALMER MISSES CARLING CUT

Player Bolts Into Lead

WOODBRIDGE, Ont. (AP) — Gary Player, the little health food fadist from South Africa, bolted into the second-round lead of the Carling World Golf Tournament with a 36-hole score of 137 Saturday — and Arnold Palmer simply bolted.

Player, one of four men ever to win all the world's major professional championships, carved out a three-under-par 68 for his second trip around the 7,024-yard Board of Trade Country Club course and established a two-stroke lead over Al Geiberger and Lee Trevino, tied for second at 139.

Trevino, a glib young club pro from El Paso, Tex., on his first professional tour, shot a solid 69 and Geiberger, the lean former PGA champion, had a sparkling 67, five under par.

But Palmer, the all-time leading money winner, took his second successive 75, three-putting six greens, and took off for home before even waiting to see if he had made the cut.

"I'm going to take a rest," said the muscular millionaire from Latrobe, Pa. "I'm beat mentally."

Tied for fourth at 140 were lefty Bob Charles of New Zeland, Doug Ford and Johnny Pott. Pott had the day's best round, a spectacular 65, while Charles and Ford each recorded a 69.

A large group, including two time former U.S. Open champion Billy Casper and flamboyant Chi Chi Rodriguez of Puerto Rico trailed at 142.

Jack Nicklaus, winner of the Westchester Classic last week, is not competing.

Player, who clipped off three birdies without a bogey, credited a borrowed driver with being a big factor in his round.

Gary explained that Bob Nerwey, his brother-in-law, had put a new face on his driver, and he had difficulty with it while shooting a two-under-par 69 Friday. So he gave it away.

"I told the chap I gave it to that it's good only on the fairways that have dogleg left," he said.

He bowed a driver from Murray Tucker, the host pro, and warned, "He's not getting it back."

Lionel Hebert, a tour veteran from Lafayette, La., was one of the last to finish and came in with a 141, alone in that position.

Notre Dame: No. 1 All the Way

There will be no great change in college football's "power structure" if the 1968 season follows form.

The great majority of teams which gained national ranking and bowl bids a year ago will be very much in the limelight again this season.

Notre Dame, of course, is the odds-on choice for the No. 1 spot, which the Irish captured last year in a close finish with Michigan State after they played a dramatic 10 10 tie in their big showdown.

The Irish return only four offensive starters along with eight defensive regulars, but they have 19 second-stringers back to take up the slack along with excellent frosh replacements.

The Irish have size, speed, good depth and outstanding men in the key positions . . . stars like Terry Hanratty, Coley O'Brien, Jim Seymour, Kevin Hardy, etc.

There is little queston but what Notre Dame will be rated No. 1 as long as Ara Parseghian can keep them in the ranks of the unbeaten.

The top 10 standings will change through the season, but here are the best bets to be up there late in the campaign.

Alabama and Georgia. These two Southeastern giants do not play each other again this year and could well wind up as conference co-champioins once more. They also will stand ready to take over No. 1 if Notre Dame falters.

TEXAS. LONGHORNS FACE rugged schedule, but will be rated highly as long as unbeaten.

Nebraska or Colorado. Because of their reputation in recent years, Cornhuskers will be among top five or six as long as they keep winning. Colorado, of course, conceded best chance of knocking off Nebraska.

UCLA. Favorable schedule, especially if Bruins get over crucial opener with Tennessee.

Syracuse. Good schedule to be ranked high for a while. Meets UCLA in finale.

Tennessee. Vols will have outstanding team, but road will be tough with opponents like UCLA, Alabama, Georgia Tech, LSU and Mississippi.

Michigan State and Purdue. They finished 1-2 in Big Ten last year, figure to fight it out for title again this trip.

Miami. Hurricanes could have finest team in Florida history. They have 34 lettermen back from team which was 8-2-1 last year, including win in Liberty Bowl. Schedule only drawback. They must meet likes of Georgia Tech and Notre Dame in final two games.

USC. Trojans figured to have one of truly great teams in country, but schedule could trip them. They play brutal slate which includes Notre Dame, Michigan State, Texas, Washington and UCLA.

MEANWHILE, NO LESS than 13 of the 16 major bowl teams the past season have excellent chances of winning bids again this season. Here are the year-end results: Purdue over USC (Rose), Florida over Georgia Tech (Orange), Alabama over Nebraska (Sugar), Georgia over SMU (Cotton), Tennessee over Syracuse (Gator), Miami over Virginia Tech (Liberty), Texas over Mississippi (Bluebonnet), and Wyoming over Florida State (Sun).

In almost every instance, these 16 clubs will be as good or better than in '66 . . . and 13 are conceded excellent chances of winning bowl assignments again.

Even two of the other three have fair chances of making it, especially Georgia Tech. The Ramblin' Wreck will have a veteran club . . . but its bowl hopes will be dictated by a punishing schedule which will include such rivals as Notre Dame, Georgia, Miami and Tennessee. If they get over a couple of those teams, the bowl promoters will be after them.

Southern Methodist, surprise winner of the Southwest Conference crown last season, suffered heavy losses, but the Mustangs still must be given a fair chance to land a bowl spot of some kind.

Purdue, which could well win the Big Ten title, is the only bowl team which can be ruled out as a repeater. The Boilermakers will be ineligible to return to Pasadena under conference rules.

Joining the above teams as probable bowl contenders off pre-season estimates are Texas A&M, Arkansas and Texas Tech from the Southwest; Colorado from the Big Eight, and Tulsa from the Missouri Valley.

IN THE PACIFIC EIGHT, you must look once again to the annual "Biggest Game" between USC and UCLA on Nov. 18 to decide the issue, although Washington should make a spirited run for it. Stanford is the longshot.

In the Big Ten, Michigan State and Purdue finished 1-2 last year, and they figure to battle it out once again with Minnesota figuring to offer stiff opposition, while Ohio State is conceded the darkhorse role.

Michigan State loses only three of its top 22 men on offense — namely Clint Jones and Gene Washington. However, the great defensive unit of '66 must be rebuilt. Only four starters are back. Ten second-stringers return, but there was a big dropoff between the first two units a year ago.

Sixteen excellent prospects from a fine frosh team will help Duffy Daugherty's rebuilding program.

Purdue returns 13 starters and 19 of 22 second-stringers from its Rose Bowl crew, which lost only to the nation's top two clubs — Notre Dame and Michigan State.

The Boilermakers graduated Bob Griese . . . but in Dave Connors, they feel they have an adequate replacement.

OUIMET, 74, DIES AFTER LIFE OF GOLF

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Francis Ouimet, 74, who stunned the sports world by winning the U.S. Open golf championship as a 20-year-old caddie in 1913, died Saturday at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Ouimet, who devoted most of his life to amateur golf, was stricken with a heart attack Aug. 25.

The modest, pleasant, soft-spoken Ouimet, generally is regarded as the man who did the most to popularize golf in the United States.

He won major titles on two continents and turned in one of the greatest upsets in sports history when he copped the U.S. Open in 1913.

Advance for Lakewood On Shutouts

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. — Roger Teske and George Pearson hurled shutouts Saturday as Lakewood's M & M Charters defeated Dubuque, Iowa and the Rock Island Ill. Sports Shop 4-0 and 3-0.

The double win puts the Charters in the final game of the losers bracket against Allentown, Pa. at 5 p.m. today. The winner will then meet undefeated Harrelson Motors of Moline, Ill. for the championship.

If Harrelson wins, the tourney is over, but if Lakewood or Allentown should win another game will follow.

Dale Leach homered in the second inning to lead the five-hit attack off losing Rock Island hurler Jim Boender. Pearson pitched two-hit ball and struck out 11.

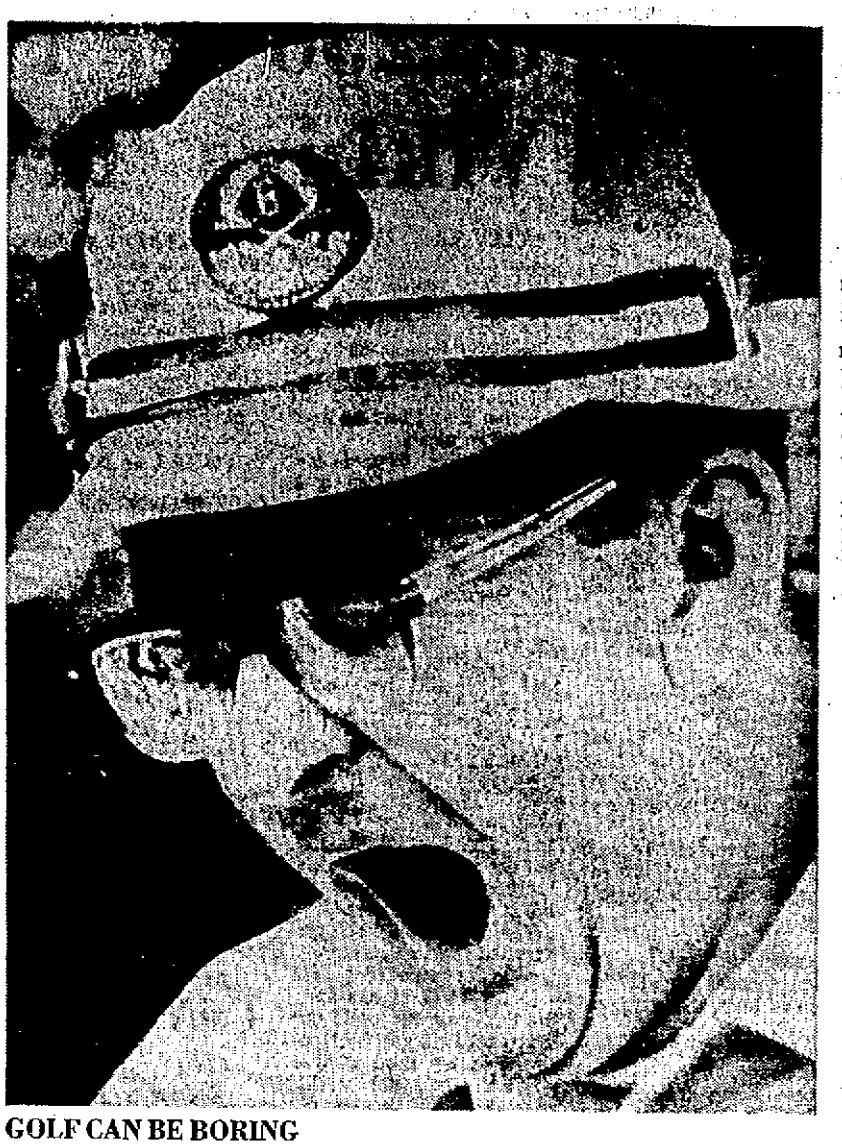

In the opener against Dubuque, Larry Owen's single with the bases loaded was the key blow in a Lakewood first inning three-run rally.

GOLF CAN BE BORING

German's 16-5 Tops U.S. Star

TOKYO (AP) — Ron Whitney's victory in the 400-meter hurdles gave the United States its 28th gold medal in the World University Games Saturday, and the U.S. basketball team moved to within one game of retaining its championship by trouncing Japan, 118-38.

The American team, however, suffered an unexpected setback when Heinfried Engel of Germany upset Bob Seagren of the University of Southern California in the pole vault.

Seagren, the world recordholder, leaped 16-5, the same as Engels' winning mark, but his pole dropped on the other side. The vault was discounted and he settled for a second-place silver medal.

The U.S. gold medal total of 28 is double that of Japan, whose 14 firsts are the next best record at the Games.

Whitney, of the University of Colorado, picked up the latest gold medal by edging into the lead on the homestretch and outrunning Britain's John Sherwood. Whitney's time of 49.8 seconds eclipsed the meet record of 50.0 held by a pair of Italians, S. Morale and R. Frinolli.

Led by Larry Miller of the University of North Carolina with 20 points, the U.S. basketball team scored virtually at will against the smaller Japanese.

Two American runners, Wade Bell and Ralph Doubell, won their heats in the 800-meter semifinal. Bell ran it in 1:50.4 while Doubell raced home in 1:49.6. Tommie Smith led the qualifying for the 200-meter final with a time of 21.0.

Last-Hole Putt Gives Miss Mann Ladies' Golf Lead

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Towering Carol Mann dropped in a three-foot putt on the final hole Saturday and joined Kathy Whitworth for the first-round lead with 2-under-par 69s in the $32,000 Ladies World Series of Golf.

The two pacesetters enjoyed a three-stroke advantage over veteran Mickey Wright, last year's series winner, who came in with a 35-37-72.

The 6-foot-3 Miss Mann, from Towson, Md., turned in a steady performance through 12 holes when she stood at three under par. But she hit traps on holes 13 and 16 for bogeys and missed the green on the 14th hole for another bogey.

OVERCOMES ERRATIC GOLF

Dickson Amateur Champ

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Bob Dickson, alternately brilliant and erratic, scrambled through the final 36 holes Saturday in over par and became the amateur golf champion of the United States — a title denied him two years ago because of a rules infraction.

Dickson posted a 285 total for his four rounds over the 6,946 rolling yards of the Broadmoor West course, carved out of the foothills of the Rocky Mountains in 1965.

A stroke behind him was Marvin (Vinny) Giles, a budding lawyer from Lunchburg, Va., who started the day three blows behind Dickson in the runner-up slot. They played head-to-head through Saturday's double round, a necessity brought about by Wednesday's rainout.

Dickson almost blew the title on the final hole when his drive landed in the woods, but he was given a free drop because his ball was close to a television cable. His fantastic par saved the crown that Giles threatened to take by getting a bird on the 71st hole.

The triumph made the 6-3 Oklahoma State graduate the third U.S. golfer to hold both the British and U.S. Amateur titles in the same year. The immortal Bob Jones did it in 1923 and Lawson Little in 1934 and 1935. One Briton also has done it, Harold Hilton in 1911.

The victory also salved some of the pains Dickson suffered two years ago.

In the second round of the 1965 Amateur, Dickson, now 23, discovered a 15th club in his bag at the second hole. The rules permit only 14. He reported the infraction himself but was penalized the limit of four strokes. He lost to Bob Murphy of Nichols, Fla., by one blow.

Dickson was drafted immediately after his British triumph June and had played only two full rounds since then until his arrival here a week ago. However, he had hit hundreds of practice balls on a polo field near his army base.

"I thought I had it for sure on No. 15," Dickson said, "when Vinny missed one from nine feet and I made it.

"From 15 on it was a little hard to breathe, right up here," Dickson said while grasping his neck with his hand.

Kings Out to Beat Lakers Into Forum

By RICH ROBERTS

Basketball may beat Jack Kent Cooke's hockey Kings to the punch in the new arena he built "Forum."

Between slices and shanks at the National Hockey League golf tournament in Buffalo, N.Y., last week, officials of the league and the CBS network were trying to figure out how the schedule could be re-arranged to get the Kings into the Forum the night of Dec. 30, one night ahead of the Lakers' New Year's Eve party with the San Diego Rockets.

"We think it can be worked out," said NHL public relations chief Don Ruck, whose main responsibility has been dealing with similar headaches of expansion. "But any change would involve five clubs."

The Kings are scheduled to play in Pittsburgh that night. It would be no big problem to switch that game to Inglewood, but traveling hardships — early morning arrivals the night of a game, etc. — would be imposed on the rest of the league.

The Forum is all put together at this point with only painting and the installation of fixtures remaining, so it should be ready by Dec. 30. The freezing pipes are down and covered by boards.

The Kings' scheduled debut there is Jan. 11, but Cooke, the NHL and CBS aren't likely to stand still for that.

After all, the Forum was built for hockey, under conditions of JKC's expansion franchise, and they aren't happy about letting basketball steal the show.

HOCKEY TALK

BLUE LINES: NHL statistician Ron Andrews cautions that the league schedule on printed cards available to the public will be a little late this year. Many changes are yet to come . . . The Kings' top ticket price will be $6. By comparison, the NHL gets $7.50 at Chicago, $6 at Detroit, $7 in New York and $4.75 in Boston . . . The NHL, coming around to modern methods with expansion, will have a direct teletype (TWX) link with all 12 clubs from its Montreal head office. Stats will be flashed over the hot line to Montreal from all points each Sunday night, compiled on a league basis, then fired back within a few hours for mail distribution to the media in each club's area the same day . . . The Kings failed to file a final card in the golf tourney because goalie Terry Sawchuk withdrew the second day, perhaps foreseeing the downpour that cut play back to 27 holes. Sawchuk was second low net after 18 holes at 68. He shot 104 but his handicap was 36 . . . Other Kings playing were winger Brian Smith, a 6-handicapper who went sour the first day trying to copy this writer's swing, and defensemen Bobby Wall and Doug Robinson . . . Incidentally, all are keenly interested in the Southland housing situation. Beach living appeals to them, but Sawchuk needs five bedrooms. He has seven kids.

TAY BROWN STRICKEN, IN HOSPITAL

Tay Brown, athletic director at Compton College, was reported in serious condition Saturday, suffering from a heart condition.

Brown, 56, was being treated in the intensive care ward of Viewpark Community Hospital.

The former USC all-America football star was stricken at his home Friday.

Brown played tackle and was captain of the undefeated 1932 USC team that beat Pittsburgh in the Rose Bowl.

For years he was one of Southern California's most successful junior college coahces. His teams at Compton played in the Junior Rose Bowl four times.

Baseball Corners Blue Cross Market

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The line drive came screaming off the bat of Roberto Clemente and caromed with shattering force off the right leg of Bob Gibson, the best pitcher on the St. Louis Cardinal staff.

When he toppled over with a broken leg, it seemed that the Redbird pennant hopes went tumbling with him.

The Card players were white faced and grim in the club house afterwards. Without their fireballing ace they had no chance. They had a tedious two-game lead—this happened on July 15 — and had been fighting for their lives all the way. Up spoke Mike Shannon.

"Now we'll find out what stuff we're made of," he said defiantly.

The Cardinals must be manufactured of pretty solid stuff. Since the mishap to Gibson, they have made a mockery of the National League pennant race, increasing their lead at one point to 11½ games and not dropping too far below it since.

Gibby is still out and probably will not return to action until shortly before the World Series.

IF THE REDBIRDS AVERTED disaster in spite of this crippling blow, other teams have not been that fortunate. Not in the memory of the oldest inhabitant has the injury jinx struck more brutal blows than this season.

The disabled list has been bulging all year with hospitalized performers, almost as if baseball wanted to preempt football's corner on the blue cross market.

The Phillies, for instance, have been hit from two directions. Even before the season began Bill White, a key man, tore a tendon while taking innocent conditioning exercises.

Missing most of the first six weeks, he has played with diminished effectiveness since. Across the infield from White was the hard rock of the Phils, Richie Allen.

A little more than a week ago another freak accident not only finished him for the year but may have ended his career. During a driving rain storm Allen was pushing his stalled car. He slipped and his right hand went through a headlight, cutting two tendons and severing a nerve.

THE CINCINNATI PENNANT hopes were drained through the injury funnel. Early in the year Tommy Harper crashed into a wall in Pittsburgh, fracturing his wrist.

Leo Cardenas broke a finger so badly that he had to be operated on an the gifted shortstop was sidelined for two months. Floyd Robinson made two visits to the disabled list and the Reds have had hospital trouble all year long.

Troubles? The Baltimore Orioles have been bedeviled by them since spring. Practically all their pitchers have had sore arms and this is such an occupational hazard that it isn't even being considered in this discussion.

But the worst blow came when Frank Robinson, the league's most valuable player and perhaps its most belligerent one, overdid a take out at second base. This is illegal according to the rules but the umpires wink at the practice.

Robbie thundered into second and threw a block at Al Weis of the White Sox in an effort to break up a double play. Wels departed for the year with a broken leg and Robbie lost a month when he emerged from the crash with double vision.

"Without Robbie," said manager Hank Bauer in the least original statement of the season, "we're like a ship without a rudder."

RUDDERLESS ALSO WERE the Detroit Tigers when Al Kaline, their best player, was sidelined for the month as the result of a freak accident.

Angry at being called out on strikes, Kaline returned to the dugout and petulantly jammed his bat into the rack. He broke his hand. Since the Bengals are now making a belated pennant rush, this could have been a fatal mishap.

Freak accidents? They are a dime a dozen. Don Cardwell of the Mets dislocated his elbow while batting and Juan Marichal was out three weeks after stepping in a hole at Shea Stadium, the only pitfall he ever found there.

Tony Conigliaro of the Red Sox was beaned, suffering a fracture of his cheek bone. However, the Bosox still have been winning without their glamor boy. He should be back before the World Series — presuming that the hub contingent makes it.

Let's see. What else is there? Dick Howser of the Yankees went out for the year with a broken hand and Jim Pagliaroni of the Pirates with a back injury that required traction.

Walter (no-neck) Williams of the White Sox broke his wrist, John Bateman of the Astros fractured his ankle, Felix Mantilla of the Cubs broke a leg, Lou Johnson of the Dodgers missed six weeks with a badly sprained ankle, Chris Short of the Phils tore ligaments in his knee.

Even before the season began Ted Davidson of the Reds was shot by his estranged wife.

For the first time in ages baseball men feel no sympathy for the football folk when they read about gridiron misadventures. The diamond operatives have had too many blue cross patients of their own.

YESTERDAY'S HEROES...

Legend of Tennis Carved in Marble

The Alice Marble-Helen Jacobs tennis matches of three decades ago were like TV reruns—they always came out the same.

Beauteous Alice took the measure of Miss Jacobs, herself one of tennis' all-time greats, three times in U. S. women's singles championship matches and many other times in less important tournaments.

"We were rivals, all right," concedes Miss Marble. "But we also were very close friends. There was nothing bitter about the rivalry."

Miss Marble won four national singles championships and was rated the No. 1 woman tennis player in the U.S. from 1936 through 1940. She won the Wimbledon "world" singles title in 1939, her greatest year. That year at Wimbledon, she added the women's doubles title with Sarah Palfrey Fabyan and the mixed doubles championship with Bobby Riggs. She won the same three U. S. championships, pairing with Harry Hopman for the mixed doubles.

One of her former pupils, Billie Jean Moffitt King of Long Beach, threatens to duplicate Miss Marble's 1939 record.

"I knew from the moment I first started working with Billie Jean that she had the athletic ability to be a champion," says Miss Marble. "Her temperment, however, was not good until the past couple of years."

Miss Marble is a strong advocate of "open tennis"—mixing of pros and amateurs in tournaments. Wimbledon officials are pushing open tennis and this year held a professional tournament on their courts.

"It would be just great for tennis," says Alice, "but it'll take a lot of doing to get it approved. The fact that the professionals played this year at Wimbledon, however, is an indication that progress is being made."

Tennis is still an important part of Miss Marble's life. She serves as manager and instructor of the Jamaica Sands Tennis Club near the Palm Desert Country Club.

"We have a wonderful club and I enjoy being here," she says. "I play some golf and occasionally rally with some of my tennis students."

How is the famous Marble tennis game?

"Old and tired," she jokes.

For those who have enjoyed the sheer beauty and artistry of an Alice Marble tennis performance, this could never be.

Japanese Ball Club to Arrive Today

Seventeen players on the Japan all-high school baseball team will arrive at Los Angeles International Airport this morning to prepare for their game with the Southern California American Legion all-star nine at Blair Field Tuesday night.

The game will start at 7:30 after ceremonies featuring Marvin Markers' Long Beach Youth Concert Band. Members of the city government, headed by Mayor Edwin Wade, will be on hand along with officials representing the State of California and Japanese Consulate.

This will mark the first in a series of home-and-home "Goodwill Games" between the two countries on the mainland. Games have been held between the Japanese and Hawaii schools for the past 14 years. The West Tokyo Little League team won the world title last week.

The Legion squad will be coached by Jack Graham, assisted by Hershel Musik of Santa Ana and Lou Berberet of Long Beach. The game is being sponsored by the 442nd Veterans Assn. George Yoshida is chairman and Art Parra is general chairman of the game.

Making the trip from Japan with the team are officers and directors of the Japan High School Baseball Federation headed by President Tatsuo Saeki. Yoshikik Hashimoto, Kazuo Himi and Hachiro Shibahashi will aid the president. Shuhei Teramoto and Seizo Fujimoto are members of the Japanese press, radio and TV traveling with the team.

This will be the only game featuring the two high school teams in Southern California.

LABOR DAY CLASSIC

Hot Inboards at Marine Stadium

By DAVE TAYLOR

A fleet of more than 85 of the Southland's hottest racing inboards will gun it off the Marine Stadium starting line Monday in Long Beach Pilot Club's 21st annual Labor Day speedboat classic.

Four divisions in the nine-class field, co-hosted by Southern California Speedboat Club, will sport at least two contenders each who either hold world records or national titles.

Sparking the rough-riding, two-man Cracker Box runabouts will be Van Nuys' Dick Maxwell in his The Broker, holder of the kilo straightaway, and Western champ Fred Miller of Sepulveda with Orangoutang. Also in the running will be Phil Shipley's Mr. Magoo, holder of the five-mile competition mark.

A jam-packed, hot Super Stock fleet will be led into the lists by Tony Maricich of San Pedro in his kilo record - holding Suddenly, Western champion Howard Brown in Super Suddenly and national rookie of the year, Don St. John of Inglewood in Shockwave.

Kingpins in other classes include Wayne Thompson of Reseda, Joe Schulte of Playa del Rey, Randy Meyer of Hollywood, Ron Larson of Long Beach, Rex Bixby of Costa Mesa and Western hydro champ Jerry Ballard of San Pedro.

Following early elimination heats for top-heavy classes, competition will start at 11 a.m. and is slated to conclude at 5 p.m. Expanded accommodations in the newly refurbished Marine Stadium provide ample free parking and space for family picnicking for fans during the races.

Teenage Matador to Face Bulls Today

TIJUANA — Eloy Cavazos, Mexico's popular teenage torero, returns to the scene of one of his biggest triumphs today at Plaza Monumental, the Bullring By-the-Sea.

Mauro Liceaga and Gabino Aguilar are also slated to appear in the Labor Day Weekend corrida that will start at 4.

TIGHT SQUEEZE IN A WET TURN

Warming up for competition in Long Beach Pilot Club's 21st Labor Day Inboard classic at Marine Stadium Monday, hydros go into high-speed turn that barely spares paint. More than 85 will race.

SHENOW MOWS DOWN 13 FILLY RIVALS

Dr. Fager Wins Sweepstakes

Combined News Services

Dr. Fager was pressed down to the finish line by In Reality Saturday but came through with a narrow victory in the $265,900 New Hampshire Sweepstakes Classic with a track record performance at Rockingham Park.

After yielding the lead with a little less than one-half mile remaining, Dr. Fager stuck his nose in front one-sixteenth of a mile from home and hit the finish line 1¼ lengths in front of In Realty with a time of 1:59 4-5.

Barbs Delight finished third in the field of five 3-year-olds with fourth going to Reason to Hail and Jim Bishop far back in last place.

As the prohibitive choice of the crowd of 26,843 on a very windy and chilly day Dr. Fager paid $2.40 and $2.20. There was no show betting. In Reality returned $2.20.

Shenow closed fast in the stretch under a hand ride by jockey Laffit Pincay Jr. to capture the $175,000 Arlington Lassie for 2-year-old fillies by 1½ lengths.

Shenow, one of the 5-2 favorites of the crowd of 30,554 among the 14 fillies in the field, paid $7.20, $4.00 and $3.00, while Ave Valeque stood off a stretch charge to finish second by one length and return $15.20 and $10.60. Third place went to Lucretia Bori, who paid $6.60.

Sweet Folly, off at 16-1, burst between horses at the head of the stretch and upset Gamely, the 4-5 favorite, in the $59,100 Gazelle Handicap at Aqueduct. Gamely finished fourth.

Sweet Folly ran the 1⅛ miles in 1:50 2-5, before a crowd of 50,575 and paid $34.40, $15.40 and $9. Treacherous returned $8.20 and $5 with Swiss Cheese $6.80 to show.

Munden Point showed his heels to nine rivals throughout the 22nd running of the $34,700 Kelly-Olympic Handicap at Atlantic City, leading all the way to score by five lengths.

Munden Point was timed in 1:50 4-5 in winning for the first time in four races this year and paid $15.40, $8.00 and $6.60. Exceedingly paid $13.20 and $10.20 and Margarethen returned $9.00.

cage when contacted for rebuttal.

"Rig can say anything he wants to about us," said Adcock. "But at least we didn't get to within one game of the lead and then collapse."

It is Cleveland, however, coming west with an opportunity to advance on the first division, which has folded faster than its suitcases which are packed, ready for a fast getaway today.

After losing 12 of the previous 15, the Angels have come roaring back to win three in a row, inching to within 7½ of the lead.

"All we need is a streak," said Rigney, a dream maker who was there in 1951 when the Giants, trailing by 13½ games in August, staged the miracle of Coogan's Bluff.

"Seven or eight in a row would put us right back in it," said Rigney. "This thing is going down the wire and we'll be right there."

There was nothing streaky about the pitching on a cool, clear night in Anaheim.

Brunet, fighting off the Indians and his 18th defeat which would equal Dean Chance's club record, yielded only four hits, walked two and fanned seven in a dazzling 11-inning tourney.

ANGEL ANGLES: Cleveland in its final appearance at Big A today when Rick Clark (9-10) faces John O'Donoghue (7-7) or Ed Connelly (2-1) . . . O'Donoghue and Connelly absorbed brunt of attack when Angels collected 25 hits and 16 runs in Cleveland . . . Clark has apparently regained his composure, yielding just two runs in last 15 rounds.

Catcher Rom Egan (.294 at El Paso) and third baseman Paul Schaal (.312 at El Paso) will join Angels Tuesday . . . Outfielder Jay Johnstone (.296 at Seattle) and pitcher Lew Burdette (4.50 ERA at Seattle) will join Angeles in Washington next weekend . . . Angels enthused over Egan's progress. The 21-year-old triple-threat from El Rancho High clouted 16 homers, drove in 72 runs and won all-star honors in Texas League.

Fast Dish Scores by Length in Rich Del Mar Debutante

DEL MAR — Fast Dish, a talented daughter of Fleet Nasrullah who hadn't raced in almost two months, came on like a fresh filly in the stretch Saturday to win the 17th running of the $58,780 Del Mar Debutante in a brilliant performance before 14,387 fans.

Under a typically well-timed, cool ride by Jerry Lambert, Fast Dish overhauled pace-setting Time To Leave in the final sixteenth to win by a length in a sparkling 1:09 4-5 for six furlongs.

Esquimau Pie was only a nose behind Time To Leave in the tight finish, with Betty Loraine fourth in the field of nine two-year-old fillies.

The victory was the third without a defeat for Fast Dish, who also put the spotlight on the amazing training ability of her conditioner, the veteran Buster Millerick.

Out of action since July 8 at Hollywood Park, Fast Dish was brought up to the prestigious Del Mar Debutante on workouts alone by Millerick and she proved more than equal to the task.

Lambert also won the day's supporting feature, the $6,000 Carlsbad Handicap, aboard another Millerick-trained animal, Queenie.

John Sellers also booted in two winners, scoring on Then She Said at $5.60 in the second and Kick Back at $8.60 in the ninth.

The daily double from Wolf Tooth at $58.60 in the opener to Then She Said, was worth $262.40.

Features to Real Speed, Score Time

It was advertised as the best program of the young harness racing season and none of the 16,111 who turned out Saturday at Hollywood Park could disagree.

Real Speed, a leading contender for the $60,000 American Trotting Classic Nov. 18, and Score Time, who now must be considered a candidate for the $60,000 American Pacing Classic Nov. 4, captured Saturday's features, the $10,000 Santa Barbara Trot and the $8,000 Pomona Pace.

While Score Time's 1:58 1-5 victory earned honors as the fastest mile of the longshot-dominated afternoon, the entire card easily ranked as the swiftest of the meeting. The day's slowest race had a clocking of 2:03 3-5.

Real Speed, purchased for $3,500 from Castleton Farm at the end of 1966, began this year a green 4-year-old with earnings of just $112.

Score Time, was given a perfectly-timed drive by Jacques Grenier, subbing for the flu-bothered Roger White, to win the Pomona going away.

Longshot players had their biggest day of the meeting, beginning with the daily double that paid $178.60.

After that lucrative start, Sing On Key paid $28 for winning the third race and Roswell returned a whopping $61.80 for taking the fourth.

Except for Real Speed and Score Time, no other winner paid less than $10.

TENNIS--

New York, moved up with a 6-4, 9-7, 6-2 victory over Erik Von Dillen of San Mateo, Calif.

Others advancing included Brazil's Tomas Koch and Ron Barnes, as well as Mark Cox of Great Britain.

Emerson had high praise for the Honolulu youngster who came so close to putting him out. "Osborne has a fine serve and he did not have any special weakness, so I just had to try everything I could," said the 31-year-old Australian, who has won the U.S. crown twice and is seeded second to Wimbledon champion John Newcombe of Australia in the current draw. At one point late in the fourth set and early in the fifth, Osborne served four straight love games with sizzlers that had Roy shaking his head, but a deuce in the seventh game of the final set, Osborne netted a volley and then watched Emerson's placement drop in for the point that meant a service break. Emerson held service twice more and that was the match.

4 RECORDS SET

Jr. Olympic Swim Finals at Mayfair

Four National records were broken Saturday in the third and final day of qualifying for the National Junior Olympic swimming finals today at Mayfair Park pool.

Competition between the 200-plus swimmers begins at 9 a.m. and will last the entire day at the Lakewood Olympic-size pool located at 5720 N. Clark Ave.

Saturday's spectacular prelude saw two girls and two boys from the Long Beach-Los Angeles district make it into today's finals and the record books.

Sue Atwodd, competing in the 13-14 girls division for the Lakewood Aquatics Club, set the first record with a 1:12.3 clocking in the 100-meter backstroke. Diane Nickloff of the Los Angeles Athletic Club also set a record in the 11-12 50-meter breastroke competition with a 37.7 clocking.

Steve Freiken of the San Pedro YMCA navigated four laps of the pool to ring up a 2:04.1 figure in the 15-17 division for a new 200 meter freestyle mark.

The final Junior Olympic record was set by Mark Chatfield swimming as an unattached member, who clocked a 58.1 time in the 100 meter freestyle for 13-14 boys.

The Lakewood Aquatics Club boosted its total of qualifiers Saturday to 70 with the Los Angeles Athletic Club contributing 48, San Pedro 21 and Long Beach eight for the finals.

McEwen Sets Fuel Drag ET Record

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (Special) — Tom McEwen, 30, of Long Beach set an elapsed time and speed record for AA fuel dragsters Saturday at the National Hot Rod Assn. Summer Nationals, speeding through the traps in 6.79 seconds for an overall clocking of 223.178 mph.

Don (The Snake) Prudhomme of Los Angeles had the second best ET of the day with a 6.88 figure.

Converser Caine's Top Topic: Caine

LONDON — The most interesting conversationalist as well as the most brilliant male actor to come along recently is Michael Caine, who told me over lunch the other day that he is being twitted by the British for his readiness to get publicity.

"Some people suggest I should have gone into the advertising business," 34-year-old, spectacled, blond Michael said out at Pinewood, where he's filming "Deadfall," in which he plays a cat burglar.

"So many young British actors think it's a bit vulgar to get publicity," Michael said. "I never intended to be an actor, but once I saw I had a possibility of being a movie star, I worked harder at publicity than most people do. And I think," he added, referring to the article saying he might do better in advertising, "I'm a better actor than the man who did that article is a writer."

"YOU ARE QUOTED that you wouldn't marry a girl who posed nude?" I asked.

"I have sort of a possessive thing," he admitted. "If I found out my wife posed nude, I would walk out on her next morning. I wouldn't want my son to be embarrassed by having the other boys pass around pictures of Mum naked. I wouldn't like to think of my own mother posing naked!"

"Are you surprised at being thought of as being attractive to women of all ages?"

"Yes, because when I was young, I was ugly, and I saw that I must make every effort to interest a girl if I liked her. So many handsome men just stand there and preen and wait for the chicks to say 'When and where?' "

"But aren't many girls pursuing you now that you're a star?"

Caine was too modest to answer that. "Fame is a tremendous aphrodisiac," he said.

"AREN'T WOMEN mostly interested in bad men?"

"No," he replied. "I don't think women like men who wander about. I think the appeal of Errol Flynn and stars like Flynn, was to men. Women are attracted more, I think, to personality, than to looks. I don't mean that a man should just sit home with his pipe and slippers every night."

Caine added: "She might start to nod off, too."

As he sees it from a backward glance, "What an actor should do is behave as your personality dictates. If it is unsuccessful, you're a failure, and if it's a success, everybody says how clever you are, and you're a movie star!"

"What is your own picture of yourself?"

"People often say to me 'You're not much like an actor.' They're trying to be insulting. One critic said 'He goes through his lines like he was reading them for the first time.' Which is what we all want to do.

WINDUP IN N.Y. . . . Producer David Merrick, who travels a lot, sends his flight insurance policies to various female acquaintances. "It impresses them more," he admits, "than $50 worth of flowers" . . . Several top film personalities have asked to read Hal Wallis' "Star Spangled Girl" script . . . A new rock group (managed by Leonard Stogel) is the Cowsills — four boys and their mother . . . Lionel Hampton's written a song for Mayor Lindsay: "Johnny On the Spot" . . . Chevi Colton of "The Mad Show" will tour colleges with a one-woman show.

Joey Heatherton finished her summer stock tour, headed for a Dean Martin TV date . . . Jimmy Wisner signed singer Tamiko Jones for his new December Records firm . . . Juggler Francis Brunn, a hit in the Judy Garland show, will appear at the San Juan Americana for nine months . . . Peter Sellers' next film will be about Napoleon . . . Julie Christie's singing (in "Far From the Madding Crowd") will be released as a recording.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Art Paul says his wife has ordered a mink coat, "but she won't have it delivered until I do something unforgiveable."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Happiness is watching TV at your girl's house during a power failure.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "The superiority of some men is merely local. They are great because their associates are little." — Dr. Samuel Johnson.

EARL'S PEARLS: Despite the stories, Hollywood's a dull place, claims Jan Murray: "At night we just sit around and talk about things like Tony Curtis' hairnet."

Golf star Arnold Palmer tells of the time Dean Martin started his game by swinging at a ball twice, and missing it. Phil Harris said, 'Atta boy, Dino — you got a no-hitter goin'!" . . . That's earl, brother.

Laguna Opera Festival Hits the Top With 'Bluebeard'

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

What were probably the first Southern California performances of Bela Bartok's chillingly beautiful opera, "Duke Bluebeard's Castle" (1911), took place this weekend as part of the double-bill Laguna Beach's Festival of Opera mounted for its second offering of 1967.

The opening performance Friday was an unqualified success and may prove to be a high point in this company's six-year history.

In Arnold Voketaitis and Dorothy Krebill, the opera's two singing roles were in excellent hands.

Both young singers possess first-rate legitimate operatic voices; both act convincingly; both have a wealth of stage experience behind them. When you come to think of it, very few of the principals who have appeared with this company during the past five years, even those who sing regularly at the Metropolitan, can boast all these attributes.

Supporting the principals, the Festival's large and excellent orchestra gave a gripping account of Bartok's symphonic canvas. As last week, musical director Eugene Ober kept a firm hand on the proceedings, never dawdling, never overstating this already eloquent music.

Homer Greathouse's two-part set allowed a generous amount of space on the limited Irvine Bowl stage, relied on subtleties of lighting which did not always work on opening night. Putting the crucial door so far to stage right gave extra space to the players, but seriously hampered the view from audience left, where I sat.

Still, the effect of the doors seemed to work for most of the audience, much of it the direct result of good acting on the part of Miss Krebill and Voketaitis, both of whom also looked suitably characteristic in their costumes.

The evening opened with another little produced one-act opera, Falla's "Master Pedro's Puppet Show." Scenically, it rated even higher than Greathouse's somewhat understated "Romeo" last week, for there was variety of color and decor on the stage, and no obvious attempt to coordinate.

The enigmatic character of this brief piece was, unfortunately, made more vague by the unclear diction of the most important actor, Pedro's assistant, as sung by Marilyn Interlandi.

Royce Reaves' Don Quixote was similarly muddy of pronunciation, though mime here saved the day. Robert Glover, who did some impressive singing at the Carmel Bach Festival a month ago (yes, I was there), was Pedro himself, singing well what little there is to sing, and making every word understood.

Reno Will Repose With Custer Men

By BILL MCFARLAND

CUSTER BATTLEFIELD, Mont. (UPI) — The fall guy in Custer's last stand, who never made it to this famed battlefield, will be buried this week among George Armstrong Custer's men.

Thus 91 years later, and in death, Maj. Marcus Reno — the exonerated "coward" of the Battle of the Little Bighorn — reaches his place in the sun — the site of the best known Indian war in American history.

It's the second trip for Reno. The first time he got trapped five miles from eigher saving, or dying with, the dynamic Custer, who had made the rank of major general at the age of 26 for heroics in the Civil War.

Custer himself no longer is buried here. His remains were taken from a shallow grave where he fell with his men and reburied at West Point.

The journey back to a hero's grave is a posthumous footnote to American history for Reno, who died at the age of 55, broken of spirit and a man who went through ridicule, disgrace and ruin.

* * * *

NEXT SATURDAY, Reno will be reburied from a pauper's grave in Washington, D.C. to the sound of an 11-gun cannon salute that goes to dead generals. Like Custer, Reno was a Civil War hero, having reached the rank of brevet brigadier.

In fact, he'll have two funeral services — one at 9 a.m. at the First Christian Church in Billings, followed by a military funeral procession complete with armored cavalry escort and Army band; the other at Custer Battlefield Cemetery at 2 p.m. and preceded by another processional in the nearby town of Hardin.

The two services and reburial ceremonies, complete with regaliaed descendents of the Sioux and Cheyennes who did Custer in and the Crows who scouted for Custer, are the result of six years of effort by a Helena, Mont. man who believed, and persuaded the Army, that Reno had been wronged.

That man (Chet Shore), former adjutant of the Montana American Legion, with the help of Reno descendants and historians, finally got Reno's name cleared this past May 31 with the U.S. Army Board of Correction of Military Records.

SHORE'S EFFORT had nothing to do with the charge of cowardice leveled against Reno. That had been taken care of by a military tribunal following the historic battle and Reno was exonerated of the charge of being a coward.

That charge related to the Battle of the Little Bighorn, where Custer and 260 men attached to his outfit were wiped out. There were no known survivors.

Custer's massacre came while Reno and his three companies of 112 men were pinned down, with 34 dead, 44 wounded, in retreat and Panic. Reno's forces were just five miles from the point they were to rendezvous with Custer in a maneuver designed to wipe out the Indians.

According to some historians, Mrs. George Custer carried on a campaign following the ill-fated battle to glorify her husband and she was said to have hired a writer to do a biography of Custer. Reno came out the villian.

If Reno was a coward, the records show that Congress awarded 19 of his men Medals of Honor for their losing efforts in retreat while trying to carry out their mission of reaching Custer.

Robert Ege, of Great Falls, who has just written a research history of Custer's last stand, said of Reno, "on the night of June 25, (the day of Custer's demise), Reno suggested to his second-in-command that all men able to ride, including the other officers and himself, should vacate their besieged position on the bluffs, south of Custer's field with the wounded left to the mercies of the Sioux. The suggestion was quashed by other officers of the command."

* * * *

IN ADDITION to the Custer monument at this historic battlefield there is another in tribute to Reno and Capt. Frederick Benteen, whose three companies, on a scouting mission, finally reached Reno's entrenchment to help get survivors out alive. That area is known as the Reno-Benteen Battlefield.

There is no cemetery there, otherwise it would have been the logical place for Reno's reburial.

The Reno record that Shore worked to clear up was the one that got Major Marcus drummed out of the Army on a bad conduct discharge. That came April 1, 1880 when Reno was bounced from the service following his court-martial of November 1879.

One historian says that discharge was for assaulting a brother officer with a pool cue, drunkenness, public brawling and window peeking into the boudoir of Col. Sam Sturgis' daughter.

President Rutherford B. Hayes had saved Reno's hide once before — in March of 1877 when he was court-martialed and ordered dismissed from the service for making improper advances, while drunk, to the wife of a fellow officer. The President commuted that sentence to suspension from rank and pay for two years.

RENO DIED in disgrace in 1889 and was buried, without fanfare, in a pauper's grave at Glenwood Cemetery in the nation's capital.

The Army, in changing Reno's record this year to show his discharge to be "honorable," made it possible for his remains to be reburied in a military cemetery.

Following the processional and service in Billings, and processional in Hardin, graveside rites will be conducted at Reno's new resting place — in the shadow of the flagstaff flying Old Glory and near the graves of enlisted men and some of the officers who died with Custer.

Take a Nostalgic Peek Back 40 Years

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

Forty years ago, the birth of a vital new third dimension in public transportation across the nation—commercial air travel—occurred in the form of a couple of frightened passengers, beginning a hop, skip and jump across the country with a mail bag in one hand and a sack lunch in the other.

Altogether, 15 stops requiring a total of 32½ hours were the lot of any traveler hardy enough to try the United States' first transcontinental air service.

The first tentative nation-wide air transportation link came when East met West in Chicago on Sept. 1, 1927.

Aircraft of National Air Transport (NAT) and Boeing Air Transport (BAT), predecessor companies of United Air Lines, were the firms involved.

NAT BEGAN CHICAGO-NEW YORK passenger and mail service on that date with single-engine Douglas M-4s. BAT, two months before, had begun serving the San Francisco-Chicago route with two-passenger Boeing 40As.

The eastern airline placed a low priority on passengers. If an extra mail sack appeared, the passenger lost his seat, gave back his box lunch and parachute and, usually, accepted NAT's suggestion he take the train.

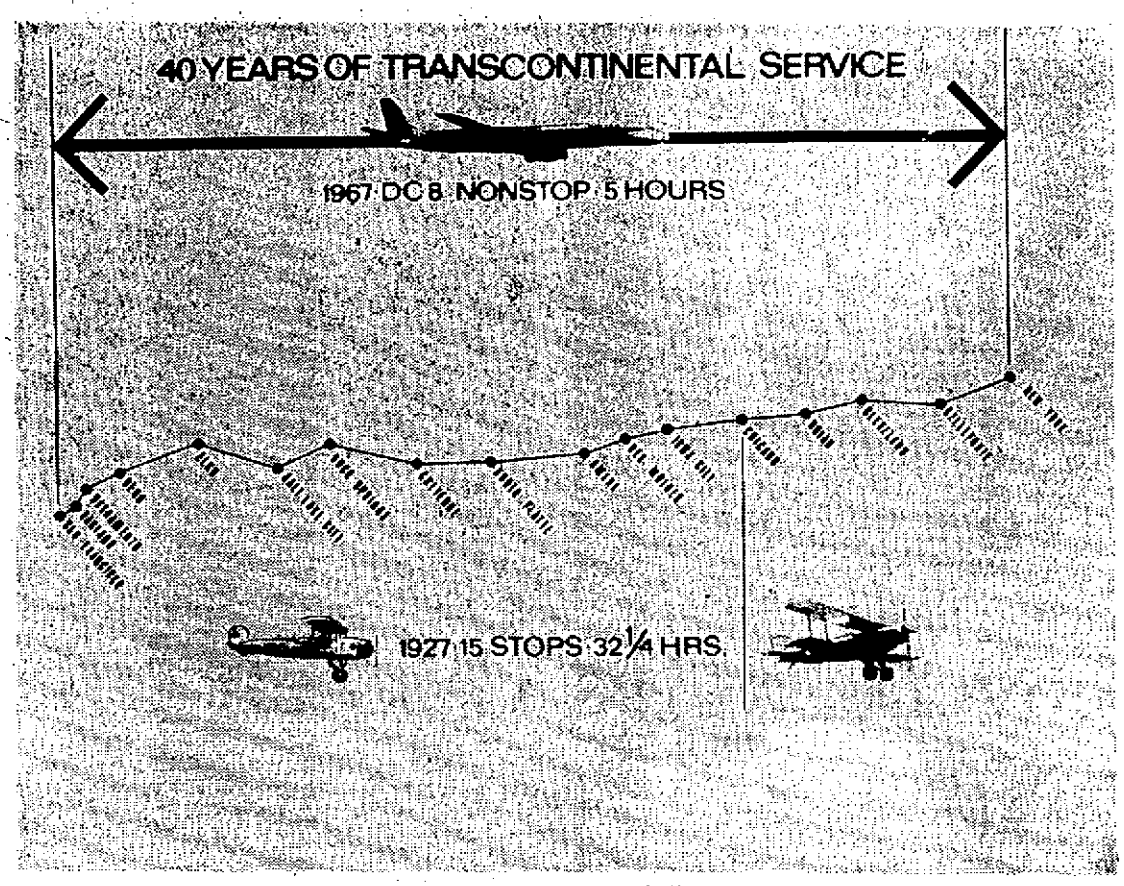

Boeing, however, was more interested in the passenger business and during its first six months of operation carried 445 travelers on the Chicago-San Francisco leg. The 22½-hour, 2,000-mile flight cost $204 per ticket.

FLYING THE ORIGINAL transcontinental route, a passenger could make the trip for $404, compared with the $200 or so for a round-trip coast-to-coast flight today.

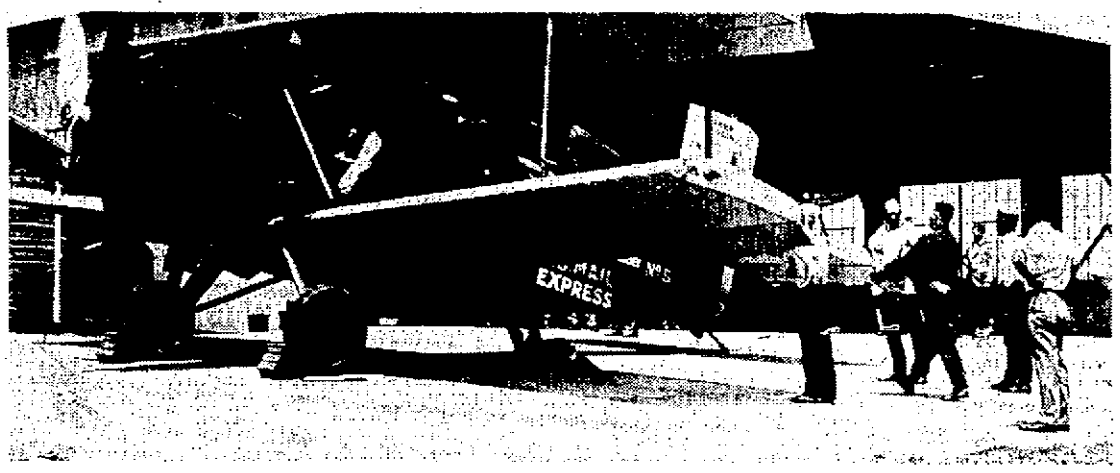

By 1930, Ford and Boeing transports had trimmed nearly five hours off the total time. Comparative comfort — enclosed cabins, wicker chairs and sliding windows — came with the bigger planes.

What has not changed over the years has been the advertising claims of the airlines, as first expressed in a 1929 brochure, that "air travel is secure, comfortable, clean and swift."

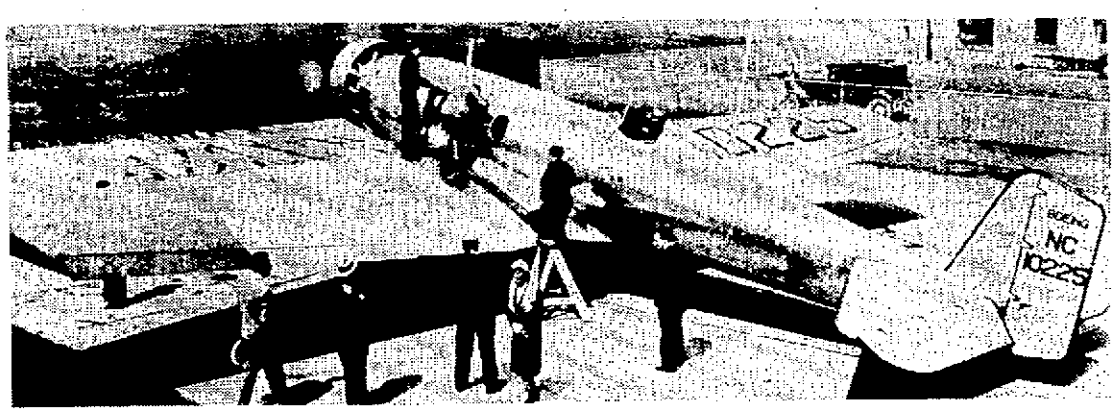

Early passengers might take issue with that statement, though few would argue the point today.

Local Buildings Judged Grand Prix Winners

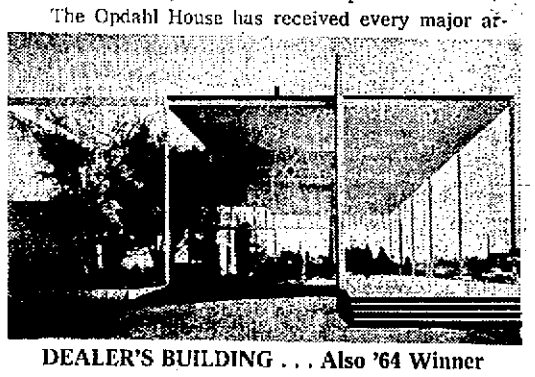

Special to the Progress Section

The Grand Prix in Architecture last week honored two Long Beach structures as being among the finest works of architecture created within the greater Los Angeles area during the last 20 years.

Local winners are the small Opdahl House located on Vesuvian Walk in the Naples area and the Murphy Lincoln-Mercury Agency on Lakewood Boulevard.

Both projects were created by architects Killingsworth-Brady and Smith and have been previously highly honored by other awards competitions.

The Opdahl House has received every major architectural award of the American Institute of Architects (AIA) and is one of the nine houses to receive a First Honor Award by the National AIA.

THE LINCOLN-MERCURY Agency was selected in 1964 as the top winner in the Southern California Chapter, AIA Awards Program and last year was selected as a winner in the Governor's Awards Program for the best in California architecture.

The Grand Prix of Architecture was organized by the AIA at the request of Mayor Sam Yorty as a portion of the 186th celebration of the birth of the City of Los Angeles.

Selection of the award winners was by a jury including Sam Hurst, dean of the School of Architecture at USC; George Dudley, dean of the School of Architecture at UCLA; John Merrill, partner in the San Francisco architectural firm of Skidmore, Owings and Merrill; Art Seidenbaum, writer and critic, and Kenneth Ross, head of the Art Department of the City of Los Angeles.

* * * *

THIRTY-SIX PROJECTS were selected as Grand Prix winners. Of these, five were awarded Premier Grand Prix Awards.

These were the new Water and Power Building in the Civic Center, the new Union Bank Building on Bunker Hill, the CBS Television Studio on Beverly Boulevard, the new School of Business Towers at USC, and the new Scientific Data Systems Building on Aviation Boulevard near the Los Angeles Airport.

The local architect winners, Killingsworth-Brady and Smith are long time Long Beach residents with 34 major AIA awards for their architectural work. Recently the new book, "Architects on Architecture," further honored the firm by featuring their work as one of the top forty architects in the United States.

New $4.5 Million Customhouse Ready for Surge of Work

OPENING TO PUBLIC in another week will be U.S. Customs Service's new $4.5 million customhouse on Terminal Island. William R. Knoke, district commissioner of customs, moved in last week.

NEW FACILITY, located at 300 S. Ferry St., boasts spaciousness, modern windows and lighting. Long-awaited move from Los Angeles means last major port complex in United States without such a facility now has one.

FIRST ENTRY IN NEW customhouse was filed by a representative of Williams-Clark Co., a Wilmington brokerage firm. By next week, this placid scene will be replaced by hustle and bustle associated with customhouses.

MODERNISTIC INTERIOR emphasizes wide expanse of new facility, which also will house such agencies as Post Office, U.S. Coast Guard Marine-Inspection, FCC, Department of Interior, Bureau of Commercial Fisheries.

Secondary Recovery Helps Quench Oil Thirst in U.S.

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

While the oil industry is spending billions of dollars annually in seeking new offshore fields, there is a concerted effort getting well under way to turn to secondary recovery as a means of quenching America's thirst for petroleum.

Trouble in the Middle East which is a continual threat to cut off the oil flow from that area plus ever-mounting cost of offshore and deep well drilling are the main reasons sparking the action.

The nation's old and sluggish wells might solve the threat of an oil shortage in the future.

At the most, only about 40 to 50 per cent of the oil of any single well or field is recovered by primary pumping methods, explained John B. Merritt, president of Borg-Warner's Bryon Jackson division when in Long Beach recently. He estimates that more than 3 billion barrels of oil await recovery from dormant wells alone.

NEW SECONDARY METHODS, including use of "controlled fire" now normally boosts output of sluggish wells from 4 to 10 times, Merritt said. He told of a typical firing process in Kansas in which a well producing less than one barrel a day began to yield 17 barrels immediately after thermal stimulation. It gradually increased to 45 barrels a day during the next three months.

"At average prices, that raised the returns from $3 per day to $135 a day," Merritt said. "Multiply that by the thousands of dormant wells in the United States and you begin to realize the potentialities."

While Merritt predicts a greatly intensified interest in secondary recovery, because of new processes and equipment and accessibility of known pools, his own company is pushing ahead in new areas such as Alaska and the North Sea where producers are exploring offshore fields.

Fire, once considered the arch enemy of oil men, has given a big boost to secondary recovery. The process has proved very successful in pools of high viscosity oil in Kansas, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Illinois, Louisiana and Texas.

TREMENDOUS HEAT IS GENERATED by lowering special electrical or gas igniters down wells and setting fire to oil-bearing strata. This process alters formation characteristics and causes "locked in" oil to flow sufficiently for pumping.

Other secondary recovery processes use steam, water flooding, gas, acid and massive hydraulic fracturing to release oil from rock formations.

In fracturing, a torrent of hydraulic fluid is rammed downhole with such power it splits open rock formations. Proppants such as sand, walnut shells and glass beads are fed into the fluid and carried down the well into the formation. When the tremendous pressure is eased, cracks in the split rocks start to close, but the proppants hold the cracks open enough to permit oil to flow.

Merritt's company has developed rubber and nylon balls that are used on the fracturing. They act like tiny check valves seating against already fractured holes in the casing, thus concentrating the full fracturing force against untreated areas.

Merritt sees a refinement of secondary recovery techniques in the next few years, including possible use of nuclear power to produce the tremendous pressures needed to crack rocks at great depth.

GOVERNMENT FINANCED and privately-funded research programs currently are pushing to develop a fuel that burns in engines as a volatile liquit yet acts as a solid during storage. If perfected, flaming disasters much as the Forrestal fire will never occur again.

In case of a crash, the solid fuel would not explode but would burn slowly.

Two major benefits expected from the new fuel form — when once it is found — would be a reduced death rate in airline crashes and safer helicopter flying in Vietnam.

More than 15 per cent of the deaths in commercial airline crashes are caused by fire fed by spreading aircraft fuel. In Vietnam, fuel pours out of helicopter fuel tanks pierced by gunfire often before the pilot can make a landing.

The most promising research to date is on gel systems, a gelatin-like substance, and emulsion systems, a mayonnaise like semi-solid. These are expected to work on the kerosene-type fuels used by commercial jet aircraft and on the more flammable fuels used by the military, reports the publication, Chemical Engineering.

PROSPERITY OF THE MARITIME industry is threatened by a labor-management problem rapidly assuming alarming proportions, declares Raymond W. Ickes, president of the American President Lines.

Speaking at the recent launching of the SS President McKiinley at Pascagoula, Miss., Ickes stressed the interdependence of capital and management and the responsibility of each in assuring good jobs to seagoing and longshore workers alike.

Four hurdles must be cleared, Ickes continued, to realize the hope that the years of the President McKinley will be fruitful and productive ones contributing to our country's economy, to the prosperity of the company owning and operating her, and to the security of the merchant seaman who will man her.

"But if these hopes are realized there are hurdles that must be cleared. These include effective meeting of foreign competition, wise synchronization of military and civilian ocean carriage, development of a forward-looking merchant marine policy, and a sane rationalization of labor relations as effecting the entire industry.

"We are presently faced in the maritime industry with a labor-management problem that is rapidly assuming alarming proportions. Our seagoing union contracts contain 'most favored nation' or, as they are sometimes called 'me-too' clauses.

"THESE WERE DESIGNED by the parties to assure even-handed treatment between the many unions who represent the seamen on our ships. Through an unfortunate set of circumstances these clauses are now being used as the basis for a series of leapfrogging wage cost increases that none of the parties to the collective bargaining agreements ever intended.

"Unless this constantly spiraling series of 'automatic' increases is halted in the industry, both labor and management could price themselves out of existence. It is essential that all parties concerned promptly exercise some good sense and reach agreement on a method to halt this disastrous trend.

"Unless maturity and enlightened self-restraint govern the demands of both labor and management chaos will result. There are times when a bird in the hand is not worth two in the bush — the two should be left in the bush to assure continuance of the species," Ickes said.

"On all this country's coasts now we stand in need of a careful re-evaluation of the basic relationships between the different elements which must pull together if the American Merchant Marine is to grow and provide a fair return on investment, and jobs at decent compensation for labor, sea-going and longshore alike.

"That, given the will, this can be accomplished there is no doubt, and if it is the future for all of us will be brighter. If it is not, the weather ahead is threatening indeed," he concluded.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE TRADE TIPS ON THE WORLD MARKET

Beauty is as beauty does, goes the old saying. And a French firm believes it can do it beautifully with the help of a U.S. supplier of American cosmetics for French beauty parlors.

The request for cosmetics is only one of this week's 92 trade opportunities for U.S. firms to sell in the French market. More than 40 seek suppliers of textiles and clothing.

There also are opportunities to sell everything from advertising novelties in Guyana to industrial machinery in Japan, Pakistan, and Surinam.

The Department of Commerce each week furnishes the Progress Section a series of tips.

New Model Autos Go Into Production

Production of 1968 auto models went into high gear last week, and the increased output nudged the index upward for the second week inarow.

Auto production increased 7.1 per cent above a week ago and 8 per cent above a year ago. Detroit is slated for brisk activity in the next few weeks, in an effort to build up inventories before the expiration of the United Auto Workers' contract on Sept. 6.

In the auto sales picture, analysts are predicting an increase in 1968 sales large enough to bring the industry out of its two-year sales slump. But with a major strike looming just ahead, and the increasing possibilities of a tax increase and higher prices, the predictions are "iffy."

The mood of uncertainty is prevelant in the steel industry also. Production in the latest week slipped 1.8 per cent, but remains 1.4 per cent above a month ago. Steelmen all have their eyes on Detroit's labor negotiations — the outcome of which could call the turn for the balance of the year.

Earlier Buyers Aid in Designing Homes

"We don't want to take credit away from four of the leading architects in Southern California, but we do regard them as 'collaborators' in designing the very popular homes being built in Golden West College Estates," says Jerry Henderson, marketing director for S & S Construction Co.

"The real designers were the 12,000 earlier buyers of S & S homes, cooperating with our research department."

The research led to the design of some exceptional floor plans and exteriors. Noteworthy among the new homes offered at Golden West is plan 624, a large, two-story home for the family that likes to stretch out. It has four bedrooms and 2½ baths, with an expansive sun deck off the master bedroom suite in some plans.

* * * *

ANOTHER PLAN, "The Malibu," has a parents' "hideway" in the master suite, and a versatile bonus room. The latter can be finished immediately as a game room or left unfinished for the do-it-yourself-later family. It provides enough space for two additional bedrooms.

To inspect the furnished model homes, from San Diego Freeway take the Golden West Street turnoff and go south on Golden West Street to McFadden Avenue, The development is adjacent to the new Golden West College, in Westminster.

DAVID'S WINNING ENTRY . . . Good For $150

Three Area Youths Place in Fisher Body Competition

Special to the Progress Section

David and Karlin Wong, both of 1647 W. 228th St., Torrance, and Mike T. Kustura, of 7139 Rosebay St., Long Beach, have been named state award winners in the 1967 Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild model car competition.

David, 14, received a cash award of $150 when his model was selected as first state winner in the junior division. In winning top state honors, he was also named junior division regional winner and will represent California at the national Craftsman's Guild convention in Detroit the last week of July.

Karlin, 17, received a $100 award as second state winner in the senior division. Both boys are sons of Mr. and Mrs. S. Wong.

* * * *

MIKE, 16, received an honorable mention in the senior division. He won a $25 cash award.

As state award winners, the boys' models will now compete for one of 10 $1,000 styling scholarships to be presented at the Guild convention.

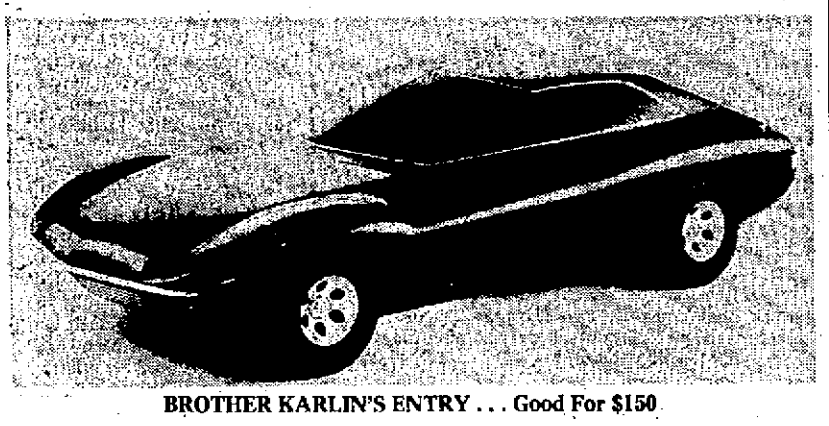

Karlin won a scholarship for styling in 1966 and is not eligible to receive the award a second time. Since David is a regional winner, his model is also eligible for one of eight national scholarships having a total value of $28,000.

Scholarship winners will be announced during the annual Guild banquet held at the Fisher Body General Offices in Warren, Michigan.

* * * *

EACH YEAR the Craftsman's Guild offers 1,078 cash prizes and university scholarships totaling $117,000 to boys who design and build scale model autos that represent their ideas of cars of the future. The Guild program begins in the fall and concludes on the first Friday in June. The contest is open to any boy 11 through 20.

To date, nearly 10 million boys have participated in the Craftsman's Guild program which has granted more than $2.4 million in awards. Since 1930, the Guild has been dedicated to the development of craftsmanship and creativity in young men.

NAHB President Calls for More 'Open Space Thinking'

Special to the Progress Section

WASHINGTON — The home building industry's chief spokesman has called on local communities for "open space thinking" on open space problems to make possible orderly future national growth.

Leon N. Weiner, president of the National Association of Home Builders, said the home builder is not the "bulldozer" of the land.

"The real bulldozer is the community which places outmoded restrictions on the builder, requiring that he conform to zoning and code regulations that have been in existence for half a century," Weiner said.

Weiner made his comments at a "Conference on Soil, Water, and Suburbia." It was sponsored by the Department of Housing and Urban Affairs and the Agriculture Department.

SPEAKING FROM "The Developer's Viewpoint," the Wilmington, Del., builder said:

"A major responsibility for the necessary changes in our patterns of housing and community growth rests with the local officials in the communities.

"There is an old saying that man is the only creature on the face of the earth who insists on innovation and change. It's time for change again.

"We must take from the best of the methods, systems, and living patterns of our forefathers and build on them toward sensible, pragmatic approaches that are so vitally needed today and in the future.

"OUR FOUNDING fathers established the open space pattern — houses clustered around open space. But this pattern was forgotten. After World War I and World War II, as family growth pushed city-dwellers into suburbia, restrictions were enacted by thousands of communities.

"It wasn't long before suburban growth created many of the same problems that existed in the old city. The local fathers responded to the challenge by using zoning as a tool to keep out all but the 'well-to-do.'

"Before long, lot sizes jumped to 10,000 square feet, and even to one acre per family.

"HUGE AREAS of land filled up with low density development, forests fell, natural drainage and coverage disappeared, and, since the distance between the home and the sanitary sewage treatment plant was so great, the septic tank was used as an immediate expediency.

"As problems of pollution, siltation, and conservation became more acute, the builder became the 'heavy.'

"If he left open space on the land," Weiner said, "he would have to reduce the number of houses he had planned at the time he purchased the land. In order to gain some profit — and don't forget all of us have to stay in business — the cost of this open space would have to be added to the sales price of other homes.

"IN ADDITION to large lot size requirements communities also began imposing more restrictive subdivision codes on the land, until today, the cost of the ground and its development represents from 20 to 25 per cent of the price of the finished home.

"What's been the answer? Home builders, in our Association at least, came back to the concept of our forefathers; namely houses clustered around open space but built on smaller lots.

"By clustering the houses on smaller lots, the builder could use the savings to create open space which created immediate natural amenities and would preserve them for the future."

Name Charter Members for $ Million Club

Western Programming Corporation, a general agency of Founder's Life Insurance Company, announced the formation of "The Million Dollar Club."

This club presents continuing awards to agents who initiate $250,000.00 life insurance protection in one month. Charter members who received awards are Michael J. Fisher, president; Rudy Starich, Paul Farel, Richard Goslin, Albert McGarvey, Gary S. Payne and Thomas Heitz.

At the same meeting, held at the Pacific Coast Club, Ned Sommerville was presented Shareholders Management Company's outstanding sales award. Sommerville has placed over $500,000.00 in investment funds since the start of the year.

Security First Announces Plan for New Branch

Security First National Bank has announced plans for opening its ninth Long Beach location early next year.

It will be known as the Atlantic & Ocean branch, under construction at 595 East Ocean Blvd. as part of the 11-story Fidelity Federal Plaza Building.

The 6,800-square-foot branch will be on the corner site of the building's ground floor, said Vice President James J. Weigel, regional administrator. Access will be from Ocean Boulevard and from the central plaza.

American Bankers Told to Help Provide Decent Homes

American bankers were called upon today by a bank president to assume the ethical responsibility of leading a campaign to provide $60-$70 a month decent homes for the minority and ghetto poor. The banker who issued the call was Stafford Grady, president of California's 8th largest bank, First Western. He made the address to the graduating class of the Association for Bank Audit, Control and Operation (NABAC) School at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Grady characterized the absence of the banking profession from those groups fighting for decent housing for the economically deprived as "our ethical failure of non-involvement."

* * * *

"FOR NO ONE," he said, "is more equipped with experience, training and resources to come up with positive and realistic programs so that our poor can be adequately sheltered — so that they should not be barred from the decent paying jobs involved in building these homes — so that they should not be barred from eventual ownership of middle-class quarters at working-class prices."

Grady said that the responsibility of the bankers to get involved in such a housing program is on an "all important level of national duty. For this patriotic objective," he added, "I believe we can pool our mighty resources as well as the awesome quantity and quality of technical skills at our disposal. In creative collaboration with the government we bankers should be able to develop a plan involving technological and financial breakthroughs that permit building and selling decent homes at $60-$70 a month including local taxes and insurance in 30 to 40-year federally guaranteed mortgages."

"WE BANKERS," the executive concluded, "can serve as catalysts for a low-cost home ownership plan that could be responsible for a mass housing renaissance whose magnificence and scope might even prevent burning and looting in the future. There is a pride in ownership that rent subsidies cannot equal."

"As there are new materials and new ways of processing old materials—as there are new ways of construction and new machinery, there must be better and more attainable ways of financing homes for all who want to own one. These are either present and unused, or awaiting determined discovery. The will and dedication of good bankers are needed desperately for positive leadership."

Grady, who now leads the $850 million, 82-branch bank, was formerly insurance commissioner for California.

Engineers' Container Terminal Model 'Inside' Computer

By JACK BALDWIN
Marine Editor

A highly-detailed but invisible model which engineers will neither be able to see nor touch will be used to obtain the optimum design for a new $3.5 million container terminal in the Port of Los Angeles.

The model, including the most minute detail, will be "built" inside the brain of a computer at UCLA.

Port and university engineering personnel will use a special computer called TRANSIM — an abbreviation for Transportation Simulator.

NEW DISTRICT OFFICES . . . Going Up in Norwalk

BENEFITING from the use of the computer-designed terminal will be the ultimate users of the new facility, a recently-formed combine of four Japanese shipping lines.

Engineers will study the electronic model stored in the computer's unlimited memory system to help them design a terminal that will assure the Japanese companies the "least-cost, least-time" when the new facility goes into operation in 1968.

Into TRANSIM will be fed thousands of bits of information including all measurements of the dock, wharf, number and capacity of gantry cranes, ship arrivals, size and number of containers, storage area and all other pertinent facts relative to the new terminal.

* * * *

ONCE THE MODEL is "built" inside TRANSIM the computer then will be able to answer many "what if" questions.

Fred Stanford, director of reserach and planning for the Harbor Department, cites an example:

"We might ask Transim 'what if' a ship is a day late in arriving, what might be the consequences?"

"It will study the model and give us some of the answers we need," Stanford claims.

The Board of Harbor Commissioners recently alloted $4,000 for the project.

* * * *

WITHIN 90 days TRANSIM should be giving answers to some of the initial questions to be put to it, claims A. M. Feiler, program manager on the project at UCLA.

Feiler describes TRANSIM as an "analytical tool" which can be used by the port in many other ways and by many port-related industries such as railroads, truckers, ship operators, stevedoring companies and others.

The university-conducted project is funded and used by the Department of Commerce, the Navy and the Maritime Administration.

* * * *

AN ADVANTAGE of the TRANSIM method, claims Feiler, is that no highly technical computer knowledge is required by the operator.

"It is like an adding machine. The operator does need to know how the machine works to do addition or subtraction on it," Feiler says.

Lawrence L. Whiteneck, chief harbor engineer, plans once it is known what TRANSIM can do, to make use of a Harbor Department computer for additional problem solving.

"It is not inconceivable that we may build a model of the entire port in our own computer to determine the best design characteristics and operating procedures for other facilities," Whiteneck said.

* * * *

THE NEW terminal will be built at Berths 130 to 132 in the West Basin of the port. The first 1,500 feet of wharf is scheduled for completion by July of 1968. The second phase, an additional 1,000 feet is to be finished 60 days later, according to Whiteneck.

When completed the container terminal will be used by the recently formed combine of Japan Line, Kawasaki Kisen Kaisha, Mitsui-O.S.K. Lines and the Yamashita-Shinnihon Steamship Co.

New Model Landmark Homes in La Palma Open to Viewers

Sales and Marketing manager of Landmark Homes, Robert James, announced that all new model homes are now open for viewing at the firm's La Palma site.

A complete Landmark family ready package is offered that includes carpeting, landscaping, custom fencing, sprinklers, patio kitchens and concrete driveways. By taking advantage of these extras that are all included in the purchase price, according to James, the buyer actually saves "thousands of dollars on after-move-in expenses."

* * * *

HE FURTHER points out that many buyers are attracted by the low 5 per cent down payment plan in effect. The new 30-year-old financing is another key factor.

One of the additional features really appreciated at the homesite is the three car garages. Buyers are finding a multitude of uses for the additional space afforded by big garages. They also have shown very marked interest in the new tri-level plan.

Prices at the homesite range from $29,000 to $32,250. Excellent loans are offered. All terms are completely flexible.

Landmark model homes are located on La Palma Boulevard, just west of Moody Street in La Palma.

MONTGOMERY Ward will utilize 225,000 feet; Thrifty Drug, 21,000, and a supermart, 26,000.

Construction of the big Montgomery Ward store will start early in September and the store will open next summer.

WORLD OF WINGS

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

The plushest hotrod of the single-engine set has to be the Aero Commander 200, which once flew under the Meyers label.

Known as the fastest production one-engined plane in the country, the 200 lives up to its billing and, in appearance inside and out, stands comparison, in our opinion, with all the Bonanzas, Comanches and 210s you can bring around.

Thanks to Jerry Hardin, of Competition Aircraft Sales, 2611 E. Spring St., we had 45 minutes or so in the left seat of a factory demonstrator at Long Beach Airport.

AFTER NOTHING BUT CESSNA 172 time for some months, we never quite caught up with the 200's speed and unaccustomed complexities, but we stayed close enough to be extremely impressed with its performance. Normal cruise was an easy 215 mph, with a rate of climb of nearly 1500 fpm.

We'd fault the 200 on cabin size, compared with a Bonanza. Also, the noise level seemed a little high for a single-engined airplane with a $29,500 base price. However, for that tag, there are all kinds of standard items which are extras on the competition, such as dual controls, two flashing beacons, fuel pressure warning light, outside service plug for starting, shoulder harness and others.

MAIN PROBLEM IN FLYING the 200 is one that time may cure, if the factory doesn't. Tell the tower you're in an Aero Commander and the controllers are baffled if there aren't two engines hanging on the wing.

Why not a jazzy new name of distinction like the Aero Commander "Charger," or something?

CREA Convention to Draw Thousands

Five speakers scheduled to address the annual convention of the California Real Estate Association Sept. 23-28 at the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles have been disclosed by Esta Rodgers, president of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors.

She said many local Realtors, real estate salesmen, their wives and guests will be attending.

The speakers are Governor Ronald Reagan; Richard B. Morris of Buffalo, New York, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards; James C. Downs Jr., chairman of the Real Estate Research Corporation, Chicago; Dr. Max Rafferty, California Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Raymond H. Lapin, president of the Federal National Mortgage Association.

* * * *

MRS. RODGERS said the annual convention, this year expanded to six days, is consistently one of the largest in California, last year drawing 3,200 registrants in San Francisco.

Governor Reagan, Mrs. Rodgers said, will deliver the keynote address at the opening general session on Tuesday, Sept. 26.

At the Wednesday morning session, Morris will discuss the future of the real estate industry nationally and significant trends he sees as NAREB president.

* * * *

DOWNS, who will speak on "The Realty Outlook" before the general session Thursday, Sept. 28, is in great demand for this authoritative evaluation of the real estate market and trends.

At the same session, R. Lapin, of San Francisco, appointed in July by President Johnson to head FNMA, will speak on the financial outlook for real estate. His background includes the presidency of Bankers Mortgage Company, Commissioner of the California State Economic Development Agency and chairman of the Governor's Economic Task Force.

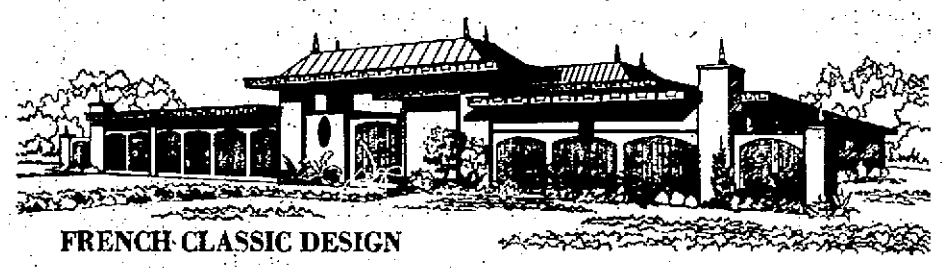

* * * *

THE CONVENTION will open on Saturday, Sept. 23, with an all-day conference on real estate education and research jointly sponsored by CREA and the State Division of Real Estate, the program entitled "Professionalization Through Education."

Mrs. Rodgers said the convention will feature numerous workshops, panel discussions, and conferences designed to help the Realtor and his salesmen serve the public better. She added that there will also be meetings of CREA's 38 statewide committees, banquets, luncheons and entertainment events.

Big Troop-Carrying Ball Listed in Week's Patents

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — A University of Denver professor has invented a vehicle capable of rolling over rough terrain like a giant ball and still keeping its crew upright.

The frame of the open sphere is formed of circular metal rims. In the center is a closed nacelle, or cabin, suspended from gimbals and weighted so that its floors remain level.

The patent granted last week to Dr. Arthur A. Ezra is assigned to the Martin-Marietta Corporation. When he applied for the patent the inventor was head of the company's research laboratory in Denver.

The vehicle is designed for exploratory work over glaciers, on polar ice caps, or over the surface of the moon. Dr. Ezra had the moon in mind when he conceived it.

THE OMNITRON, an accelerator proposed by the University of California at Berkeley, is designed for the synthesis of gigantic atoms (heavier than Element 103) and for atomic surgery. It could accelerate heavier particles than existing machines can handle.

The patent was granted to Bob H. Smith, Robert M. Main and Albert Ghiorso of Berkeley and assigned to the Atomic Energy Commission.

The projected synchrotron, or atom smasher, would cost $25 million and take four years to build. The suggested site is on a hill at the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory in Berkeley. The diameter of 120 feet would make it about the size of the Bevatron, an existing Berkeley synchrotron.

If authorized and financed by Congress, the Omnitron is expected to provide a valuable research tool for medical and physical science. It would accelerate the nuclei of all 92 of the known elements.

THE RESEARCH Council of Alberta, at Edmonton, received a patent last week for a method of transporting packaged materials through pipelines.

Materials mentioned include solid fertilizers, grains and liquid heavy chemicals such as sulfuric acid, all enclosed in plastic envelopes.

The packages are cylindrical or spherical, with an outside diameter about nine tenths that of the pipe interior. They can be inserted into the pipeline through a lock, carried hundreds of miles, discharged into a tank at the destination and collected on a conveyor.

The patent, granted to Gordon W. Hodgson and Michael E. Charles, describes the use of water as the carrier in a horizontal inch-and-a-quarter pipe.

A NEW YORK radiologist, Dr. Edward E. Sheldon, was granted a patent for an improved endoscope, which transmits light into an inaccessible body organ and brings out a two-dimensional picture.

The instrument makes use of special fibers that carry light around corners. In all previous devices, according to Dr. Sheldon, a lamp had to be inserted in the end. The source of illumination can now be outside the patient's body.

The equipment covered by the patent permits "cold" light of high strength to be used, with no danger of burning the patient. It is said to make possible fast color photography and even motion pictures.

The inventor holds more than 50 patents, some of which cover X-ray devices used in hospitals for heart operations and for diagnosis of cancer.

Iten to Talk to CREA's Appraisers

Albert Iten, industrial Realtor of Long Beach and former savings and loan appraiser and loan officer, Thursday will discuss "Highlights of Industrial Subdivision Planning and Financing" before members of the California Real Estate Association's Appraisal Division, it was announced by J. C. Foster of Long Beach, division chairman.

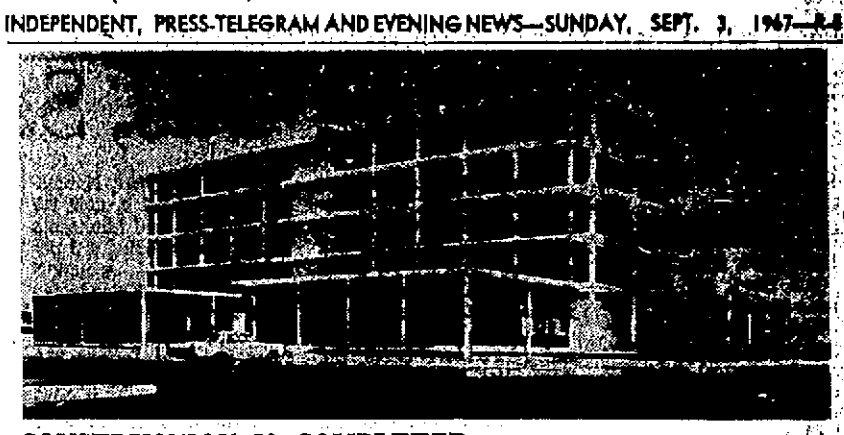

His talk will be during the group's monthly 6:30 p.m. dinner meeting at the Engineer's Club, Room 3333, Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles.

* * * *

ITEN WAS chief appraiser for Prudential Savings and Loan Association in the San Gabriel Valley, then chief loan officer for the Belmont Savings and Loan Association, Long Beach, before becoming associated with Lonnie M. Dunn Industrial Properties, Santa Ana.

Those interested in attending the meeting may make reservations through the California Real Estate Association, 520 S. Grand Avenue, Los Angeles.

Rising Gas, Sales Taxes Face Vacationers

BEDFORD, Mass. (UPI) — GCA Corp. and W&L.E. Gurley have reached an understanding for GCA to acquire Gurley for stock. Gurley makes optical and other instruments. GCA makes laboratory instruments and does research.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Anthony M. Frank, president of the State Mutual Savings and Loan Association, Los Angeles, has predicted that most savings and loan associations shortly will convert to both mutual and stock savings bank charters and that commercial banks will not be permitted to compete for the savings of individuals. Frank spoke before the New York Society of Security Analysts.

BOSTON (UPI)—Anelex Corp. and Mohawk Data Sciences Corp. have agreed to merge through an exchange of stock. Stockholders of both companies will vote on the proposal at special meetings. Anelex designs, manufactures and sells electronic and elctromechanical devices. MDS is engaged in the development, manufacture and sale or rental of electronic input and communications data processing equipment.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bangor Punta, Corp. has bought General Ordnance Equipment Corp., which will operate as part of Smith & Wesson, Inc., subsidiary of Bangor Punta. General Ordnance manufactures a tactical police weapon for law enforcement agencies.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Pan American Petroleum Corp. said it will expand a natural gas processing plant in Vermillion Parish, La. to about 3½ times its present capacity by mid-1968. Pan American owns about 50 per cent of the plant. It is a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana).

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Eaton Yale & Towne Inc. will purchase for cash Timberjack Machines Ltd. of Woodstock, Ontario, Canada, and Timberjack Machines Inc., of Baltimore. It is understood the transaction involved about $11 million.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Goodbody & Co. says that traders seem to be turning away from the rapid growth stocks. The company notes that such issues have lost popularity in the past only to rise to new peaks. Still, according to the analyst, whatever the near-term prospects for these glamors may be, it is the "quality" stocks that apparently are shaping up for a "significant" advance.

Stanley Heller & Co. says one explanation for the renewal of trader interest in the investment grade issues may be a search for basic values now that the economic picture for the last half of the year has begun to crystallize. The analyst says it views the return of quality leadership as an important ingredient for continuation of the broad-based uptrend.

Graham Loving & Co. sees the start of a change in the market climate from bullish to bearing regarding growth stocks. While the analyst does not recommend "wholesale: liquidation of these issues, it suggests that investors be more careful in making new commitments in this area.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Arthur Wiesenberger & Co. notes that the stock market is unlikely to prove an exception. The investment firm says it would appear that the summer rally may extend itself in the period ahead.

Shearson, Hammill & Co. says that what probably will stop the upward course of the stock market sooner or later is a "blow-up" in the speculative issues. However, the company says such a blow-up will be "easily recognizable" in the many inflated issues before it starts to hurt the fundamentally sound, reasonably priced stocks.

Vacationing Americans traveling around the country are discovering that state sales, cigarette and gasoline taxes have taken no vacation, says Commerce Clearing House.

In the case of cigarette and gasoline taxes, the state rates are in addition to an 8 cent a pack federal cigarette tax and a 4 cent a gallon federal gasoline tax, as well as similar levies made by hundreds of cities and towns dotting the nation.

Also, visitors to Montreal's "Expo 67" will find no escape from taxes either. The Canadian province of Quebec levies a gasoline tax of 16 cents on an imperial gallon, a 6 per cent sales tax, and a 5 cent cigarette tax, CCH said.

* * * *

FORTY-FOUR states and the District of Columbia levy general sales and use taxes with rates ranging from 2 per cent in Indiana, Louisiana, New York, Oklahoma, Texas and Virginia to 5 per cent in Pennsylvania and Rhode Island.

So far this year, Nebraska has enacted a new 2.5 per cent tax and Minnesota will begin imposing a 3 per cent tax Aug. 1. A new 3 per cent tax was also levied in North Dakota to replace the expired 2¼ per cent sales tax and former 2¼ per cent use tax which has been levied on all sales since the 1965 expiration of the former sales tax.

* * * *

SALES AND USE tax increases were approved in Rhode Island — 4 per cent to 5 per cent; Washington — 4.2 per cent to 4.5 per cent; and Wyoming — 2.5 per cent to 3 per cent. Travelers to Illinois face a freshly boosted tax of from 3-½ per cent to 4-¼ per cent which, when combined with the ½ of 1 per cent municipal and county sales levies rounds out to 4-¾ percent on purchases in the Prairie State.

On Aug. 1, municpalities and counties are empowered to levy a ¾ of 1 per cent tax which will bring the Illinois state-local levy on that date to a nickel on every dollar, CCH said.

* * * *

ADDITIONALLY, Texas has okayed local sales and use taxes of 1 per cent to apply to the same property and allow the same exemptions as the 2 per cent state tax, and Nevada has imposed a mandatory 1 per cent county sales and use tax similar to the 2 per cent state tax.

NEW DUTY

Clyde A. Paisley, long active in Long Beach civic affairs, has been promoted to managership of western operations for Maxson Electronics Corporation, a Great River, N. Y., firm producing missiles.

Colorado counties, certain cities and incorporated towns are empowered to impose sales taxes, subject to voter approval in the taxing jurisdiction, on top of the 3 per cent state levy.

Awaiting the governor's approval in Iowa is a proposed boost in that state's levy from 2 per cent to 3 per cent effective Oct. 1.

* * * *

MOTORISTS to Minnesota, New Mexico and Oregon will find these states have upped their gasoline tax rates from 6 cents to 7 cents per gallon. Driving in Washington will cost motorists 9 cents a gallon in gasoline taxes — up from 7.5 cents.

Venturing into Montana by car will mean 6.5 cents in state gas taxes — up from 6 cents, and motoring in Wyoming will cost 6 cents a gallon — up a penny.

Awaiting executive approval in Illinois is a proposal boosting that state's gasoline tax from 5 cents to 6 cents beginning August 1, CCH reported.

State gasoline tax rates range from the low of 5 cents a gallon in Kansas, Missouri, and Texas to the high combined Hawaii-Hawaii County tax of 11 cents, CCH said.

* * * *

EVERY STATE but North Carolina taxes cigarettes.

Tennessee and Wyoming both increased their cigarette tax rates to 8 cent a pack this year, becoming the twentieth and twenty-first states to assess at this level. While the Tennessee rate marked a penny jump Wyoming flatly doubled its old rate.

Also, New Hampshire hiked its tobacco products tax from 21 per cent to 30 per cent of retail value.

Awaiting approval in Illinois is a bill calling for an increase in the state tax per pack from 7 cents to 9 cents effective August 1st — the rate currently assessed only in Mississippi.

Across the border in Iowa is another boost awaiting the governor's signature — from 8 cents to 10 cents a pack. Upon agust 1 would join Massachusetts, New York, Vermont and Wisconsin in slapping a dime state tax on a pack of cigarettes, according to CCH.

PRINCESS HITS THE WATER

Sideways launching of Matson Navigation Company's new inter-island container carrier Hawaiian Princess at Bethlehem Shipyard in Beaumont, Tex., creates big splash as 338-foot vessel hits water. Craft, which will carry 156 freight containers and 1,600 tons of liquid cargo, is headed for Hawaii service where it will haul containers from Honolulu to neighboring islands.

California Industrial Parks Lead

California leads the nation in number of industrial parks with a total of 317, according to the 12th Annual Site Selection Handbook, published by Conway Research Inc., Atlanta, Ga.

More than 80,000 acres are now in use by California industry in planned industrial parks, representing some $1 billion in investments.

Industrial parks, as defined by the Site Selection Handbook, are tracts of land planned for industrial use under one ownership, offering services and sites for industry with specific restrictions as to use of the land and performance standards.

Runners-up in number of parks developed for industry include Illinois, Missouri, Ohio and Texas.

CALIFORNIA RANKS second only to New York in number of "fly-in" parks — a concept that arose out of efforts to minimize inconveniences of ground travel. A "fly-in" park is an industrial park which provides taxiway access to individual plant sites.

At Van Nuys Airport, example, business executives can park corporate aircraft less than 200 feet from the $1.5 million Hathaway Building.

The Site Selection Handbook reported more than 100 new "fly-in" parks across the nation.

Ambassador Airlines Inaugurates Direct L.B.-Las Vegas Flight

Long Beach's only direct air service to Las Vegas and return has been inaugurated by newly formed Ambassador Airlines as part of a schedule which also includes daily flights to Palomar, Los Angeles and several San Diego fields.

The Long Beach-Las Vegas flights will be daily at 6 p.m., returning to Long Beach at 7 a.m. each day.

* * * *

FROM LONG Beach, the airline's nine-passenger turbo-prop twin-Beeches will fly to Palomar, back to Los Angeles, then to Lindbergh and Gillespie fields in San Diego, and north again to Palomar, Long Beach and Los Angeles.

In time, Bakersfield, Fresno and Sacramento may be added as stops, according to Art Carroll, general manger.

Ambassador now is working out details of package arrangements with several Las Vegas hotels, Carroll said.

* * * *

AS SOON AS the twin-Beeches have accumulated 1200 hours in operation and are scheduled for major overhauls, they will have their fuselages lengthened in order that capacity will be increased to 15 passengers, the executive said.

Ambassador maintains a ticket office in the Long Beach Airport terminal building. Director of stations is LeRoy Hall and Louis Jacques handles public relations.

Maverick for Sure

MAVERICK, Ariz. (UPI) — The town of Maverick, which often reports the coldest temperatures of any weather station in the U.S., will be abandoned by the timbering firm which owns it.

By the end of August, Maverick's 112 homes, the company store and the schoolhouse will be torn down and sold.

Bulldozers then will move in and complete the demolition job and restoring the forested townsite to the way it was 20 years ago before the logging community was built.

Philip E. Frankfort, executive vice president of Southwest Forest Industries, announced his firm will abandon the town because of the high cost of shipping logs by railroad.

* * * *

FRANKFORT SAID the 30-mile railroad connecting Maverick and McNary also will be abandoned. In the future, logs from the company's Ponderosa Pine timberlands will be trucked to McNary.

The firm is making every effort to find employment in other southwest forest industries plants for those put out of work by the company's decision to abandon Maverick and the railway, Frankfort said.

The town, which at its peak had a population of 500, was named after Big Sam Maverick, a Texas rancher, Indian fighter, signer of the Texas declaration of independence and one-time Texas state senator.

PORTS O'PROGRESS

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

One of the Port of Long Beach's long-time landmarks, the tall radar tower back of the pilot station adjacent to Pierpoint Landing, soon is to come down.

The tower, topped by a revolving radar antenna, is an old steel oil well derrick which port engineers dismantled, had galvanized to withstand the attack of corrosive salt air, and then reassembled it to create the first port radar station in the U.S.

The Jacobsen Pilot Service, Inc., is to move to a new building to be located at the present location of the east entrance light to the Middle Harbor.

Capt. J. A. Jacobson hopes to be in the new pilot headquarters by Christmas.

Milk Prices Higher in East, South

California's milk prices are among the lowest in the nation, according to the Dairy Council of California.

Retail store prices for a half gallon of milk—the most popular container size — are 49 cents in Los Angeles and 50 cents in San Francisco.

By comparison, housewives in Jacksonville, Fla., are paying the nation's highest price — up to 65 cents for the same amount of milk.

Other western cities are reporting higher prices, too. Homemakers in Portland, Ore., are paying as high as 61 cents per half gallon while residents of Seattle are paying up to 54 cents.

* * * *

NEW YORKERS are paying as much as 57 cents a half gallon while prices are not much lower in Washington, D.C., which has a high of 51 cents.

The Dairy Council said California milk prices have remained amazingly constant for the past several years.

San Franciscans are paying just 1 cent more per half gallon than they did during the years 1961-65 while the Los Angeles price has gone up two cents.

Open Forum for Real Estate Club

Members of the North Long Beach Real Estate Club are urged to attend Thursday's 8 a.m. meeting at the Park Pantry, 17511 S. Susana Road, for what is described as an "open forum and a surprise."

Our homes are too big for some families.

GREENBROOK

All of the homes at Greenbrook are really big. Very big. We have big garden view kitchens, big family rooms, big bedrooms and big master bedroom suites (enormous in fact).

But some of our homes are not big enough.

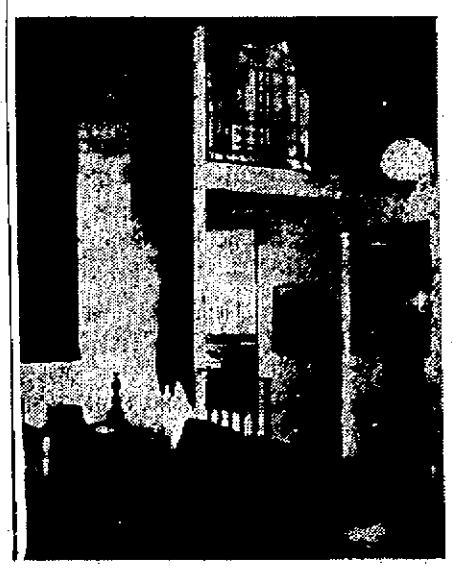

So we thought we'd even be bigger about it. We've designed several plans that even grow bigger with the years. We call them Spacemakers. They're for families that grow.

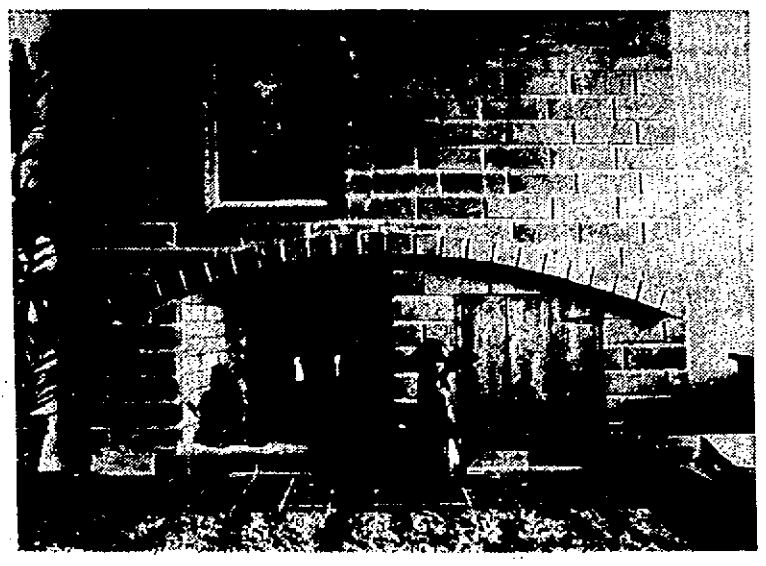

The Spacemaker II is a big home. But we leave the entire upstairs unfinished, which even makes it a much bigger home.

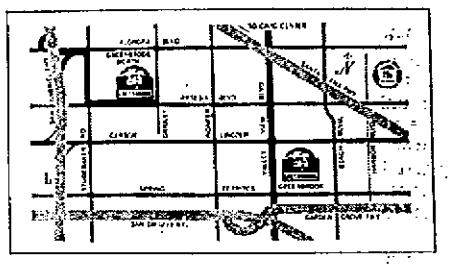

No rooms. No closets. No nothing. Just a big blank space nobody ever sees. (We have designed them so the areas don't show from the inside or outside.) By leaving the entire upstairs unfinished, you save several thousand dollars on the initial cost. Then, as your family grows up or you get more family or money (or both) you can begin to finish the unfinished area. (Do it yourself as a family "fun" project, or have someone else do it for you.) Maybe add a bedroom. And another. And another. Perhaps a big playroom. Or whatever. What really counts is that the space is there when you need it.

We suggest that you come out to see the Spacemakers right away. You will probably find yourself saying, "The Spacemakers are big enough for our family."

Automobile Club Announces Rigid Smog Control System Studies

An intensive study to determine the efficiency of both exhaust smog control systems being used on present model automobiles and 1968 prototype control systems has been announced by Joseph E. Havenner, executive vice president of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Havenner said the study, which is being partly funded by a federal grant administered by the State Motor Vehicle Pollution Control Board, is being conducted at the Automobile Club's Headquarters building at 2601 S. Figueroa St., Los Angeles.

* * * *

ACCORDING to the terms of the study grant, the project will attempt to answer three questions:

1. The effect of maintenance upon vehicle exhaust emissions.

2. The performance of 1968 prototype control systems.

3. The correlation between hot and cold start emission tests.

Preliminary work for the study has been under way by the Auto Club for more than a year. This included the recent installation of 1968 prototype smog control systems on selected automobiles and the establishment of a three-bay Automotive Research and Diagnostic Center at the Auto Club Headquarters facility.

* * * *

THE RESEARCH and Diagnostic Center, representing an investment of approximately $50,000 and placed in use for the first time this month, contains an automotive test dynamometer which can simulate road conditions, air pollution measurement instrumentation to check exhaust devices and various diagnostic equipment for determining the condition of automobile engines.

In addition to the smog testing program, the Auto Club is also conducting a pilot study of diagnostic centers.

The goal of this study is to develop diagnostic techniques, determine how efficient centers are, and, evaluate the value of such a service for the motorist, Havenner said.

* * * *

BOTH STUDIES will be conducted by the Automotive Engineering Department of the Auto Club and will be supervised by Louis J. Bintz, department manager and an automotive engineer.

Havenner said that smog research to date indicates maintenance has little or no effect upon exhaust emissions although exploration of this area will be continued since new means of maintenance may be developed which could change the picture.

As to the new 1968 exhaust controls, these devices represent major modifications over the 1966 and 1967 models and early tests indicate that they are performing in a satisfactory manner.

* * * *

HAVENNER said, however, that it is still to early to make valid comparisons between the 1966 and 1967 systems and the 1968 prototype systems.

The new smog research program is, in reality, part of a continuing club effort in this field. Approximately 18 months ago the Auto Club began surveillance of members' 1966 cars in cooperation with the Motor Vehicle Pollution Control Board to see how well exhaust control devices were measuring up to California clean air standards.

Ron Boren Firm Starts Construction

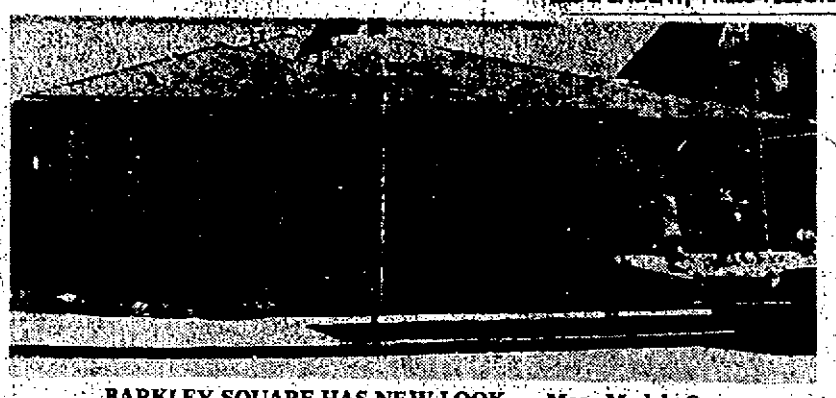

Ron Boren, Inc., Los Angeles and Anaheim contractors, has started construction of a 40,000 square foot tilt-up concrete panel structure for Cold Forming Specialties Co. at 1300 Manhattan Ave., Fullerton.

A metal extrusion firm, the company will use the facilities, with a cost of more than $300,000 for land acquisition and construction, for office and warehousing. The building is designed by David T. Witherly, with Majestic Realty Co. handling the transaction.

BARKLEY SQUARE HAS NEW LOOK . . . More Models Open

Telephone Line Work Is Begun

Work is under way on a major new $207,000 underground telephone conduit system in the eastern Long Beach area, according to E. R. Wellman, East Long Beach division manager for the General Telephone Company.

The system is being placed along Clark Avenue from the company's new dial switching center at 1625 Clark to Anaheim Road. It will then swing southeast to Bellflower Blvd. and from there will branch north to State College Drive and south to Colorado Street.

* * * *

WELLMAN emphasized that the construction activity will be undertaken in sections in order to minimize interference with travel along the busy traffic arteries.

Designed to hold a network of underground telephone cables, the system is being installed to meet future communications demands forecasted for the eastern Long Beach area.

Barkley Square New Models are Showing

Barkley Square's new models open to the home-buying public today and, to celebrate, there'll be free refreshments and the most advantageous terms in Cypress, builder Stanley W. Sampson announced.

Sampson, president of the Barkley Development Co., adds that all closing costs will be paid during the opening sale period. Homebuyers will save from $400 to $600, according to Frank Redman, sales manager.

"In addition, carpets, drapes, front lawns and sprinklers are included in the sale price," Sampson said.

* * * *

THE NEW HOMES also feature the Barkley Square "patio-kitchen" concept of indoor-outdoor living. There are a number of variations of the theme in the models.

In one of the balanced power models there is a kitchen counter outside a sliding glass window to the adjoining patio.

Barkley Square kitchens feature all built-ins as well as lifetime-laminated plastic counters and furniture finish cabinetry.

. . . distaffers to show fall fashion winners at stylish benefit luncheon

BELTED, SHORT JACKET SUIT IN BOLD PLAID
Mrs. Robert E. Krause, (right) is chairman of GOP fashion show

Canada may have its World of Man at Expo '67 . . . . but Long Beach Council of Republican Women will have its WORLD OF WOMEN (you can shorten that to WOW!) on Sept. 14.

That's the date for GOP distaffers' style show and luncheon, the type of fashionable event that sends a modern woman (and hubby's wallet) into orbit.

More than 1,000 style-conscious women are expected to fill the recently enlarged dining rooms of the globular-shaped Elks Club, 4101 E. Willow St., for the launching of fall's latest WOW fashions.

The action will begin with a reception at 11:15 a.m., followed by luncheon at noon. Then, in the Dome Room, the show will go on with Bullock's Lakewood presenting designer clothes to the music of Phil Horton's Trio.

A runway extending into the audience will afford the GOP'S particular world of women an unobstructed view of the fashions and commentator Aline Benesch, Bullock's fashion coordinator.

ADDING A WORLD of color, hostess members of the L.B. Council will wear the native costumes of women in other lands.

The council has extended invitations to presidents and members of all Federated Republican clubs in the area. Proceeds from the major fund-raising event are earmarked for 1968 election campaigns on all levels.

Fashion show chairman Mrs. Robert E. Krause, 4039 Locust Ave., currently is accepting reservations.

Assisting with arrangements are Geneva Fowler, show and reservations co-chairman; Mrs. Edwin J. Squire Jr., publicity; Mrs. Ira Wallin and Mrs. Leroy Carlisle, decorations; Mrs. Ward Johnson, hostesses; Mrs. Lewis T. Dorgn and Mrs. David Eagleson, awards; Mrs. George Alexander, favors; and Mrs. W. G. Hanbury, telephone.

. . . not for 72-year-old Alice

MEMENTOS OF A BUSY 72 YEARS
. . . vintage baseball scorers her father used 61 years ago are admired by Mrs. Alice Bonner of North Long Beach.

By MARJIE SMITH

Antique baseball scorers, spiritualism, U.S. presidents and chicken farms may not have much in common, but they've all played a part in the life of Alice Bonner, who at 72 is the antithesis of "the elderly woman."

Categorizing herself as a "lone wolf," Mrs. Bonner is quick to add to her definition: she likes being independent.

Friends she has — they provide companionship when she wants it, a change of scenery (she's preparing to spend a few weeks "housesitting" up north), and transportation when she needs it (she hasn't driven in years).

But she likes being alone. She identifies with today's transient youth since her own childhood consisted of many moves. Scrapbooks and mementos in her neat North Long Beach apartment chronicle her life from Hillsdale, Ill. to California, with points in between.

What they can't show is Alice Bonner's indomitable spirit which helped her overcome cancer a few years ago, saw her through a lifetime of working and eased the trauma of two divorces in the days when women were supposed to stay married.

Flipping pages of her scrapbook (and her memory as well), Alice recalled the Boston Bloomers, a rip-snorting, turn-of-the-century girls' baseball team, umpired by her father in Hillsdale. Alice was bat girl (aged about 9) and has loved baseball since. She's currently seeking a home for two prized possessions left from those days — an automatic baseball scorer by Spaulding, patented in 1886, and another manufactured by A. M. Stephenson in Joliet, Ill., with no date.

Shortly after her mother's death,

WILD WAVES SAY

Parties are hippie to hilt or go pure Hawaiian

By Iola Masterson
Society Editor

THEY went psychedelic with a mirthful vengeance at Dr. Robert and Paddy Kaller's Park Estates home. Occasion was a hippie cocktail and dinner dance gathering for alums of Phi Delta Epsilon, medical fraternity, their wives and guests. Bob is alums' new prexy, by the way.

Explosion of mirth hit the Kaller pad when five couples, dressed to the hippie hilt, presented a song and dance revue take-off on newscasters Chet Huntley and David Brinkley. However, main characters were renamed Chet Hartley and David Worthit so their musical newscast was known as the Hartley Worthit Report. Performers in skit were Drs. and wives Ronald and Sylvia Hartman, Michael and Beverly Singer, Larry and Lil Rothstein, Marshall and Rita Grobert and Earl and Shirley Feiwell.

Among the big throng of medics and wives present were Sidney and Barbara Penn (he's immediate past president of group), Robert and Rhonda Miller, Joseph and Ruth Weiss, Albert and Ellen Haft, Harold and Elaine Warren, Sidney and Jerry Willner and John and Jean Gardner.

SOME SORT of a sixth sense must have guided Ernest and Louise Belcher, 4201 Cedar Ave., when they selected this past week in which to have a garden luau. The balmy night was more Hawaiian than Oahu and that was oh wow-hu okay with everyone of their 50 or so guests.

Wearing cool island clothes were such Polynesians-for-a-night as Jim and Doris Wood, Jonah and Helen Jones, Jules and Esther Brady, Dr. Bill and Ruth VanDerhoof, Don and Vada Spring, Supervisor Burton and Polly Chace, Thomas and Helen Brennan, Kerry and Elka Belcher, Earl and Virginia Milton and Tell and Virginia Tuffli.

THOSE PERIPATETIC AND PERENNIAL bachelor brothers, Jack and Don Crawford, will wrap up five weeks of travel in South America with return to town next Sunday. Now winter in Chile, they went down primarily to go skiing at the famous Chilean ski resort of Portillo.

Also on their agenda was a stay at Jungle House on the Amazon River and visiting in such cities as Montevideo, Uruguay; Buenos Aires, Argentina; Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; Caracas, Venezuela; Lima, Peru; Santiago, Chile; and Port of Spain, Trinidad.

ALMOST EVERYONE went swimming, there was lots of singing and absolutely no politicking (well, hardly any) when GOP Young Adults had a just-for-the-heck-of-it summer luau at home of Ed and Delores Smith, 2744 Yearling St., Lakewood.

In charge with Delores were Marilynn (Mrs. Joe) Lusher and Georgia (Mrs. Jerry) Carpenter. A few of the guests living it up in midst of tropical decor were Bob and Loydene Cunningham, Mimi Golden, Bill and Deena Buckley, Carl and Ruth Fleming, Cal and Mary Ann O'Dell.

Others at the swingy Polynesian affair were John and Carol Hermanns, Glenn and Janet Baughn, Ed and Pat Murray, Fred Bristow, Dave Hamm and Bob Reed.

MEDICAL FRATERNITY ALUMS, SPOUSES, JOIN HIPPIES—FOR ONE NIGHT ONLY . . . Beverly Singer (left), Shirley (Mrs. Earl) Feiwell, Dr. Michael Singer (what emoting!) and Sylvia (Mrs. Ron) Hartman were among cast presenting hilarious skit at party.

ALL INTERMINGLED in the lives of Ruth Jensen, Mary Truitt and Bob and Dorothy Matteson are leaving or returning from trips and switching houses.

Ruth and Mary returned from a terrific tour to Russia, Mongolia, Gobe Desert, Afghanistan, Turkey, Pakistan and Iran with extra bonus stopovers in Greece for Ruth and in Denmark for Mary. The food was pretty grim in the Soviet countries and everyone lost weight — lots of it. But they gained it all back when they did the Afghanistan, Turkey, etc. part of trip.

Anyway, Ruth returned just long enough to unpack and take over at Bob and Dorothy's as chief pet and house sitter while they vacation in Hawaii. The Mattesons flew over this week and will stay at Hanalei Plantation and Coco Palms on Kauai for two weeks. In the meantime, relatives of Ruth's are occupying her place.

Now about that Mary. Here she is barely home from one long and exotic trip and she has already made plans to go on another one, a tour of Africa, during most of the month of October.

CAMPING OUT in an apartment and hoping to move into their new home in the Golden West development between Westminster and Huntington Beach this weekend are Bernice and Kenneth Hurley. Everyone cross fingers for 'em. They have anticipated making this move every week-end for last month but one hitch after another has delayed them.

HAVE BEEN told that Tabi Dorgan is in a whirlwind of a dither. As chairman for the Southern California Symphony-Hollywood Bowl benefit fashion show, which takes place at Century Plaza on Oct. 3, she has been trying to get invitations out, members lined up to model and get squared away to move into TWO new places at once.

She and husband, Dr. Lewis, have built, I'm told, a truly magnificent adobe ranch house at Rancho Santa Fe (with swimming pool) snuggled in an orange grove that covers five acres of property. They were to move there this weekend. During this past week they were to move into their new Townhouse city home at Rossmoor. Two moves to two places within a seven day period? Lord love a duck. Who wouldn't be in a dither?

COMPARING NOTES about rather rugged, but thoroughly enjoyable vacations, were Donna Nelson and Barbara Schuster. Donna and Dr. Al and their sons, John, 12, Steven, 9, and Paul, 7, backpacked into the Wonder Lakes on the John Muir Trail, about 40 miles out of Bishop. They set up base camp at one of the lakes and each of the five days they were in wilderness country hiked at least seven miles on fishing or just enjoying the scenery treks.

Weather was gorgeous, there were wild flowers in profusion but the mosquitos were thick as locusts, you'll pardon the expression. Barbara and Ron and their three, Mark, 13, Marty, 8, and Nancy Ann, 6, went to the desert and were bedeviled by both heat and drenched by thunder and lightning storms. Both gals said they enjoyed themselves despite some of the "uncomforts" of home but would gladly repeat the same travels next year.

GETTING READY to grow oranges, raise horses and live the life of country squire and squiress are Harold and Tana Paige. They've bought a home on a roomy six-acre parcel of land in Valley Center near Escondido, and will move about Oct. 1. Druggist Harold will commute a couple of times a week to his post at Vermillion Drug.

HOME FROM summer-long gallivanting is Arlene (Mrs. L. N.) McDowell. A highlight was staying with Sue (Mrs. Kenneth St. Clair) Rice in her lovely summer home at Waterford, Pa. Amazing experience for Arlene was having Sue take her on a mushroom picking expedition in an old cemetery in Waterford and finding mushrooms six to eight inches in diameter.

Arlene visited friends in Massachusetts and Erie, Pa., where she was entertained in homes of Victorian vintage with as many as 40 rooms. They slant some from age, she said, but are tremendously gracious with their high ceilings and gorgeous wood paneling. She also toured in Ohio, New York State and New England. In her old hometown of Boston she was dismayed to discover she couldn't find any authentic Boston clam chowder on the days she was there. "Apparently," said Arlene, "they reserve this treat for Fridays only."

AFTER MAKING their home in Phoenix, Ariz., for the past five years, Donna and Jack Ratkay are getting settled back in their old home town of Long Beach. They bought a house at 3823 Elm Ave. in Bixby Knolls which they have been redecorating in between hopping over to Hawaii for a vacation rest from moving chores.

Couples begin Mr. and Mrs. roles

Brady-Bauman

Vows were solemnized at 7 p.m. Friday in Westminster Presbyterian Church for Nancy Ruth Bauman and Garald William Brady. She is the daughter of Mrs. Ruth Christian, 2800 Maine Ave., and G. A. Bauman. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Landwahr, 3202 Johnson Ave.

Her wedding dress was a crepe sheath with an empire bodice with Chantilly lace and cathedral train.

Koula Frudakis was maid of honor. Best man was Fredrick Brady and ushers were Daniel Hale, Kenneth Broadway and James Brady.

A reception followed in the church social hall.

The couple will be at home in Redondo Beach after a wedding trip.

Steele-Brian

Now on a wedding trip to Hawaii are Mr. and Mrs. Gary Dean Steele who were married Saturday in Truett Memorial Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Salisbury, 3570 Thornlake Ave., are parents of the bride, the former Diane Yvonne Brian. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Geneva L. Steele, St. Louis, Mo.

The bride chose a gown of re-embroidered lace over candlelight satin.

Lorretta Lufsey was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sharon and Arlene Salisbury. Frank Gray was best man. Ushers were Fred and Jerry Salisbury. Julie Jordon was flower girl.

A reception was held in Rochelle's Restaurant. Upon their return from Hawaii they will establish a home in San Diego.

She was graduated from Millikan High School and he attended schools in Missouri.

Johnson-Dagert

On a wedding trip to the California Redwoods are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Glen Johnson who were married Friday in Lakewood First Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the former Lynn Ann Dagert, daughter of the Donald E. Dagerts, 4417 Graywood Ave. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Johnson, Anaheim.

The bride designed and created her gown of Swiss silk and her full-length veil.

Mrs. Gary Morton was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Jacqueline Cooper, Cheryl Anson and Lois Bricknell.

Ronald Cooper was best man. Ushers were Donald Dagert, a brother of the bride, Aca Sabisch and Whitey Anson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

A reception in the home of the bride's parents followed. They plan to live in Placentia. She attends California State College, Fullerton, and he is a student at Pasadena Nazarene College.

MRS. GARY STEELE

MRS. L. G. JOHNSON

MRS. TERRY DAHM

Dahm-Furry

Dianne Janette Furry and Terry Thomas Dahm exchanged vows before 150 guests in St. Maria Goretti Church at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alexander Furry, 4402 Conquista Ave., Lakewood. Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Dahm, 3722 Iroquois Ave.

A gown of white Chantilly lace and organza was worn by the bride.

Mrs. Patrick S. McCann was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Darlene Furry, and Cindy Dahm, sisters of the bride and bridegroom.

Patrick McCann was best man. Ushers were Steve Dahm and Bob Furry, brothers of the bride and bridegroom.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents.

The couple will be at home in Bellflower after a trip to Palm Springs.

They attend Long Beach City College. Both were graduated from Lakewood High School.

Yunkers' daughter, Susan, married in Episcopal rite

Several hundred guests gathered Friday night in St. Luke's Episcopal Church for the wedding of Susan Dorsey Yunker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Starr Yunker, 1540 Ramillo Ave., and Charles Gilbert Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Leroy Armstrong of Louisville, Ky.

The bride approached the altar in a candlelight gown of reembroidered Alencon lace fashioned along princess lines. A redingote of lace with chapel train was caught at the shoulders with satin bows embroidered in seed pearls.

Miss Nancy Ellis of Washington, D.C., cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Other attendants were Martha Louise Armstrong, sister of the bridegroom, Louise Hagemann, Virginia Gross, Rilla Rothwell, Mrs. John VanDyke and Mrs. William Sparrow.

Best man was Gary G. Bayer. The 250 guests were seated by David Alexander, George Fisher, William Neukom, Robert Hess, Robert Rickett and Burton Myers.

The newlyweds received guests at a reception in the garden of the Yunker home. They will be at home in the Los Angeles area after returning from Hawaii Sept. 11.

The new Mrs. Armstrong was graduated from Wilson High School. She received her bachelor's degree from Scripps College and her master's from Stanford Univeristy.

The bridegroom received his bachelor of science degree from Purdue University where he was chosen outstanding senior man and outstanding industrial engineering student. He received his law degree from Stanford University where he was vice president of the Stanford Law Association. His affiliations include Phi Gamma Delta, which he served as president, Omicron Delta Kappa, Iron Key, Tau Beta Pi engineering honorary and Sigma Delta Chi.

Secretaries offered CPS review course

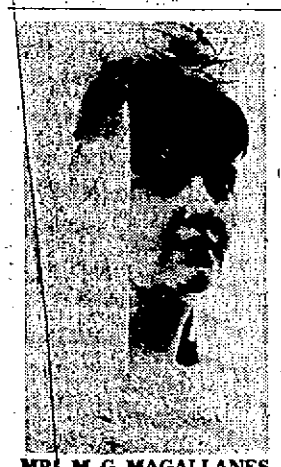

Queen Beach Chapter, National Secretaries Association, will sponsor a Certified Professional Secretary review course beginning Sept. 11 from 7 to 10 p.m. in Room 305, Lakewood Extension Center, 4400 Briercrest Ave., Lakewood.

Registration will take place in the classroom at the first meeting.

The fall semester, instructed by Mrs. Edward Blust, CPS, will cover human relations, business administration, economics and business law. Spring semester will cover accounting, procedures and skills. Three units of college credit each semester can be applicable toward an AA degree at Long Beach City College. There are no pre-requisites.

ALTHOUGH primarily designed to assist prospective candidates to prepare for the national CPS examination the first weekend in May, it provides an excellent opportunity for all secretaries to update their knowledge of modern business practices, including an introduction to nomenclature used in the field of data processing.

It is not necessary to be a member of NSA to enroll in the class or to apply to take the examination. Total CPSs to date is 3,901, California leading the nation with 451. Deadline for submitting applications for the 1968 examination is Dec. 1.

UNITED POWER

A stitch in time...

By BILL DUNCAN
I,P-T Staff Writer

During the hot summer months six white women made trips into the Long Beach central city area to work in a sweltering loft.

These women are volunteers in the Long Beach Neighborhood Adult Participation Project's self-help program. They teach sewing classes and knitting classes.

One, Mrs. Marjorie Stewart comes to Long Beach all the way from Huntington Beach. Another, Mrs. Donna Brust, drives in from Lakewood.

"They are the most wonderful people I've ever met," said Mrs. Faye Ross, the grandmotherly coordinator of NAPP's consumer department. "It is a worthwhile program that makes for better communications between people. And that's very important today."

THE WOMEN volunteers say it is they who are being rewarded.

Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Brust and Mrs. Lucy Kohn of Long Beach come on Tuesdays to teach sewing to teen-agers.

Two volunteers, Mrs. Lillian Anderson and Mrs. Sharon Cotrell, both of Long Beach, come on Thursday to teach adults to sew. On Mondays, Mrs. Katherine Hurnett of Long Beach conducts a class in knitting.

"The teen-agers," Mrs. Ross said, "are making their own clothes, but also devote some time to making things for children in head start classes."

Young mothers are learning to sew baby clothes. "You'd be surprised how much money they can save by making their own clothes," Mrs. Ross said. "The idea is to help them help themselves."

Mrs. Ross conducts classes for low-income families on how to buy food, how to use credit, how to budget wisely on the installment plan, how to purchase clothing, appliances and furniture and how to borrow money wisely.

"Our aim is to raise the level of self-sufficiency among the low-income families," she said.

MRS. FAYE ROSS . . . coordinator of NAPP's consumer department.

Rogers, Boswell wed

A home in Bellflower after a wedding trip to San Francisco is planned by Mr. and Mrs. James Merle Rogers who were married at 8 p.m. Friday in Bellflower Chapel of The Wedding Bells.

The bride is the former Linda Diane Boswell, daughter of the Kent Boswells, 4277 Agnes St., Lynwood. He is son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray M. Rogers, 6103 Monlaco Road.

Mardell Boswell was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Kathy Rogers, a sister of the bridegroom, and Dena Adair.

Best man was Edgar Herman Neuenschwander III. Ushers were Tom Gardner and Dale Boswell, a brother of the bride.

A reception followed in the Chapel garden.

The bride was graduated from Lynwood High School and the bridegroom from Bretheran High School. He also attended Long Beach City College.

Lodge schedules spaghetti dinner

Annual spaghetti dinner and dance of Long Beach Lodge, 1982, Order of Sons of Italy in America, will begin at 6:30 p.m. Saturday in St. Joseph's Parish Hall, 6200 E. Willow St. Nick Spino's Orchestra will play for dancing from 9 p.m.

Brandeis Women bid youth to party

Discussing program for annual garden party of National Women's Committee of Brandeis University are Debi Solomon (left), Martha McIntosh and Mrs. Stanley Solomon. Event is slated for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in 1450 Bryant Drive East home of Mrs. Solomon, president. Daughters have been invited to view back-to-school and fall fashions from Park at Jacquie's. Another highlight will be a demonstration and sale of papier mache sculpture by Mrs. Nathan Greitzer.

DEAR ABBY

Security or always loveless?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am ashamed and miserable, but I must face the facts. I've done everything from crawl to fight to make my second marriage work, but our home life is a miserable existence, with constant quarreling and bedroom frigidity.

Any love, respect, companionship, and shared hobbies we once knew are long gone. We have no children and nothing in common except our home address and bank account.

The nerve-wracking pretense to friends and relatives that our sick marriage is a success is becoming unbearable. I've thought of divorce, but his is a small town, and I dread the whispers that I have "failed" again.

My husband has made it plain that he doesn't love me, that I'm unable to earn my own living, and I am no longer young.

Should I admit that this marriage is another failure and become a two-time loser? or should I sacrifice my self-respect and resign myself to a loveless life of humiliation and hypocrisy for the sake of financial security?

BITTER

DEAR BITTER: You don't say how long you've endured a "loveless life of constant quarreling and bedroom frigidity," but if you continue to put up with it, regardless of what you say, it is obvious that you have decided that the financial security is worth the price you are paying for it.

DEAR ABBY: Although I am only 21, and "young" in your eyes, I am a mature man, having lived fully and seen a great deal of the world.

There is so much said about "sex" these days. Can you tell me what is wrong with sex for sex's sake if I do not harm anyone?

MATURE

DEAR MATURE: The answer is obvious. It harms YOU. Promiscuous sex will gradually transform you into a selfish, pleasure-seeking creature, incapable of loyalty or of loving another.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is getting married in a few months, and my husband and I offered to pay for the flowers in the bridal procession and for the liquor for the wedding.

I understand that according to etiquette, the names of the groom's parents are not included on the invitations. I feel that since our son has parents (thank God), after his name should be, "the son of Mr. and Mrs. So and So.

Many of my husband's business associates will be invited, and they don't know our son, and have never even heard of the girl or her parents, but they do know us.

Don't you think the bride's parents should exercise some common sense and ask the printer to use the names of the groom's parents as well as the bride's? I believe this should be done whether the bridegroom's parents pay anything toward the wedding or not. Please answer.

UPSET

DEAR UPSET: I agree, it would help to identify the bridegroom if his parents' names were included on the invitation. But if one wants to go "by the book," only the names of the bride's parents are used. I am informed, however, that only about three or four out of 500 requests do include the bridegroom's parents names.

ALICE BONNER

Rocking chairs are 'out'

Alice, still in her teens, was married. She and her husband opened a restaurant on the Mississippi near Clinton, Iowa, and life was great — for a while.

"BAKING 40 or 50 pies every Saturday morning was no problem. But then I had a disagreement with my mother-in-law, and put her out of the restaurant. My husband sided with her, so I put him out, too. I never saw him again."

She liked the restaurant business, however, and after the breakup of her marriage went with the Harvey System, remaining for nine years.

"I was a good cook," she states proudly, "so good that each month I got a $20 tip from F. J. Pettibone, then president of Santa Fe Railroad. I used to fix him the dishes he liked."

After a stint with Harvey House in Wichita Alice returned to Texas and married a Santa Fe engineer — a railroad man who wanted to raise chickens.

"We started with a shack in Irving, near Dallas, and 500 baby chicks. The first eggs we sold cost 10 cents a dozen and the last, during World War II, were 75 cents."

Community affairs beckoned during Mrs. Bonner's "egg and I" period. After her second marriage ended in divorce, she took a secretarial course, then worked on Lon A. Smith's campaign for Texas railroad commissioner.

DURING THE campaign she saw quite a lot of a young "whipper-snapper" named Lyndon B. Johnson, then secretary to Cong. Richard Clayberg.

"Johnson was a very serious young man. Even at 22 or 23 he knew where he was going and what he was doing."

The political group active in Smith's campaign included "Cactus Jack" Garner, Vice President under Roosevelt, who gave barbecues at his Uvalde, Tex., ranch.

"I don't know if Lyndon picked up the idea there," Alice said. "But barbecues were a great way to get people together informally."

Alice arrived in California a few days before Pearl Harbor and dove into fierce activity at Long Beach Naval Shipyard where she was supervisor of the supply department — a post she held for 22 years.

Presidents Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower sent letters of commendation for her work at the shipyard — documents she treasures.

"I'm going to write Lyndon and see if he remembers the old days in Texas," Alice said. "If he writes back, I'll have the signatures of four presidents."

LIFE HAS calmed for Alice Bonner since her retirement, and one of her anchors has proved to be the Spiritual Science Church which she joined upon coming to California. She attends most of the time and is a spiritualist, but her particular interest is in supporting the church — she makes hand crafted articles for the church's fund-raising bazaars. Right now, that's taking most of her free time.

Gunther, Tabb vows are read

Nuptials were held at 10 a.m. Saturday in Lakewood Village Community Church for Martha Jean Tabb and William Paul Gunther. She is the daughter of Mrs. Willis L. Tabb Jr., 4142 Heather Rd. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gunther, Torrance.

Her wedding dress was of satin with a chiffon overskirt which formed a train.

Jean Brandt was maid of honor and best man was DaveTorgeson.

Ushers were Ken Tabb, a brother of the bride, and Larry Gunther, a brother of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony, a buffet reception was held in the home of the bride. They will be at home in Long Beach after a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe.

CSLB Affiliates to present annual tea at Old Rancho next Sunday

Admiring timeless beauty of Los Alamitos Rancho, impressive setting for their annual membership tea next Sunday are members of Fine Arts Affiliates of California State College, Long Beach, Mrs. Raymond Wendell (left), Robert Click and Mrs. Manuel Mayuga. Gates of the historic rancho will be opened to the public from 2 to 5 p.m. Tours will be conducted through the 19-room ranch house where mementos of the Bixby family remain. Tea will be served in the patio area. A landmark of the city, the estate is on land granted in 1784 to Manuel Nieto and acquired in 1878 by John W. Bixby. The college is on a portion of the original land grant. Affiliates sponsor events by music, art and theater arts departments of CSLB to promote better understanding of the campus by the community. The four-year-old group also raises funds for scholarships by staging an annual art auction and concert. This fall, tours will be made through Fine Arts departments. Members also are included on a mailing list and receive news of lectures and cultural events on campus. The rancho may be reached by driving South on Palo Verde Boulevard and entering through the Bixby Hills Gate.

'Show bizz' bargain offered Junior Programs audiences

Junior Programs, with a record of capacity, enthusiastic young audiences, this season is offering a better-than-usual bargain.

At the previous rate of six productions for $3 the series of shows has been a sell-out. This year the price remains $3 but the number of shows is increased to seven. Tickets to individual performances—when available—are 50 cents.

Performances are on Saturdays at 10 a.m. and again at noon in Long Beach City College Auditorium.

An original musical comedy about a Russian witch, based on folklore, will open the season Oct. 7. "Baba Yaga," written by Fred Bluth, is produced and directed by The Bluth Brothers.

"Old King Cole" is merry in a new musical performed by Lynwood Children's Theater and produced and directed by Pauline Kelvin and Ilean Rabens. It will be given Nov. 18.

"THE TOYMAKER and the Elf," on Jan. 20 is the story of rebellion in the toyshop which is foiled by kindly elves. It features the Los Angeles Junior Ballet of which Irina Kosmovska is artistic director. The story is set to music by Kablevsky.

"Young King Arthur," to be seen Feb. 10, tells how Merlin the Magician can teach young Arthur magic, but Arthur alone must pull the sword from the stone. This original adaptation of the legendary story is done by the El Camino Players and is produced by Les Thomas and Burnett Ferguson.

HUMOR is the keynote of "Good Grief O' Griffin," as it depicts the adventures of a giant griffin who takes an unsuspecting town by storm. An original musical by Ray and Eleanor Harder, it is produced by Eleanor Harder.

On April 27, Long Beach Children's Theater will perform "The Marvelous Land of Oz," written by Adele Thane and adapted from a book by Frank L. Baum. This sequel to "Wizard of Oz" introduces several new Oz characters.

The series will conclude May 2 with Mark Twain's classic "Tom Sawyer," given by Pasadena Playhouse Association Children's Theater, directed by Buddy Youngreen.

For ticket information call Mmes. James H. Gray, 361 Linares Ave.; Malcolm Lucas, 3231 Blume Drive, Los Alamitos; or John Vander Lans, 6460 El Jardin St.

Carousel slates 'Virginia Woolf'

Mercedes McCambridge and Wendell Corey co-star in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" at the Carousel Theater, West Covina, opening Tuesday, and continuing through Sep.t 17.

Neither are strangers to the lead roles, for Miss McCambridge played Martha in the play's Broadway production as well as in various companies on tour. Corey played George in the Melodyland presentation last year and in road company versions.

Melodyland sets celebrity series

Although Melodyland Theater in Anaheim is closed for refurbishing, tickets to coming attractions are on sale at the box office and ticket agencies.

The Johnny Mathis show Sept. 12 opens the fall celebrity series. Scheduled thereafter are Jimmy Durante and Edie Adams, Sept. 19-24; Diana Ross and The Supremes, plus The Temptations, Sept. 26-Oct. 1, and the Rusty Warren show, Oct. 12-14.

Push button film informs at museum

A color movie that tells what to look for in the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History in Exposition Park is now available to visitors at the touch of a button.

The film, "Museum Highlights," is shown by an automatic projector that contains its own screen and sound system. Visitors watch the action while listening through individual earphones.

Emphasis is on ways visitors may obtain a maximum of learning and understanding of the subject matter.

The museum is open daily except Monday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Admission is free.

Worth a leisurely visit: San Marino's Huntington

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Less than 40 miles away in a beautiful San Marino estate setting is the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery, one of the great treasuries of European and American art, crafts, furnishings and incunabula of the 15th through 18th centuries.

Outstanding among the hundreds of items in the library are the Ellesmere manuscipt of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" made about 1410, the Gutenberg Bible of 1450-55 (first book printed in Europe with movable type), the 1623 "First Folio" of Shakespeare's plays and manuscripts from the hands of George Washington and Benjamin Franklin.

In the west wing of this building are 15th and 16th century Italian and Flemish paintings as well as French sculpture, furniture, tapestries and poracelains of the 18th century.

Outside, beneath a 200-year old oak, rolling lawns studded with sculpture lead visitors to the Art Gallery which was the Huntington family residence from 1914-1927. Composed of seven principal galleries and 15 smaller galleries and halls, it houses collections of silver, miniatures, paintings, engravings, porcelains and tapestries as well as completely furnished rooms from 18th century England and France.

Most breathtaking is the main gallery with its larger than-life oils by the great 18th and 19th century English portraitists. Best known are Gainsborough's "Blue Boy," Lawrence's "Pinkie" and Reynolds' "Sarah Siddons as the Tragic Muse." These are in company with portraits of titled men and women of such elegance and presence as to make 20th century "jet setters" poor creatures

Paths outside lead to several enchanting gardens. The Shakespeare Garden, a large oval of planting beds, contains every plant mentioned by the bard.

Arbors of wisteria flanked by roses mark the way to the Japanese garden, a canyon full of winding paths, specimen plantings, trees, a bridged pond, running streams, ferns and Japanese stone sculpture. On the far side is a Japanese house.

This is but a slight introduction to the countless offerings at the Huntington, 1151 Oxford Rd., San Marino. It is open year around except Monday and during October from 1-4:30 p.m.

Area couples exchange nuptial rings and vows

MRS. N. V. ERIKSEN

Eriksen-Cartwright

Lakewood Village Community Church was setting for the wedding of Adelaide Ritchie Cartwright and Norman Vimont Eriksen at 8 p.m. Friday.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cartwright, 5325 Monlaco Road. He is son of Capt. (U.S. Merchant Marine) and Mrs. E. Norman Eriksen, 2875 Golden Ave.

Her wedding dress was an empire sheath of candlelight faille covered with organza and appliqued with Alencon lace. The skirt ended in a chapel train.

Pamela Brooks was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathryn Etienne, Stephanie Pereau and Anne LaVelle.

Jack Reidy was best man. Ushers were Lawrence Guess, Robert Cole and Darryl Bannister.

A church reception followed the ceremony. Later a champagne reception and buffet dinner for close friends was held in the home of the bride's parents.

After a wedding trip to Palm Springs, the couple will be at home in Long Beach.

Schuessler-Teel

Mazatlan, Mexico, is destination of a wedding trip being made by Mr. and Mrs. Willard Roberts Schuessler (nee Annabelle Teel) who exchanged vows Saturday in Lakewood Village Community Church.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Woods Teel, 5255 Village Road, wore a princess style gown of off-white Thai silk fashioned with a chapel train.

Tracy Pfeifer was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sandra Hivley and Barbara Schuessler, bridegroom's sister.

Thomas Weaver stood as best man for the son of Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Schuessler of El Paso, Tex. Ushering the 150 guests were Stanley Teel, bride's brother, and Gary Thompson.

A reception followed in Long Beach Elks Club. The couple will live in Sierra Blanca, Tex.

MRS. W. R. SCHUESSLER

Adrienne Ling, John Hom Lee wed in Baptist ceremony

MRS. JOHN HOM LEE

More than 300 relatives and guests witnessed a 6:30 p.m. ceremony Saturday in First Baptist Church of Los Angeles uniting Adrienne Ling and John Hom Lee.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ling, 2855 Easy Ave., wore an A-line cage of English net over a sheath of satin accented by Alencon lace appliques and pearls on the bodice and detachable train.

In contrast to the bridal white were pastel yellow hues of free flowing chiffon gowns worn by her attendants: Alice Ling, maid of honor; Honey Lin, Mrs. Hollis Chang and Mrs. Gordon Burton, bridesmaids.

Calvin Louie was best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ed Lee of Los Angeles. Ushers were his brothers, David and Robert Hom, Beaumont Hall and Kenneth Naramura.

Flower girl was Leigh Ellen Louie. John Gong was ring bearer.

A reception followed the ceremony in Embassy Room of the Ambassador Hotel. Today, the newlyweds will be honored at a traditional Chinese banquet in Chinatown.

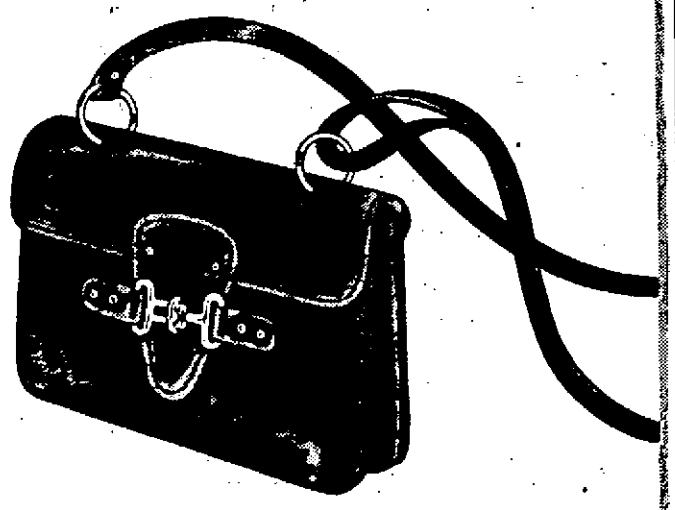

While honeymooning at Lake Tahoe and Northern California, the couple will be feted by his relatives at a dinner in San Frnacisco.

A first home will be made in Inglewood. The bride is an alumna of Polytechnic High School, UCLA and Los Angeles State College. She is a teacher at Denker Avenue School, Gardena.

The bridegroom is an alumnus of UCLA and holds a master's degree from USC. He is an engineer in Aerospace Division of Hughes Aircraft Co.

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

Travel cheap in N. Spain

LA CORUNA, Spain — On the north coast of Spain, the waiter spots you as a foreigner and speaks to you in French. It's a tipoff that prices are lower than the rest of Spain. The French are tourists here, but they are frugal travelers. Hence the cost of travel hasn't gone up as much as where Americans go — Madrid, the popular southern beaches or the crowded island of Majorca.

It's cool, sunny country. Pine tree hills dropping off to white sand beaches. Stone houses, draped with brown fishing nets against green hillsides of wine grape vines.

The sea is blue. (But chill for swimming.) The fish is excellent; other food, just fair. (But I find all Spain's food only acceptable.) Other things make up for it. Great blue inlet rivers. Stone medieval towns. Wonderful blue sky weather.

"MUST WE have shots to go to Europe?"

ALL COUNTRIES want you to be vaccinated for smallpox within the last three years — with a card certified by your health department to prove it. The U.S. wants it to let you back in this country. The airline will vaccinate you (if you haven't your card) before they let you on the plane to come home. (They've done it to me twice at London Airport when I misplaced my yellow cars.)

There are exceptions. If you don't want to be vaccinated for religious reasons of can't be for health reasons, they'll exempt you. But there's some routine of checking in regularly with health departments. I don't know how rigorous that is. U.S. Public Health can tell you.

* * * *

"If we go to several cities in Europe, do we have to travel on the same airline?"

NO, YOU can book on anything you like—though why change? You have to go to the issuing line and have the ticket written over to the line you want to change to. Doesn't take long, but it's extra work.

Your ticket written in advance will be changed to other lines anyway if the airline doesn't happen to go there. There are all kinds of stopovers and trick routings that can be done. And a travel agent is the one who knows how to do this for you.

And look into ways of going one way and coming back another. I flew New York to London and came out Lisbon to Puerto Rico to Jamaica and home. I don't think it cost me any more — or if it did, something minor. I sent my daughter home with a stopover in Barbados by paying an additional $16.

* * * *

"You spoke of a round trip to Europe by air for $250. Was that a misprint?"

NO. THAT was the cheapest fare I found on a schedule sent me by Alitalia. (All airlines have the same fares by agreement.) Cheapest fares are excursion (time limited). Off season (poor weather and not vacation time). And by tour (you go with other people).

* * * *

"How are the roads for driving in Mexico?"

YOU NEVER know until you get around the next bend. They keep them up pretty well, but it's no 80-miles-per-hour country. You can run into a stretch of chuckholes without warning. Mexican road workers don't seem to put up signs. I've seen a bridge out, marked only by a tree branch laid across the road.

Best information on Mexican road conditions comes free by writing Dan Sanborn, McAllen, Texas. (He sells you Mexican car insurance and doesn't want you collecting by breaking up the car.)

The Mexican road sign to learn is "Puente Angosto." It means "narrow bridge" — and they are not kidding. If an oncoming truck blinks his lights, he means "I'm coming across first." Or he may mean, "I have no brakes." Anyway, don't test it.

Topless band stirs Las Vegas storm

LAS VEGAS—The Ladybirds, the all-girl topless band from San Francisco, is a group of many talents, not the least of which is its talent for generating controversy.

After inciting near-riots in San Francisco and being hauled off to court for indecent exposure in New York, it took this unique combo less than one day in Las Vegas to stir up a dispute between the Aladdin Hotel and the musicians' union that temporarily put 16 musicians out of work.

Just before the Ladybirds were to make their Las Vegas debut at the Aladdin, officials of the musicians' union informed the hotel that if the band appeared topless, all other union members working at the Aladdin would be pulled off their jobs.

* * * *

JACK FOY, president of Las Vegas Local No. 369, insisted that the bare-breasted band "is not in keeping with the standards of the musicians' union."

Spokesmen for the hotel maintained that Foy's position was unreasonable since the Ladybirds were all members in good standing of San Francisco's Local No. 6.

The topless troupe went on as scheduled, much to the delight of a capacity crowd and much to the dismay of Foy, who made good his promise to silence the rest of the Aladdin's musicians.

Comedian Godfrey Cambridge was forced to do his show sans music and the hotel's Show Bar was quiet for more than two hours, but the problem was eventually solved.

Matson assigns Cockett to L.A.

Matson Navigation Company has assigned Nathan K. Cockett Jr. to the Los Angeles regional passenger sales staff as district sales representative, it was announced by D. R. McCurdy, regional sales manager.

Cockett, a native of Hawaii, formerly was district sales manager for Matson in Honolulu, where he joined the company in 1957. He was born in Hoolehua, Molokai.

Winery host to throngs

The Paul Masson Vineyards, located in the Santa Cruz mountains at Saratoga, have long been considered a major attraction for tourists from all over the United States. Now, foreign visitors in ever increasing numbers are discovering this "Showplace of the California Wine Industry."

Tourists from all five continents registered at the winery in a single month this summer.

All guests are led through the vast Brut Cellars where three million bottles of champagne are undergoing the long, delicate process of fermentatio and aging. The story of how champagne gets its bubbles is explained in detail. The tour ends with a visit to the Tasting Hall, where Paul Masson's award-winning still and sparkling wines may be sampled at no charge.

W. Germany builds liner

Construction is progressing at Hamburg on the first major German passenger liner to be built since 1938. The $21 million vessel, of 23,000 gross tons and equipped with the latest technical, nautical and safety devices, was ordered by the German Atlantic Line, a shipping company founded in 1965.

Launching is scheduled next Feb. 28 with a maiden voyage indicated about a year later. The ship will be operated in joint transatlantic and cruise service with the TS Bremen and MS Europa of North German Lloyd and the TS Hanseatic, which enters service for GAL later this year.

To be christened the SS Hamburg, the luxury liner will carry 800 passengers in transatlantic service, and will be manned by a crew of 400.

MANANALAND ON THE MOVE

New hotel to be tallest building in Mexico City

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

The Torre Latino-Americana, in whose sprawling shadow pulsates the heart of Mexico City, is soon to lose its distinction of being the tallest building in all Latin America.

Piercing 60 feet higher into the sky than this 46-story behemoth will be the tower of the Hotel of the City of Mexico, one of a dozen or more hostelries on which construction has started to relieve the acute visitor accommodation shortage in the Mexican capital.

Rising on the Parque de la Lama, a sizable tract of land on teeming South Insurgentes Boulevard, the Hotel of the City of Mexico will have 1,232 rooms in the main structuure, an annex to house 400 guests, and 30 large bungalows for a total of 1,700 rooms.

A needle restaurant from which guests may look out over much of this oldest metropolis in the western world and the fourth largest city in the western hemisphere — from the great Valley of Mexico in which it was built to lake and wooded mountains whose often snow-covered peaks rise to more than 15,000 feet — will dominate the top of the skyscraper.

* * * *

THE HOTEL of the City of Mexico, and 11 other hostelries abuilding, plus additions to five established hotels, represent an investment of 1.5 billion pesos ($120 million U.S.), according to Jorge Granillo, executive manager of the Mexico City Hotel Association which controls more than 100 of the best hotels in the city.

Some of these hotels will be ready for the 12,000 Rotarians when they hold their International Convention there in early 1968, and still others will open for the Olympic Games, Oct. 8-29,1968. They will represent an additional 3,000 rooms to the 16,000 now in service.

Other hotels under construction are the Aristos, Camino Real, Casa Blanca, Del Angel, El Dorado, El Salvador, Milan, Reforma 80, Riviera, Suites del Parque and Suites Michelangelo.

Still another hotel, to be built on the fasionable Paseo de lu Reforma, is announced by Warren Broglie, manager of Acapulco's Pierre Marques Hotel who represents a U.S. consortium. The site is now being cleared to commence construction. It will have 1,200 rooms and suites, and parking space for 500 autos, according to the reputable Mexico Hotel and Travel News.

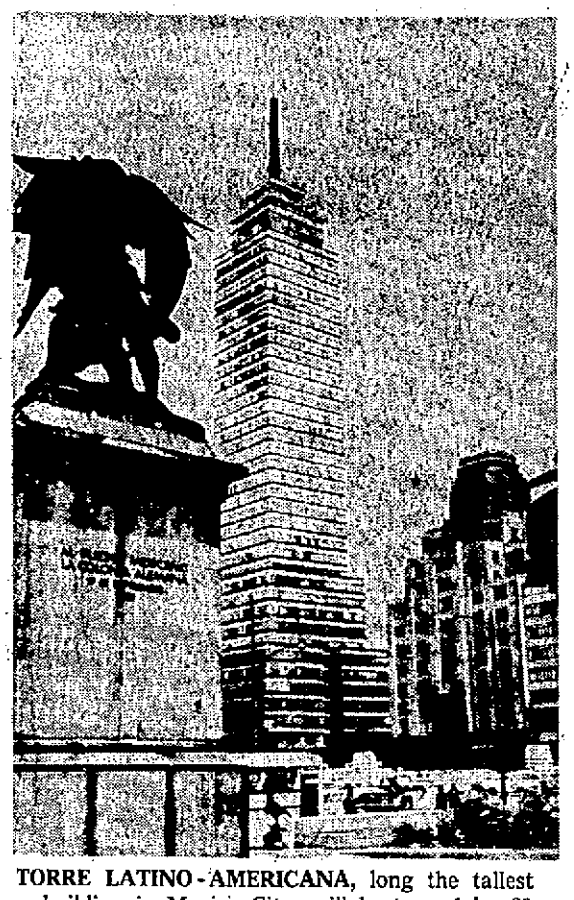

* * * *

MEANWHILE, similar projects are being rushed by other Mexican cities which expect to reap a harvest from the Olympics, including Acapulco, Guadalajara, Monterrey and, particularly, fast-growing towns within a 50-mile radius of the Mexican capital.

Guadalajara, which recently inaugurated its 2.4-mile long airport runway, has announced a 10-year hotel construction program in which an estimated $125 million will be spent.

But Mexico City officials are using devices in addition to ample accommodations to make their visitors happy and favorably impressed while in their town, and with a desire to return.

The Lodging Control Office, according to its chief executive, Ramon Alatorre, not only has control of a wide range of lodging facilities to accommodate 50,683 persons during the Olympics, and assure that they will not be "price-gouged," but that the capital plans to revise regulations limiting night life. This means a letup on the tight lid imposed on night spots by a curfew law.

TORRE LATINO-AMERICANA, long the tallest building in Mexico City, will be topped by 60 feet by the Hotel of the City of Mexico, now under construction.

* * * *

ANOTHER attraction in the works is to install narrow-gauge tracks on which ancient steam locomotives will make runs from Mexico City to the nearby Floating Gardens of Xochimilco and to the Pyramids of Teotihuacan.

* * * *

BAJA CALIFORNIA is also getting in on the act. In the southern part, Territorial Gov. Hugo Cervantes del Rio has announced construction of tourist installations on the beautiful beaches of Puerto Balandraque, 12 miles from La Paz, including a hotel to cost $1.6 million U.S.

The territory also is promoting the fishing village of Mulege, on the Gulf of Cortez.

In the northern part of the peninsula, the state is promoting the attractive beaches of Rosarito and Ensenada, where plans are afoot for investments of about $400,000. And officials say the new freeway which now links Tijuana with Ensenada, hopefully will be extended to La Paz by 1970.

Ocean swim next Sunday at La Jolla

More than 300 swimmers, many of them well known throughout the West, will participate in the La Jolla Ocean Swim and Aqua Fiesta next Sunday. The race will be over a triangular mile out from the Swimming Cove. Past winners have been Buster Crabbe, Helen Madison and Florence Chambers.

Others events on the day's program are the Pacific Coast Paddleboard Championships, a junior swimming race and a water rescue demonstration, according to the area's All-Year Club.

A company of 50 Tahitian dancers, singers, musicians, drummers and fire jugglers will present the folklore of Hawaii, Tahiti, Tonga, Fiji and Maoris at a Polynesian Festival to be presented next Saturday and Sunday in the Burbank Starlight Bowl.

A "Gingham and Calico Days" parade, with 150 entries will be held at 9 a.m. Monday in connection with the Valley Community Fair at Norco.

A four-day celebration marking the 196th anniversary of the founding of San Gabriel Mission also ends Monday.

Travel and RESORTS

L.A. Airport sets traffic record

More than eight million air travelers passed though Los Angeles International Airport during the first half of 1967 to set a new six-month record, Louis Warschaw, president of the Los Angeles board of airport commissioners, reports.

The 8,268,403 passengers using the terminal facilities, January through June, represented a 16.3 per cent increase over the 7,107,406 air travelers flying in and out of the airport during the same period lat year.

Largest increase was registered in air travel between Los Angeles and Hawaii, with a total of 392,899 passengers showing a 29.5 per cent increase over the first six months of 1966. Domestic passengers for the first half of 1967 totaled 7,579,842, for a 15.4 per cent increase, and there were 295,662 international air travelers, up 25.9 per cent.

TWA promotes Jerry Cosley

Jerry W. Cosley, assistant director of public relations for Trans World Airlines in Los Angeles since 1963, has been appointed public relations manger for the airline in San Francisco, effective Sept. 1, according to regional director R. J. McKay.

In his new position, Cosley will be responsible for press relations and corporate news activities for the Pacific Northwest and Hawaii.

More service to Americas

Aerolineas Argentinas, the Argentine airline, plans to serve Los Angeles International Airport on a regular schedule, pending CAB approval.

The South American firm will offer direct service from Los Angeles to Bogota, Colombia; Lima, Peru, and Buenos Aires on speedy Comet jets almost immediately after President Johnson signs the certificate permitting them to cover the new, direct route.

In preparation for the debut of service, Santos Elespe, regional manager for Aerolineas Argentinas, announced that offices for the firm will open Sept. 15, at 545 S. Olive St., Los Angeles.

Aerolineas Argentinas currently serves all of Europe from South America in addition to their United States bases.

* * * *

EDUARDO Gallardo, U.S. sales manager for LAN, the Chilean International Airline, has reopened Los Angeles offices at 510 W. Sixth St., Suite 712, under the direction of Jorge Lopez-Pereira as district sales manager.

LAN recently inaugurated a new service from New York nonstop to Lima, Santiago, and Buenos Aires using Boeing 707s. This new service reduces the flying time to Santiago considerably, especially for West Coast travelers, who now can fly non-stop to New York on Friday evenings and be in Santiago for lunch Saturday afternoon.

Airlines back elimination of arrival card

WASHINGTON — The decision of the U.S. Department of Justice to waive the time-consuming regulation requiring U.S. citizens to fill out cards when they leave the country and when they return should greatly facilitate passenger departure and arrival formalities at already overburdened airports in the United States, a spokesman for the scheduled airlines says.

Stuart G. Tipton, president of the Air Transport Association of America, said, "With U.S. international air travel increasing at an annual rate of 15 per cent, and with the pending introduction of much larger and faster aircraft, the elimination of the immigration departure and arrival cards for U.S. citizens is most timely."

Tipton noted that just recently a record 16,264 overseas passengers were processed in a single day by Immigration at Kennedy International Airport, most of whom were U.S. citizens. "This volume," he said, "promises to be greatly swollen by the much greater numbers of international passengers the Jumbo Jets and the SST's will be transporting in the seventies."

He added that in terms of today's international travel waiver of departure and arrival cards is expected to eliminate some 9 million pieces of paper annually and to provide substantial savings in government and industry printing costs.

Folder features Caribbean isles

The "Golden Caribbean," a new folder featuring color photographs of 18 different islands, is now available on request from the Caribbean Travel Association, Room 600, 20 E. 46th St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

The folder lists the many information services provided by the association — descriptions and maps of the islands, hotel data, sightseeing tours, cruises, and tips on shopping, what to wear, restaurants, sports and other items.

Mexico sets hotel rules for Olympics

By HENRY GINIGER
1967 New York Times News Service

MEXICO CITY — The Mexican government has moved into the hotel business to protect the thousands of sportsminded tourists who are expected to crowd into this bustling capital for the next Olympic Games.

An agreement has just been signed between the Olympic organizing committee and Mexican hotel owners under which all reservations for the Mexico City area for Oct. 8 to Oct. 29, 1968, when the games are scheduled to be held, must go through a special Housing Control Office.

* * * *

THE DEMAND for hotel space during the games is expected to increase spectacularly — it has already begun, in fact — and with it the opportunity for speculation and price-gouging. Because tourism is an industry that contributes about one-third of Mexico's foreign earnings, the government is anxious to prevent such abuses, particularly under the Olympic spotlight.

Starting now, no hotel here will be allowed to accept reservations for the Olympic period. All inquiries about accommodations will be referred to the HCO, which plans to release rooms in blocks to travel agents next March. The agents, in turn, will be instructed to get specific names, accompanied by deposits.

Popes to live in Ithaca

Attired in traditional bridal gown with empire waist and lace bodice, Merrilyn J. Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Smith, 6830 Eastondale Ave., became the bride Saturday afternoon of Harold C. Pope, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Pope, 5485 Cerritos Ave. Their vows were solemnized in North Long Beach Methodist Church before 200 guests.

Attending the bride were Carol Kasassa, Judi Smith, a sister, maid of honor, and Mrs. Gerald Smith, her sister-in-law. Daniel Sisson was the bridegroom's best man, while David Himrod and Gerald Smith, the bride's brother, ushered.

The couple honeymooned in Santa Barbara following a reception at the church. They will reside in Ithaca, N.Y.

Both were graduated from Jordan High School. The new Mrs. Pope was also graduated from Long Beach City College and University of California School of Nursing, San Francisco.

The bridegroom, who was graduated from California State College, Long Beach, is attending graduate school at Cornell University where he is working toward a doctorate in Chinese history.

JACOBY

Black suits squeeze

West's weak jump overcall put a lot of pressure on North. Of course North did not have to act over it but he was looking at two aces and four cards in his partner's suit and just did not like to be shut out of the bidding.

South could not tell how weak North was and was interested in getting to a grand slam. His four no-trump bid found out that North held both missing aces but when North showed no kings in response to the five no-trump follow up South settled for a small slam.

South's hand was so strong that the slam was a very good one. Put the king of clubs in the West hand and South would make his slam easily.

As you can see the king of clubs showed up in the East hand but South still had no trouble bringing in 12 tricks.

The red suit holding was such that South had an automatic heart-diamond squeeze against West after the club finesse went wrong.

The key cards were dummy's nine of hearts and ten of diamonds. The ten of diamonds made it impossible for East to break up the squeeze by leading a diamond after taking his king of clubs and the nine of hearts and ace-king of spades. The fourth trick went to East's king of clubs. East returned a heart.

South ruffed, ran off the rest of his clubs and trumps and watched poor West squirm. West had to throw his last low diamond on the last spade, whereupon the nine of hearts was thrown from dummy. A low diamond to dummy's ace picked up the king and the queen of diamonds made the last trick in South's hand.

5-Way Casserole Sweepstakes Winner

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Food Editor

Men and women of Long Beach and environs really cooked up a storm on the night of Sunday, July 16, in that building known as the Post Office. Envelopes containing 1269 recipes were processed on that memorable night. They came from nearly every state in the Union to be entered in our annual cook book contest.

From the 4,515 recipes submitted in the 38 categories in the contest, many were brought out of hiding from old cook books, some were uniquely astonishing, some remarkable in their simplicity, and all were excellent. We predict a happy year for each of you in your kitchen because of them.

MILDRED K. FLANARY

* * * *

MISS LETITIA MUIRHEAD, 268 A Loma Ave., won the grand prize, an O'Keefe & Merritt Contempo gas range, with her recipe for 5-Way Casserole. She, by the way, turns out to be the dietitian at Harriman-Jones Clinic.

To Miss Alice Bolhuis, 9617 Beach St., Bellflower, second grand prize winner, goes an 8-Speed Osterizer blender. Her recipe was for Tangy Roquefort Supreme Dressing.

* * * *

TO ALL OF you who entered the contest, may we say thanks for your marvelous and timely cooperation. We wish that you could all have won. To the clubwomen, and those stalwart males, who assisted in judging, a sincere and enthusiastic thank you for a job well done. The judging was entirely impersonal, with the various clubs of the city perusing them all, preparing, testing and tasting many.

The home economists who selected the final winners did a remarkable job, for we assure you, it wasn't easy. They, the following deserve a big vote of gratitute.

Here's Best Recipe

5-WAY CASSEROLE

Crab-Shrimp-Salmon-Tuna or Chicken
(Serves 6)

- 2 cups (above fish or meat of your choice)
- ½ cup salad dressing or mayonnaise
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1 large green pepper, chopped
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 3 eggs slightly beaten
- 3 cups milk
- 8 slices of bread (remove crusts and cube bread)
- 1 can (10 oz.) cream of mushroom soup
- 1 cup grated cheddar cheese

In a large buttered, shallow casserole, spread half the cubed bread. Mix together and spread over this: fish, salad dressing, celery, green pepper, salt and pepper to taste. Cover with remaining half of cubed bread. Beat eggs lightly and stir in milk. Pour over contents in casserole. The casserole should now be refrigerated from four hours to overnight. Remove from refrigerator at least an hour and a half before serving time. Bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees. Then spread mushroom soup and cheddar cheese over top. Return to oven and bake one hour longer at 350 degrees.

GOURMET DISHES

First Prize

VEAL CUTLETS RHINE CASTLE

1 lb. veal steak, ¾" thick
Salt, freshly ground pepper
2 egg yolks, beaten
⅓ cup fresh, black finely minced mushrooms
Dry bread crumbs
5 tblsp. butter
1 tblsp. flour
Freshly ground white pepper to taste
½ tsp. sugar
1 cup light cream
1 cup cooked, chopped lobster
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 egg yolk
2 tblsp. dry sherry
12 asparagus tips, cooked

Cut veal into 3 serving portions. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Dip into the beaten egg yolk, then mushrooms and bread crumbs. (Mushrooms adhere beautifully and form a thick crust. Heat 3 tablespoons butter in skillet until it foams and brown the meat on all sides. Reduce heat and cook approximately 20 minutes or until veal is tender and crisp.

Meanwhile, prepare lobster sauce. Melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Stir in the flour, 1 teaspoon salt, white pepper and sugar. Gradually add the cream. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and smooth. Add the lobster and heat through thoroughly. Beat together the lemon juice, egg yolk, and sherry. Remove the sauce from heat and stir in lemon sherry mixture. Return to low heat just long enough to heat through. Do not boil. Arrange veal on your best warmed platter and top each serving with 4 asparagus stalks. Cover with lobster sauce and garnish with watercress. Serves 3.

Second Prize

SPINACH SOUFFLE RING

2 pkgs. (12 oz.) frozen chopped spinach
¼ cup butter
4 tblsp. flour
1½ cups milk
2½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. onion powder
¼ tsp. ground nutmeg
4 eggs, separated
¼ cup brandied chestnuts, mashed
1 tblsp. lemon juice
1 lemon thinly sliced

Thaw spinach, place in sieve and press out all moisture. Melt butter in small saucepan. Blend in flour. Gradually add milk, salt, onion powder and nutmeg. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens. Beat egg white until stiff peaks are formed; refrigerate until ready to use. Beat egg yolks until blended. Add a little hot moisture to yolks. Return yolk mixture to saucepan and heat slowly until well blended and slightly thickened. Stir in spinach and chestnuts. Blend in lemon juice. Cool slightly. Fold in egg whites. Turn mixture into a well buttered 8" ring mold and bake in 375 degree oven 35-40 minutes, or until top is puffed and browned and silver knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Cool slightly. Invert on serving plate and garnish with lemon slices and brandied chestnuts to serve. Serves 8.

Mrs. Marilyn Smith

SHRIMP STROGANOFF

3 lbs. medium size raw shrimp shelled and deveined
⅓ cup butter or margarine
½ lb. fresh mushrooms, sliced
⅔ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, mashed
2 tblsp. flour
1 cup chicken broth or consomme
1 tblsp. tomato paste
¾ tsp. worcestershire sauce
1 tblsp. chopped fresh dill or 1 tsp. dried dill weed
1½ tsp. salt
1 cup dairy sour cream
Cooked rice or noodles

Saute shrimp in 5 tablespoons of butter in a skillet 5 minutes. Remove shrimp and save. Add remaining 2 tablespoons butter, mushrooms, onion, and garlic; cook 5 minutes. Add flour, mix well. Stir in chicken broth or consomme, tomato paste, worcestershire, dill and salt. Simmer 2 minutes. Add sour cream; mix well. Add shrimp. Heat through, do not boil. Serve over cooked rice or noodles. Serves 6.

TROPICAL CHICKEN

2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut in serving pieces
2 tsp. monsodium glutamate
1½ tsp. salt
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 6-oz. can frozen pineapple juice concentrate 1½ cups fine dry bread crumbs
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 3½-oz. can flaked coconut

Rinse chicken pieces; pat with paper towel. Shake monsodium glutamate and salt over both sides of chicken. Combine egg and pineapple concentrate in pie plate. Combine bread crumbs with melted butter in another pie plate; add coconut and mix well. Coat chicken pieces with pineapple mixture, then roll in coconut mixture. Place on two shallow foil-lined pans. Bake in 350 oven 40 minutes. If chicken begins to brown too much before end of baking time, cover loosely with foil. Serves 8.

SUKIYAKI

¾ cup canned beef broth
1½ tblsp. sugar
½ cup soy sauce
1 small piece of suet
1 bunch of fresh spinach, torn in large pieces
1¾ cup very thinly sliced celery
8 thinly sliced mushrooms (about 1 small can)
1 bunch of green onions, cut into 1 inch lengths (about half cup)
1 lg. onion, thinly sliced (about 1 cup)
1 can of water chestnuts, thinly sliced (about 5 oz.)
1 lb. of filet mignon or sirloin, sliced very thin, cut into 1½" strips

Combine beef broth, soy sauce and sugar. Heat electric skillet or heavy frypan, then rub well with the fat. Place spinach, celery, mushrooms, green onions, onion and water chestnuts in pan. Arrange strips of beef across the top. Pour the soy sauce mixture over everything. Simmer over medium heat, stirring gently occasionally 8-10 minutes or until meat is tender and vegetables are tender but still crisp. Serve with hot rice or Chinese "Noodles." Serves 3-4.

BEEF GRENADINE

1 lb. Fillet Mignon
½ lb. mushrooms
1 can or 2 cups prepared brown gravy
½ cup chives or finely chopped green onions
1 oz. sherry wine
4 tblsp. butter
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut fillet in paper thin slices. Saute slices in half the butter until the red color has disappeared, about 5 minutes. Remove from fire. Slice mushrooms and saute until tender in the rest of the butter. Combine with meat. And chives, sherry and gravy and simmer no more than 7 minutes. Serves 4.

TOMATOES NICOISE

8 ripe, firm tomatoes, medium size
1 cup bread crumbs, preferably French bread
1 tsp. finely chopped garlic
½ cup finely chopped parsley
1 tblsp. chopped fresh basil (may sub. 2 teaspoons dry basil)
1 tsp. salt
Dash coarsely ground black pepper
½ cup colive oil

Cut tomatoes in half. With teaspoon scoop seeds from each half, leaving sectional walls intact as possible. Sprinkle insides with salt and turn over to drain on paper towels. Combine bread crumbs, garlic, parsley, basil, salt ground pepper and olive oil. Fill each tomato half with this mixture. Arrange in lightly oiled baking dish, and dot with olive oil. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven 20-30 minutes, or until stuffing is lightly browned. Serves 6-8.

RUNDERLAPPEN

(Pickled Beef)

1½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. freshly ground pepper
2-3 tblsp. flour
2 lbs. round steak about 1½" thick
½ cup vegetable oil
2 medium onions thinly sliced
¾ cup boiling water
2 tblsp. wine vinegar
1½ tsp. prepared mustard
1 bay leaf

Combine salt and pepper with flour and pound into steak. Heat the oil and brown the steak well on both sides. Reduce heat and add the onions. When just wilted, add liquids and seasonings. Cover and simmer 2 hours or until steak is tender, turning once or twice during the cooking. Serve with the pan sauce. Serves 4.

CRAB HAM ROLLS

1 can (7½ oz.) crab meat or ½ lb. frozen crab meat
1 tblsp. lemon juice
1 pkg. 8 oz. cream cheese
¼ cup finely chopped celery
2 tblsp. chopped parsley
¼ cup chopped toasted almonds
Salt and pepper to taste
12 slices of lean boiled ham

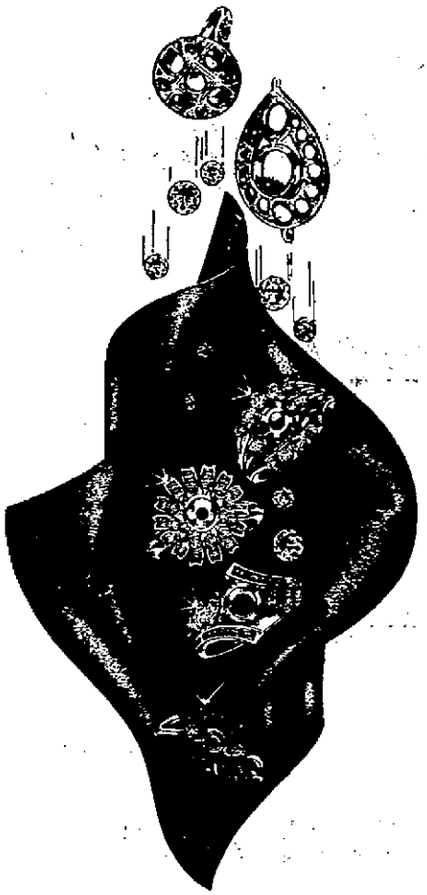

Drain canned crab. Place on chopping board and slice with sharp knife. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Have cream cheese at room temperature to soften. Blend with crab, celery, parsley, almonds, salt and pepper. Spread on slices of ham and roll, securing with picks if necessary. Chill well. Remove picks and serve on luncheon plate with garnish of hard-cooked egg and olives. Serves 6.

Cool Results

Chopped watercress, or green pepper, sliced cucumber or celery provide crisp garnishes for chilled summer soups. Try them on iced beef broth, black bean, or curried cream of chicken. For a switch, serve the soup in glass mugs to sip right along with the meal.

PIG IN A QUILT

- 8 pork steaks ½-inch thick
- 8 slices orange ¼-inch thick with clove in center
- ½ tsp. each of cumin, allspice, thyme and coriander
- 1 tsp. chili powder
- 1 tsp. each salt and pepper
- Chianti wine
- Quilted aluminum foil

Lay out four pieces of quilted aluminum foil, each ample to contain pork and orange. Thoroughly mix all spices, herbs, chili, salt and pepper. Moisten steaks in Chianti wine and sprinkle each on both sides with dry spices. Put a port steak on foil, lay two orange slices side by side on the steak and crown with the other steak. Pull the foil over the meat and secure with double fold, so the package is air tight. Arrange the packages in the oven at 350 degrees or about 4" above coals on the barbecue. Turn every 10 minutes with glove to avoid puncturing package. Allow 50 minutes. Serves 4.

CHICKEN CONTINENTAL

- 1 broiler-fryer (about 3 lbs.) cut in serving pieces
- 6 tblsp. flour
- ¼ cup salad oil
- 1 sm. onion, sliced and separated into rings
- ½ clove garlic, minced
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- ½ tsp. salt
- ⅛ tsp. pepper
- ½ cup apple cider
- ½ cup water
- 1 tsp. grated lemon ring

Wash chicken pieces, pat dry. Shake a few pieces at a time in 4 tablespoons of flour in a paper bag to coat well. Save remaining flour for sauce. Brown chicken slowly in salad oil in a large frying pan; remove from pan and set aside. Stir onion and garlic into drippings in pan and saute just until soft. Blend in the 2 tablespoons of flour, salt and pepper and cook, stirring all the time until mixture bubbles. Dissolve bouillon cube in water. Stir in bouillon, apple cider and lemon rind; continue cooking and stirring until sauce thickens and boils 1 minute. Return chicken to pan, cover. Simmer 45 minutes or until tender. Serves 4.

NUTTY TWISTS

- 2 cakes compressed yeast
- ¼ cup warm water
- ⅓ cup butter
- ¾ cup hot scalded milk
- ⅓ cup sugar
- 2 tsp. salt
- 2 tsp. grated orange rind
- 2 eggs, unbeaten
- 4½ cups sifted flour
- ¼ cup orange juice
- 3 tblsp. sugar
- ⅓ cup butter
- 1 cup sifted powdered sugar
- 1 cup ground nuts

Soften yeast in warm water. Combine butter and scalded milk in large bowl, and cool to lukewarm. Add sugar, salt, orange rind, eggs, and the softened yeast. Gradually add the flour to form a stiff dough, beating well after each addition. Cover and let stand 30 minutes.

Make nut filling by creaming butter and blending in the powdered sugar. Add ground nuts and mix thoroughly. Roll out dough to a 22x12 rectangle on floured surface. Spread half of the dough, along the 22" side with nut filling. Fold uncovered dough over filling. Cut into 1" strips crosswise. Twist each strip 5-6 times. Lay on baking sheet. Cover. Let rise in warm place until doubled in size (45 to 60 minutes). Bake at 375 degrees 15 minutes until light golden brown. Mix orange juice with sugar and brush tops of twists with it. Bake 5 minutes more. Remove from pan immediately. Makes 1½ to 2 dozen twists.

OLD-TIME APPLE COFFEE CAKE

- 1 cup milk, scalded
- 1 cup flour
- 2 yeast cakes
- 2 tblsp. sugar
- ⅓ cup butter, melted
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 egg, beaten
- ½ tsp. salt
- 2½ cups all purpose flour

Tart apples, peeled and sliced
Cinnamon

Scald the milk, soften the yeast and sugar and add 1 cup flour. Mix all together and let stand until bubbly. Add creamed mixture of ⅓ cup melted butter, ½ cup sugar and 1 egg beaten with ½ teapsoon salt and 2½ cups all purpose flour so as to knead with a large spoon until elastic. Let rise in covered bowl and let rise again its size. Then place on lightly floured board and knead until light then divide into two parts. Place each on a large 9½x13 inch cookie sheet which is greased. Stretch out dough flat and thin to the edges of pan about ¼" thick and sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and place slices of tart apples cut thin, close together, and let rise and then bake in 350 degree oven 35-40 minutes. Then cover the coffee cake with glaze.

Glaze

- 1½ cubes butter melted
- 1 cup brown sugar
- ½ tsp. vanilla

Melt the butter and dissolve the brown sugar and vanilla to a syrup and spread on cake to glaze and cool.

EASY 100% WHOLE WHEAT BREAD

- 4 cups warm water (108-112 degrees)
- 2 tblsp. yeast or 2 pkgs.
- 1 tblsp. salt
- 2 tblsp. cooking oil
- ⅔ cup honey
- 6-7 cups whole wheat flour

Add yeast, salt, cooking oil and honey to water and stir until blended. Add flour and stir until all flour is wet. (Will not be stiff dough like regular bread.) Allow to rise in warm place until double in bulk. Pour on a floured board. While using the minimum amount of flour, shape into four loaves. Place loaves in greased 7½x3½x2¼ pans and allow to rise for 10 minutes until the dough reaches the top of the pans. Preheat oven to 450 degrees. When you place the bread in the oven, reduce heat to 350 degrees for 45-60 minutes.

- ½ cup brown sugar

Chopped nuts (pecans)

Dissolve the yeast cake in the warm milk. Add 2 cups of bisquick. Knead until dough is firm then set in warm place to raise for 40 minutes. Knead down and roll dough into rectangle and sprinkle 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ cup granulated sugar over dough. Roll up and slice into 1" slices.

Melt 2 tablespoons butter, ¼ cup corn syrup and ½ cup brown sugar over low flame and pour into baking dish or pan. Sprinkle finely chopped nuts over top of sauce then place the 1 inch slices of dough on this. Cover and set in warm place and allow to raise again for 30 minutes. Bake 25 to 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Turn out on waxed paper or cake rack immediately.

SWEDISH RYE BREAD

- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup boiling water
- 2 pkgs. dry yeast
- ¾ tsp. anise seeds
- ¾ tsp. caroway seeds
- 2½ tsp. salt
- 3 tblsp. butter or margarine
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- 3 tblsp. molasses
- 2 cups rye flour
- 1 cup whole wheat flour
- 4 cups white flour

Add the seeds to the boiling water and let cool then strain out seeds and discard. Dissolve the yeast in the lukewarm water. Add the remaining ingredients except white flour and beat until smooth. Now add the white flour, enough for kneading. Turn out on floured board and knead until dough feels smooth and springy to the touch (about 5 minutes.) Put in a greased bowl, cover and let rise until double. Knead again and allow to rise second time. Shape into 2 loaves and put in greased pans. When it has doubled in bulk, bake 50 minutes at 350 degrees.

RUSSIAN POLISH BEAN SOUP

½ lb. northern Navy beans
½ cup onion, coarsely chopped
½ bell pepper, coarsely chopped
2 stalks celery, cut to half inch
2 lb. pork neck bones
2 can stewed tomatoes
2 tblsp. molasses or brown sugar
Salt to taste
Water enough to cover and 1 inch over

Wash beans, but do not soak. Add meat, onions and water. Keep this water level up until ready to add tomatoes. Bring to a boil, simmer over low heat uncovered, 2 hours. Add water if needed and balance of ingredients. Simmer for another hour over low heat. Stir gently in order to keep beans firm and whole. When done, remove meat, de-bone and replace meat. This soup can be frozen and is always better tasting the following day after re-heating. Serves 8.

COLD SOUP

- 1 qt. milk
- 6 eggs
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 tsp. sugar
- ½ tsp. vanilla
- Dash of cinnamon or nutmeg.

Separate the eggs. Beat yolks with half cup sugar until lemon colored. Beat whites until stiff and add 2 teaspoons of sugar. Scald milk. With spoon, place egg whites on the boiling milk and cook five minutes until firm. Lift meringues out carefully. Add ¼ cup cold milk to yolks and slowly add to hot milk, stirring constantly. Return to fire for the mixture to thicken, but do not bring to boiling point or the yolks will curdle. Cool slightly and add flavoring. Serve in bowls topped with meringues and dash of cinnamon or nutmeg. Delicious and excellent soup for children and convalescent.

CREAMY CLAM CHOWDER

Dice and fry salt pork. Drain and save the diced pork. In a sauce pan dice potatoes, add onion, salt and pepper and a pinch of thyme or poultry dressing. Not too much water. When potatoes and onions are done, add fat from the fried pork and 1 can clams, liquid included. Stir and add as much milk as desired and a half cup cream or half and half. Simmer and thicken with a flour and water mixture. Serve with crackers. This is a real New England style chowder.

LENTIL SOUP WITH WINE

- 2 cups dried lentils
- 6 inch cubes of bacon
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 onion, stuck with 2 cloves
- 5 cups beef bouillon
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 stalk celery
- ¼ tsp. paprika
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 tblsp. butter
- 2 tblsp. flour
- 2 tblsp. port wine

Soak lentils overnight in cold water. Drain and wash under fresh water. Brown bacon lightly in iron kettle, along with the cloves of garlic. Add other ingredients except the butter, flour and wine. Cover kettle and simmer gently about 3 hours. The soup probably won't need thickening, but if it is desired, mix the butter and flour together and stir in, simmering until the desired thickness. Before serving, add the port wine. Yield: 1 quart.

1 cup light cream, scalded
3 egg yolks
⅔ cup sugar
1 cup filbert nuts, ground
½ lemon peel grated
1 tblsp. soft butter
½ tsp. cinnamon
3 egg whites

Remove crust from bread and cut into small cubes. Pour hot cream on top and beat together until smooth. Beat the egg yolks with ⅓ cup of the sugar. When light and creamy add the ground filberts and lemon peel. Add the bread and mix well. Beat the egg whites with the remaining ¼ cup sugar until stiff, fold into the milk mixture. Place the grated apples butter and cinnamon mixed together in the bottom of a buttered pudding dish. Top with the bread-nut mixture. Bake 40-45 minutes in a 400 degree oven or until the pudding has a deep brown color. Serve with rich cream or applesauce.

CHEESE DISHES

MRS. JOE TORRECK

First Prize
CHEESE KNISHES

Dough

2 cups sifted flour
1 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
1 egg, beaten
½ cup sour cream
1 tblsp. melted butter

Filling

½ lb. dry cottage cheese
2 tblsp. sour cream
2 tlbsp. bread crumbs
1 tblsp. sugar
1 tblsp. melted butter
2 eggs, beaten
¼ cup seedless raisins

Dough: Sift together dry ingredients. Add egg, sour cream, and butter. Blend thoroughly and knead well. Let stand 15 minutes. Knead well on pastry cloth. Divide the dough into four parts. Work with one part, keeping the remainder in a covered bowl. Fill one part of the dough before rolling the next. Roll and stretch the dough into a round sheet as thin as you can. Brush the sheet with salad oil. Fill with filling — placing the filling around the edge on one side. Pick up the pastry cloth and roll it all the way. Place on a shallow baking dish that has been liberally greased with melted butter. Bake at 350 deg. until lightly browned (about 1 hour), basting occasionally with melted butter. Makes about 30. Filling: Combine all ingredients.

CURRY CHEESE SAUCE FOR WILD RICE

2 tblsp. fat
1 onion, chopped fine
1 green pepper, chopped fine
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
1 good pinch allspice (ground)
Pinch of mace
½ tsp. curry powder
1 cup processed American cheese
2-3 cup milk
Cream

Melt fat; brown onion and pepper. Add cheese (use very low heat.) Remove from heat, blend in flour, add spices. Slowly add milk. Cook until thick, about 15 minutes. Let stand. About half hour before serving, add cream and cook slowly. Amount of cream determines how thick or thin a sauce is desired. Makes 1 cup.

PIMIENTO CHEESE ROLL

4 cups (1 lb.) grated sharp cheese
½ lb. (8 oz.) cream cheese
1 jar or can (7 oz.) pimientos, chopped and drained
1 tsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. grated onion
Dash of cayenne pepper
Sherry, brandy or heavy cream

Thoroughly combine all ingredients, adding only enough liquid (sherry, brandy or heavy cream) to make mixture smooth and slightly creamy, not thin. Chill mixture until firm enough to shape or roll into 2-3 rolls, each about 2" in diameter. Wrap in wax paper and refrigerate until firm, overnight if possible. When ready to serve, unwrap and roll in minced parsley or in seasoned crumbs. Best with finely chopped nuts. Serve on tray with crackers. Serves 2-3 dozen people.

CHEESE POSTE

1½ pts. cottage cheese
1 cup sugar
4 eggs
1 cup carnation milk, undiluted
½ lemon, juice and rind
¼ cup flour
Dash of salt
1 pkg. rusk
¼ cup pistachio nuts chopped

Rusk Mixture

½ cup sugar
¼ cup melted butter
1 tsp. cinnamon

Roll rusk fine and mix with sugar, cinnamon and butter. Set aside ¼ cup of the mixture to sprinkle over the top. Butter a 9" spring form, spread and press the ¾ cup of rusk mixture on the bottom and sides of the form.

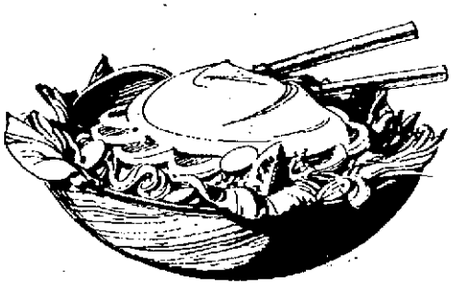

Beat eggs (without separating) with sugar until light. Add salt and lemon. Stir in the milk and add cottage cheese and flour and mix all together. Strain through a fine sieve. Stir until smooth, adding nuts. Pour into rusk-lined mixture. Sprinkle top with remaining mixture. Bake in 325 degrees oven 1 hour. Turn off the heat and let stand in oven 1 hour or until cool. Second Prize

FRESH LEMON ICE CREAM

- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1 egg
- 1½ cups sugar
- ⅓ cup lemon juice
- 2 tsp. lemon peel
- Few grains salt
- 1⅓ cup milk

In the large bowl of an electric mixer, combine the whipping cream and egg, beating just until blended. Add the sugar gradually as you continue to beat until the mixture is almost stiff. Beat in the lemon juice, lemon peel and salt. Stir in the milk and immediately turn into a large refrigerator tray or an 8" square pan (any container that holds 1½ quarts). Leave in the freezer until firm, about 5 hours. This ice cream does not require stirring during freezing to be smooth and creamy. Serves 8.

ICE CREAM CRUNCHIES

- ¼ cup karo syrup, red label
- 3 cups rice krispies
- ½ cup peanut butter, chunk style
- 1 pt. ice cream, brick style

Blend syrup and peanut butter, add rice krispies and stir until they are well coated. Press mixture evenly into bottom of greased 13x9 inch pan. Place in freezer, coldest part of refrigerator. Cut into 12 3 inch squares and place a slice of ice cream between each two squares, pressing gently together. Cut each sandwich into two bars. Serve at once or wrap individually in foil and store in freezer. Makes 24 bars.

MAPLE NUT ICE CREAM

- 3 eggs, separated
- 1 cup maple syrup
- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1 cup milk
- ½ cup chopped nut meats

Beat egg yolks, add maple syrup and beat 2 minutes longer. Cook in top of double boiler until soft custard is formed, stirring constantly. Cool. Beat egg whites and salt together until stiff. Combine milk and custard, beat well. Fold whipped cream and egg whites together and add to custard. Add nuts. Place in refrigerator tray and freeze until almost firm. Remove to chilled bowl and beat well. Return to tray and freeze until firm.

PARTY PEPPERMINT ICE CREAM

- 1½ pts. half and half
- ½ pt. whipping cream
- 2-3 cup sugar
- ¼ tsp. salt
- Green coloring
- 8 drops essence of peppermint

Heat one half cup of half-and-half, add the salt and sugar and stir until the sugar has dissolved. Mix with the remaining cream and add sufficient coloring to make a soft pretty spring like green and enough peppermit essence for delicate flavoring. Use a freezing mixture of 1 part salt and 4-6 parts of ice and turn the freezer slowly. After freezing, remove the dasher and pack the freezer with more ice and salt and let stand for an hour or more to ripen. Serve with hot chocolate sauce and a sprig of mint. Freeze in a 2 quart freezer. Makes over a quart.

AVOCADO SHERBET

- 1 cup sugar
- 1½ cups water
- ½ cup orange juice (1 large orange)
- 3 tblsp. lemon juice (1 lemon)
- 1 lg. ripe avocado
- Few drops green food coloring
- 2 egg whites

Set control of refrigerator at coldest point. Place medium size bowl in refrigerator to chill. Combine sugar, water and orange and lemon juices in medium size saucepan, bring to boiling point and boil gently for 5 minutes. Cool. Halve avocado legthwise, remove seed, peel and put through coarse sieve. Stir pulp into cooled syrup and blend well. Tint mixture with green coloring and pour into freezing tray. Freeze until mixture is firm about 1 inch around edge of tray. Beat egg whites in small bowl until stiff. Scrape partly frizen sherbet mixture into chilled bowl, beat quickly with rotary beater until smooth but not melted. Gently fold beaten egg whites into sherbet, return to freezing tray, freeze until firm, stir once to make sherbet smooth, reset control to normal. Good spooned into half grapefruit as an appetizer or for dessert.

Start 'em young on Lamb

You want your children to enjoy and appreciate the good things of life. Lamb is one of them. You want them to stoke up on body-building foods. Lamb belongs in their diet. You want to find fun and satisfaction in your role as wife-mother-cook. Tender, young lamb can be one of your successes.

How to succeed with Lamb Shoulder Chops

Marinate 4 lamb shoulder chops, cut about 1 inch thick, in your favorite oil and vinegar dressing. Chill 2 or 3 hours, turning lamb occasionally. Broil 3 to 5 inches from source of heat for 10 to 12 minutes. Turn lamb and cook 10 to 12 minutes more, or until it's as done as your family likes it. Recommended: lamb nicely browned on the outside, a little bit pink in the middle.

GOLDEN PIE

3 tblsp. chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup butter or margarine
6 tblsp. flour
2 cans milk
1 can cream of chicken soup
2 cups diced cooked ham
1 tblsp. lemon juice

Cheese Biscuits

1 cup flour
1½ tsp. baking powder, double action
½ salt
2½ tblsp. margarine
¾ Cup grated sharp cheese
1 pimiento chopped
½ cup milk

Saute the onion, green pepper in the butter or margarine. Blend in the flour and gradually stir in the 2 cups of milk and the chicken soup. Bring to boil and cook over low heat, stirring constantly. Boil one minute and remove from heat. Stir in the cooked ham and lemon juice. Pour into greased baking dish 8x12. Place in hot oven, 450 degrees to heat while making cheese biscuits. Quickly place biscuits on hot mixture.

MARTHA LIEN

Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in with pastry blender until mixture looks like "meal". Add the margarine. Stir in the grated cheese, pimiento and milk. Round up on lightly floured board. Knead very lightly, just to smooth up. Roll out ¼ inch thick. Cut into 10 biscuits with floured doughnut cutter, leaving in the centers. Cut remaining dough into small circles to fill in at the edges and corners of the casserole. Serves 6-8.

FRIED GREEN BEANS

- 1½ lbs. green beans
- 2 tbsp. oil
- ½ cup water
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. sugar
- ½ tsp. monosodium glutamate
- ½ lb. fresh shelled shrimp

Wash beans. Break off and discard tips. Cut into 1-inch lengths. Place a heavy cast iron or aluminum skillet on the grill. Heat oil. Add beans and stir briskly. When beans change color, add rest of ingredients. Stir a few more times, cover and place skillet in warm, not hot, section of grill 4 more minutes, or continue cooking beans uncovered, stirring often over hot grill until most of the liquid is absorbed. Try half pound of fresh shelled shrimp added to beans for delicious variation. Serves 6.

BAR B Q BEEF PATTIES

- 1½ lb. ground beef
- 1 cup oats
- 1½ cups milk
- 1½ tsp. salt
- 2 tbsp. grated onions
- ½ tsp. chili powder
- 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce

Mix all ingredients and shape into 16 patties. Bake in oblong pan, covered, with the following sauce 1 hour at 350 degrees.

Sauce

- ¼ cup Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tblsps. vinegar
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 cup ketchup

Combine and cook in saucepan over medium heat 10 minutes.

BOB'S BEST BEEF BARBECUE

- 2 lbs. ground beef (not ground round or ground chuck)
- Dash of powdered garlic
- ¼ green pepper finely minced
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 tsp. barbecue seasoning
- 1 tsp. monosodium glutamate
- A-1 sauce

Combine all ingredients except A-1 sauce. Lightly handle meat, patting into four oval shaped patties. Chill patties in refrigerator 15-30 minutes. Cook burgers over very hot coals and as close to coals as possible. Burgers will require about 10 minutes on each side. Remove from fire and douse liberally with A-1 sauce. Makes 4 large patties.

Terri Elders

Long Beach

BARBECUE SAUCE

- 1½ cups vinegar
- ½ tsp. curry powder
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1 tsp. black pepper
- 2 tsp. chopped onion
- 2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 cup butter
- 2 tsp. hot sauce
- 2½ cups catsup

Place the vinegar, curry powder, salt, brown sugar, pepper, chopped onion and Worcestershire sauce in pan and boil slowly 20 minutes. Add the butter, hot sauce and catsup and cook slowly for a few minutes until fairly thick.

Mrs. James A. McClulloch

SAVORY BARBECUED BEEF ROAST

- 1 round bone or chuck roast 2½ to 3 inches thick

MARINADE

- 1 cup salad oil
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ½ cup vinegar (half may be sherry wine)
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. rosemary
- ½ tsp. basil
- ½ tsp. pepper
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed

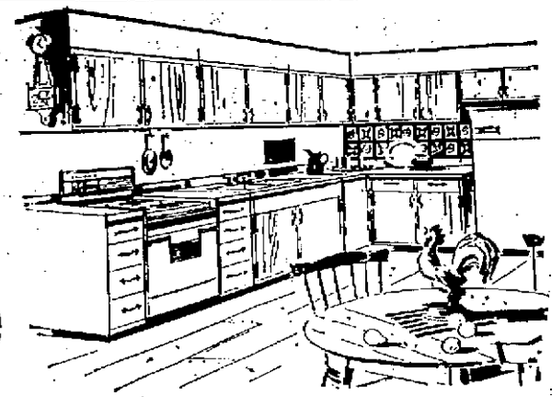

Combine all ingredients, mix well and pour over roast. Let stand overnight, turning several times. Brown roast over hot coals, then raise grill 3-4 inches and continue cooking until roast is of desired doneness, basting frequently with remaining marinade. Roast is usually done in 45 minutes to 1 hour. Tenderizer, used before marinading, further improves meat. Serves 6.

First Prize

CURRIED SUPPER EGGS

2 tblsp. butter
2 tblsp. flour
½ tsp. curry powder
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1½ cups milk
5 eggs, hard cooked and chopped
⅔ cups hot cooked rice

Melt the butter in a large saucepan and blend in the flour, curry powder, salt and pepper. Add the milk slowly and stir until smooth and thickened. Add the chopped eggs and serve over the hot cooked rice. Serves 4.

MRS. A. H. MILLER

2nd Prize

6 slices bacon
4 green peppers, seeded and cut into thin slices
2 lg. onions, peeled, sliced thin
4 tomatoes, skinned, seeded and quartered
1 clove garlic, minced
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. white pepper
12 eggs
½ cup cream
6 slices bread
chives
4 tblsp. butter

In a large skillet, saute bacon. When crisp, remove and drain. In 4 tablespoons of bacon fat, saute gently the green peppers, onions. When soft, add tomatoes, garlic, salt and pepper. Cook gently and when vegetables are soft, mash them a little with a fork. Set aside and keep warm. Beat eggs with cream; turn into skillet with the tablespoons butter. Stir over low heat until set, but not dry. Add salt and pepper to taste. Toast and butter bread; cut into triangles. Mound up scrambled eggs in center of warm platter; sprinkle with chives; crumble bacon and sprinkle over eggs. Arrange pepper and tomato sauce around eggs. Place toast triangles around edge of platter. Serves 6.

POACHED EGGS

1 slice canadian bacon
1 slice tomato
½ English muffin (toasted)
2 eggs
Hollondaise Sauce
1 cup milk
Salt and white pepper
Sliced, pitted ripe olives

Heat milk in small skillet just to boiling, but do not boil. Gently drop eggs in milk and simmer 3 minutes. Arrange parsley on plate for garnish. Place muffins in center, top with browned canadian bacon then add slice of tomato. Trim poached eggs and add to top, sprinkle with salt and white pepper. Pour hot hollondaise sauce over all. Add sliced olives. Serve hot. This serves one.

Mrs. Tom Lewis
11502 Harrisburg Road

OEUFS ENTRALLIES

18 eggs, hard boiled
½ lb. bacon
White Sauce
¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour
1 cup light cream
1 cup milk
1 lb. grated sharp cheddar cheese
1 sm. clove garlic, crushed
¼ tsp. each of thyme, marjoram and basil
¼ cup chopped parsley
Buttered bread crumbs

Cool, peel and slice the hard cooked eggs thinly. Saute the bacon until crisp. Drain and crumble. Make 2 cups of white sauce by melting the butter, mixing in the four then adding the cream and milk, stir well and add the grated cheese. Season with the garlic, thyme, marjoram and basil. Add the chopped parsley. Pour some of the sauce into a baking dish. Add a layer of egg slices, then bacon crumbles and more cheese sauce. Continue until all ingredients are used up, ending with sauce. Sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in 350 degree oven about 20 minutes until bubbly and crumbs are browned. Serves 10-12.

EGGS A-LA-LEE

12 hard cooked eggs, peeled
3 tblsp. flour
1½ tsp. curry powder
1 pt. cream
1 cup chicken stock
4 tblsp. Sherry
4 egg yolks beaten
4 tblsp. cream
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. Accent

Melt butter in a saucepan. Add flour and curry powder. Cook 2 minutes. Slowly add the cream and chicken stock. Stir until it boils. Add sherry, salt, pepper and accent. To the beaten egg yolks and cream, stir in a little of the sherry-curry sauce. Add to the remaining sauce and stir over low heat until it thickens.

Cut the eggs lengthwise in half. Place in shallow casserole. Cover eggs with sauce, cover the casserole and place in refrigerator overnight. At serving time, re-heat 45 minutes at 250 degrees.

Third Prize

DELIGHT SQUARES

1 pkg. flavored gelatin
1 cup hot applesauce
1 cup sugar
½ cup chopped nuts

Dissolve the gelatin in the hot applesauce and add the sugar. Stir over low heat until dissolved then add the chopped nuts. Pour into greased 9x5x3 pan. Chill then cut into pieces and roll in powdered sugar. After 24 hours, roll in sugar again. Makes 36 pieces.

Mrs. Joan Halloway
5379 E. Willow
Long Beach

BROWN SUGAR FUDGE

1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
½ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup milk
2 cups powdered sugar
1 cup nuts, chopped

Melt butter or margarine and stir in the brown sugar. Cook over low heat for 2 minutes. Add milk and let come to rolling boil. Take from heat. Let cool then add powdered sugar. Beat until smooth and thick like fudge. Add nuts and pour into buttered pan. When cool, cut into squares or place in refrigerator tray and use the divider to cut even pieces.

Mrs. Estelle Nurick
727 Linden Ave.
Long Beach

DIVINITY DROPS

3 cups granulated sugar
½ cup white corn syrup
½ cup cold water
2 egg whites
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup chopped walnuts

In saucepan, thoroughly mix sugar, syrup, cold water. Beat egg whites until stiff. Now boil sugar mixture until it forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water. Pour only half of it into the egg whites, beating all the while. Return other half of syrup to heat and boil until it forms a hard ball in cold water. Pour this syrup into egg white mixture, while beating until quite firm and stands in peaks. Fold in vanilla and walnuts. When divinity stands without spreading, drop by heaping teaspoonsfuls onto wax paper. Cool. Makes 60 pieces.

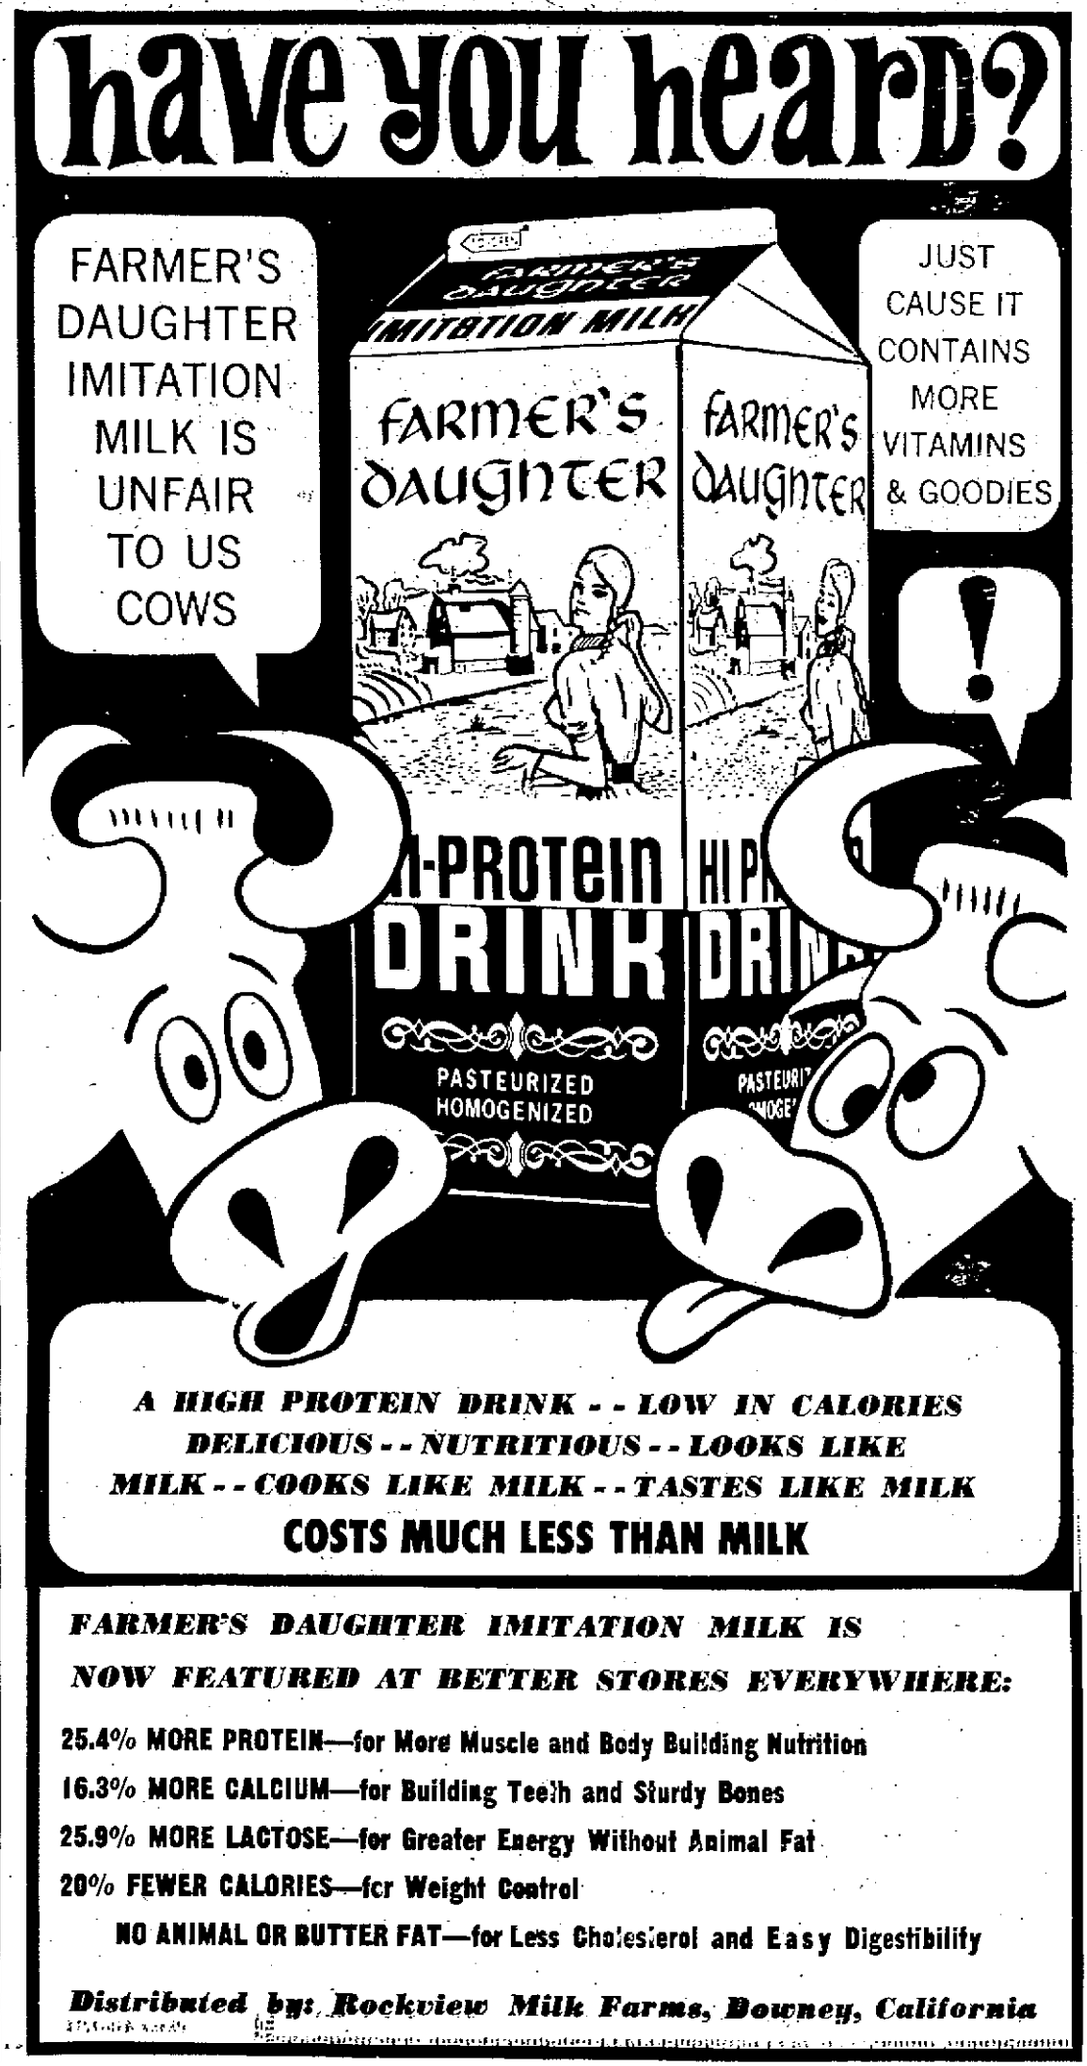

Mrs. Rose Lusch
11670 First Ave.
Lynwood

PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE

1½ cups sugar
¾ cup canned milk
1-3 cup crunchy peanut butter

Combine all ingredients and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until done. Candy is done when a few drops put in cold water forms a soft ball without falling apart in the water. Cool, then beat until candy starts getting firm. Pour onto buttered platter and finish cooling. Cut into 1½ inch squares. Makes 12 pieces.

PUDDINGS
(Cobblers, Custards, Strudels, etc.)

First Prize

SOUR APPLE CREAM

- 5 lg. apples
- 1½ cup water
- 1 cup sugar

Custard

- 1 pt. sour cream
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 tblsp. lemon rind
- 1 tblsp. lemon juice
- 1 tblsp. cornstarch
- 1 tblsp. nutmeg

Peel and core the apples.

Leave one whole and cut the others in half. Steam until tender but don't let them fall apart in boiling syrup of water and sugar. Place in bottom of dish. Use the whole apple in center and put halves around to fill dish. Cover apples with the custard ingredients. Bake 30 minutes at 300 degrees or until custard is done. Careful not to bake too long and it is also good to make the day before and serve very cold.

PERFECT PEACH COBBLER

- 3 cups canned peaches and juice
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ tsp. cinnamon
- 2 tblsp. butter

Arrange the canned peaches and juice from a 1 lb. 13 oz. can in a 9" square pan. Add the half cup sugar, sprinkle with cinnamon and dot with butter. Put in 400 degrees oven to warm.

Topping

- 1½ cups flour
- 1 tblsp. sugar
- 3 tsp. baking powder
- ½ tsp. salt
- ½ cup shortening
- 1 egg
- ½ cup milk

Sift dry ingredients. Cut in shortening. Beat egg with milk and add all at once. Stir until flour is moistened. Spoon dough over hot peaches, (3 mounds of 3 rows each). Sprinkle top with 2 tablespoons of sugar. Bake at 400 degrees 30 minutes. Serves 6.

CARAMEL SOUFFLE

- ¼ cup butter
- ½ cup flour
- ¾ cup milk
- 1 cup (6 oz.) caramel chips
- ½ tsp. allspice
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 4 egg yolks, beaten until thick
- ¼ cup sugar
- 6 egg whites

Melt butter. Blend in flour. Add milk all at once. Cook, stirring constantly until smooth and thickened. Add caramel chips, allspice and vanilla. Stir until chips are melted. Cool slightly. Add about half of sauce to egg yolk stirring. Then add egg yolks mixture to sauce, stirring constantly. Beat egg whites until foamy with clean beater. Gradually add sugar, beating well after each addition. Beat yolks mixture into egg until peaks form. Fold egg yolks mixture into egg whites. Pour into ungreased 1½ quart casserole. APPLE CRISP PUDDING

- 4½ cups sliced pared apples
- ½ cup granulated sugar
- 2 tsp. lemon juice
- 2 tblsp. water
- ¼ cup margarine
- ⅓ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- ½ cup flour
- ¾ cup quick cooking oats

Grease deep baking dish (1½ quart size). Prepare apples, measure and arrange in baking dish. Sprinkle with granulated sugar. Combine lemon juice and water. Pour over apples. Cream margarine, gradually add brown sugar. Blend in flour and oats. Spread over apples. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven until apples are tender, about 35 minutes. Serve warm or cold with plain or whipped cream.

Note: If apples are tart, sprinkle with ¾ cup sugar instead of half cup. If apples are firm dry type, use 4 tablespoons water instead of 2. Serves 6.

Mrs. S. Montaine
129 Stanford Lane
Seal Beach

MOLDED PEACH PUDDING

- 1 pkg. orange gelatin
- 1 cup hot peach juice
- 1 cup canned peaches
- ½ cup port wine or peach liquer
- ½ cup whipping cream
- 1 pkg. frozen peaches or fresh sliced peaches

Dissolve gelatin in hot liquid from canned peaches. Cool to lukewarm. Place peaches, well drained, gelatin mixture and wine in electric blendor. Mix thoroughly. Add cream and whip a few minutes more. Chill until firm, in molds. Garnish with fresh or frozen peach slices. Serves 6.

SHERRY GLAZED SPARERIBS

- 1 side meaty spareribs
- salt and pepper
- 1 8-oz. can tomato sauce
- ½ cup sherry wine
- ½ cup honey
- 2 tblsp. wine vinegar
- 2 tblsp. minced onion
- 1 clove garlic minced
- ¼ tblsp. worcestershire sauce

Sprinkle spareribs with salt and pepper. Place in shallow baking pan and bake in 400 degree oven 40 minutes. Drain off fat. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over spareribs. Bake 1 hour longer in 300 degree or until tender. If desired, can be barbecued over low coals, brushing on the same sauce to glaze. Serves 6-8.

VEAL SCALLAPINI

- 1-2 lbs. veal round tenderized
- 1 cube butter
- 1-2 pkgs. of mushrooms
- 2 bouillon cubes (chicken)
- 1 cup hot water
- 1 cup dry sherry or marsala wine

Cut the veal into bite-size pieces. Dredge in flour, salt and pepper. Saute in the butter until brown. Add sliced mushrooms and brown. Dissolve two bouillon cubes in 1 cup hot water and add to veal and mushrooms. Simmer. Also add 1 cup of wine. Simmer 1½ hours and add peas, if desired, a half hour before serving time. This is good with buttered french bread warmed in the oven.

HERRICK STEAK

- ⅓ cup regular white rice
- 2 lb. round steak, tenderized
- 1 can tomato soup
- 1 bell pepper
- 4 small potatoes
- 2 tblsp. taco sauce
- 1 tblsp. dry onion or 1 fresh onion, chopped

Trim fat off meat, put in skillet on low heat. Melt fat, add a little oil if necessary. Flour meat and brown it in the fat and set aside on a plate.

Put the can of tomato soup and half can water in skillet and mix in chopped bell pepper, onion, taco sauce. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Put meat in casserole dish, add soup mixture and place in 350 degree oven half hour. Add potatoes cut into pieces and rice; cook 30-45 minutes longer. Check to be sure liquid does not dry out. Add water if necessary. Serves 4-6.

VEAL BIRDS

- 2 lbs. veal steak
- 2 tblsp. butter
- ½ cup chopped salt pork
- 1 tblsp. chopped onion
- 4 tblsp. drippings
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- 2 tblsp. chopped dill pickle
- 2 tblsp. soft bread crumbs
- 2 tblsp. chopped green pepper
- 2 tblsp. chopped celery
- 2 cups water

Wipe meat with damp cloth and remove fat. Score with knife by criss crossing the steaks. Meat should be ¼-½ inch thick. Cut into 4 inch squares. Melt butter, add pork and fry until brown. Add onions and green pepper. Place portions of dressing on top of each piece of veal and spread out almost to edge. Roll and tie firmly with cord. Roll in flour and fry in drippings until well browned. Add water and let simmer slowly about 1½ hours or until tender. This makes 8 birds.

FLORIDIAN HAM

- 4 slices of ham, cut 1-16 inch thick
- 4 slices sharp cheese
- Canned or frozen asparagus
- Prepared mustard
- Cayenne pepper
- 2 tblsp. chopped onion
- 1 tblsp. lemon juice
- 2 tblsp. pineapple juice

Brush ham slices lightly with mustard. On each slice lay 4-6 spears of asparagus. Roll and fasten with tooth picks. Place in a buttered baking dish. Mix onion and juices and let stand about 10 minutes. Pour off excess juice and sprinkle liberally over each slice of cheese added to the ham roll. Sprinkle with cayenne pepper. If using frozen asparagus, cook as directed, then place on ham. Serves 4.

CREOLE STEAK WITH RED GRAVY

- 1 half inch thick round steak 1½ to 2 lb.
- 6 med. size potatoes, scrubbed or peeled
- 1 green pepper, cut in strips
- 1 sm. onion diced
- ½ clove garlic, minced
- 1 No. 303 can tomatoes
- ½ cup water
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. black pepper
- 3 tblsp. red wine (1½ tblsp. vinegar may be substituted)

Tenderize meat and cut into serving pieces, removing bone. Flour meat well and brown on both sides in ⅓ cup oil, using large skillet. Place potatoes in skillet with meat. Add green pepper, onion and garlic, and sprinkle generously with flour (2-3 tblsp.) Pour in tomatoes and make sure they are cut in small pieces. Add water, wine, salt and pepper. Cover and cook over low heat until potatoes are done, stirring occasionally with fork, so meat doesn't stick. Add more water if needed. Cooking time about 45 minutes.

Fresh Lime Time Brings Out Recipes

Fresh limes are plentiful now. Their astringent and refreshing taste brightens tall cold drinks. Thin slices of them are perfect on fish, too, and in this unusually delicate souffle pie. They add a new and exciting flavor.

LIME SOUFFLE PIE

1 cup sugar
1 tblsp. cornstarch
1 tblsp. water
4 egg yolks
1-3 cup fresh lime juice
1½ tsp. grated fresh lime peel
¼ tsp. salt.
4 egg whites
1 (9-inch) baked pie shell

Mix ½-cup of the sugar with cornstarch, water, egg yolks and lime juice in top of double boiler. Stir and cook over hot water 18 to 15 minutes or until custard is very thick. Add lime peel, being careful to grate only green portion of the peel. Add salt to egg whites and beat them until they stand in soft peaks; gradually beat in the remaining ½-cup sugar. Fold into custard. Turn into baked pie shell. Bake in pre-heated slow oven (325 degrees) 25 to 30 minutes. Serve cold. One 9-inch pie.

MARINADES, MEAT SAUCES

First Prize

MARINADE FOR SPARE RIBS, LUAU PORK

2 cups pineapple juice
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup soy sauce
1 cup red wine (dry)
3 cloves of garlic, crushed
⅓ cup preserved ginger, cut up
1 lg. jar junior baby food peaches

Marinate pork in large roasting pan 4-8 hours or overnight. Remove pork from marinade and place in open pan. Cook at 300 degrees until fat is almost entirely cooked out. Pour off all fat and return pork to oven, basting frequently and generously with marinade. Cooking time; 3-4 hours. Enough for 10 lbs. ribs.

MRS. KATHRYN A. JOHNSON

Second Prize

HOT CURRIED FRUIT

2 No. 2 cans chunk or ring pineapple
1 No. 2 can cling peach halves or apricots
1 No. 2 can pear halves
12 maraschino cherries

All liquid must be drained from fruit. Set in colander at least half day.

Melt together:
¾ cup brown sugar
⅓ cup butter
2 tsp. curry powder

Put drained fruit in casserole and pour above over it. Bake at 350 degrees 45 minutes. Good with ham, pork, or chicken.

Third Prize

MARINADES, ORIENTAL STYLE

½ cup soy sauce
½ cup vegetable oil
¼ cup water
1 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. grated, fresh ginger root
1 tblsp. grated orange rind (fresh or dried)
1 clove garlic, chopped

Combine all ingredients and shake in covered jar for several minutes or swirl for less than a minute in a blender. Then use to marinade, overnight or longer, any type of foul. Excellent with duck, also very good marinade for cup up or halved chickens. Meat may be broiled or barbecued, as desired.

Mrs. Joyce Sutliff
1832 Washington St.
Long Beach

MARINADE FOR CHICKEN

1 cup vinegar
2 tsp. finely chopped garlic
1½ tblsp. soy sauce
⅛ cup sugar

Mix ingredients well and heat slowly over low fire (do not boil). Take from fire and pour over chicken and let stand 2-4 hours in refrigerator. Fry chicken your favorite way; specially good barbecued.

Mrs. Leonardo L. Diyco

BARBECUED RIB SAUCE

1 onion, chopped
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. chili powder
1 tsp. celery seed
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup worcestershire sauce
1 cup catsup
2 cups water

Combine ingredients and pour over browned ribs and bake 1 to 1½ hours in 350 degrees oven.

Mrs. Judy Riley
2157 Tulane Ave.
Long Beach

30 MINUTE SPAGHETTI SAUCE

2 tblsp. cooking oil
1 cup chopped onion
1 garlic clove, minced
1 lb. ground meat
3 8 oz. cans tomato sauce
1 4 oz. can mushrooms drained
½ tsp. salt
Dash of pepper

Cook onion and garlic in hot oil until soft. Add meat and stir and cook until meat loses red color. Add tomato sauce, mushrooms, salt and pepper. Simmer uncovered for 20 minutes. Serve over hot spaghetti. Serves 4.

Mrs. Bill Garner
1840 Temple Ave.
Long Beach

BARBECUE SAUCE

¼ cup salad oil
¾ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, chopped
1 cup honey
1 cup catsup
1 cup wine vinegar
½ cup worcestershire sauce
1 tblsp. dry mustard
1½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. oregano
⅓ tsp. thyme
Black pepper to taste

Heat the salad oil; add the onion and garlic and simmer until tender. Add remaining ingredients and bring to a boil. Boil 5 minutes. Cool and put in jar with good cap and this will keep a month in the refrigerator.

Mrs. Paul Koehler
3304 E. Centralia
Lakewood

HOT PEPPER JELLY

¾ cup chopped bell pepper (about 2 medium peppers)
6 hot peppers (finger-length, red or green)
6½ cups sugar
1½ cups apple cider vinegar
1 bottle liquid pectin

Grind peppers, save juice. Mix peppers, juice, vinegar and sugar. Put on fire and let come to a full boil — about 1 minute. Take off fire and let stand ten minutes, add pectin, stir well, let stand ten more minutes and put into jars and seal with paraffin. Red or green peppers may be used. A few drops of food coloring adds to the beauty of the jelly. Good on all meats.

SHERRY MACE SAUCE FOR HAM

½ cup of water
½ cup of raisins
1½ tsp. grated orange peel
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. mace
¼ cup vinegar
2 tblsp. orange juice
2 tblsp. cornstarch
⅛ tsp. cinnamon
⅜ tsp. cloves
⅔ cup dry Sherry

Combine water, raisins, vinegar, orange peel and orange juice in a saucepan and simmer 5 minutes or until raisins are plump and tender. Combine thoroughly, the brown sugar, cornstarch, salt, mace and cinnamon and cloves and stir into raisin mixture. Cook over medium heat, stirring until thickened and clear. Add sherry and continue cooking, stirring until well blended, about 5 minutes. Spread on slices of ham and serve.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE SAUCE

1 can (14-oz.) sweetened condensed milk
1 jar marshmallow cream
½ cup milk
¼ cup butter
¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
1 pkg. (6-oz.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces

Combine sweetened condensed milk, marshmallow cream, milk, butter and salt in saucepan. Cook, stirring, over medium heat until mixture thickens slightly and is almost boiling. Stir vigorously to prevent burning. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla and chocolate pieces. Stir until chocolate has melted and sauce is smooth. Makes about 4 cups fudge sauce.

POTATO DISHES

First Prize

BAKED POTATO SUPREME

- 6 baking potatoes
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1 tsp. celery seed
- 1 tsp. salt
- ½ cup milk
- 6 frankfurters, scored
- ½ cup sour cream
- Paprika

Scrub potatoes, dry and rub with oil. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees for 45 minutes. Slice tops off lengthwise and scoop out the cooked potato, being careful not to break the shell. Mash the potatoes with butter or margarine, milk and celery and seed, salt and pepper. Fill potato shells and place 1 frankfurter on top of each. Place in a baking dish. Sprinkle with paprika. Heat about 15 minutes in oven. Spoon sour cream over each potato. This is especially good with sauerkraut. Serves 6.

Mrs. Earl Tomlinson
152 Norton
Long Beach

Second Prize

SHERRIED SWEET POTATOES WITH PECANS

- 6 med. sweet potatoes or yams
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1 tblsp. grated orange rind
- 1-3 cup sherry
- Coarsely cut pecans

Boil the potatoes in salted water until tender. Peel and cut in thick slices. Place layer of potato in baking dish. Combine the sugar, orange juice, rind and sherry. Pour a little of this mixture over potatoes. Sprinkle generously with pecans. Repeat layers of potatoes, liquid and pecans until casserole is filled. Pour remaining juice over top and sprinkle with nuts and dot with butter. Cover and bake in 350 degrees oven 30 minutes or until juice has been absorbed by potatoes and top is browned. Serves 6.

Geneva Grimshaw
2140 Montair Ave.
Long Beach

Third Prize

POTATOES, PEASANT STYLE

- 3 cups potatoes
- 6 tblsp. bacon fat
- 2 cloves garlic, chopped
- ½ tsp. paprika
- 2 tblsp. parsley
- 2 tblsp. flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 tsp. salt
- ⅛ tsp. pepper

Wash, pare and cut potatoes in cubes. Saute in the bacon fat until brown. Remove potatoes and fry the chopped garlic and parsley in the fat remaining in the pan. Add flour, stir to remove lumps, then add milk and seasonings, and cook until thickened — about 5 minutes. Add potatoes and cook another three to five minutes. Serves 4-6.

Mrs. William C. Green
335 Cedar Ave.
Long Beach

SWEET POTATO CRUNCH

- 3 cups mashed cooked or canned sweet potatoes or yams
- ½ tsp. cinnamon
- ¼ tsp. nutmeg
- 4 tblsp. butter
- 6 marshmallows

If the potatoes are cold, used melted butter. Form into 6 balls, press a marshmallow into center of each ball. Roll in coarsely crushed corn flakes. Bake at 375 degrees 15 minutes. Serves 6.

Mrs. John G. Dayton
4409 Graywood Ave.
Long Beach

POTATO ROMANOFF

Mix together:

- 1 pt. cottage cheese
- 1 cup sour cream
- 2 tsp. salt
- ¼ cup minced green onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced

Add:

- 5 cups cooked diced potatoes

Cook and dice the potatoes. Mix the cottage cheese, sour cream, salt, green onion, and garlic, then add the potatoes. Place in buttered 1½ quart casserole. Top with half cup shredded cheese and dash of paprika. Bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Serves 6-8.

Mrs. Brewster Gray
3851 Chestnut Ave.
Long Beach

KOGALE POTATOES

- 8 medium sized potatoes
- 2 med. onions
- ½ cup diced bacon
- 1 sm. can milk
- 2 eggs
- Salt and pepper

Brown bacon and pour surplus fat in baking dish. While bacon is browning peel and grate potatoes and onions. Beat eggs slightly and add milk to potatoes, onions and bacon and seasonings. Mix lightly and pour in pan and bake until done, about 45 minutes in a 350 degree oven. If refrigerated before baking, allow about 15 minutes more baking time. Serves 6-8.

Doris Mae Brocksen
4472 Walnut Ave.
Long Beach

STUFFED POTATOES

- 4 lg. baked potatoes
- 5 tblsp. mayonnaise
- 6 crisp bacon strips
- ½ cup finely grated American cheese
- ⅓ cup onion, finely chopped
- Paprika

Saute onion in bacon drippings, then drain on paper towels. Scoop out potatoes, leaving a shell. Break potato into small pieces with fork. Don't mash. Combine mayonnaise, onion, crumbled bacon and cheese (save some to sprinkle on top). Add ingredients to potatoes and toss with fork. Spoon mixture into potato shells. Sprinkle on cheese and paprika to garnish. Return to oven and heat at 200 degrees until cheese melts. Serves 4.

Judy Tackett
5123 Pearce Ave.
Lakewood

GRATIN SAVOYARD

- 4 medium potatoes, raw and peeled
- ½ tsp. each of salt, pepper and nutmeg mixed
- ¾ cup bouillon or beef broth
- ½ cup grated Swiss cheese
- 2 tblsp. butter or margarine

Grease casserole and place in it a layer of thinly sliced potatoes. Sprinkle on part of grated cheese. Repeat layers, ending with cheese. Dot the surface with butter or margarine and add the broth. The broth should not cover the potatoes entirely. Start the cooking over a burner until the broth starts to boil. Cover the casserole and place it in an oven at 350 degrees about 25 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Remove the cover about 10 minutes to evaporate some of the liquid and brown the surface. Serves 4.

Mrs. Eloise Leander
1562 Golden Rain Road
Seal Beach

POTATO STRIP-TEASERS

- 4 med potatoes
- 3 tblsp. butter
- salt and pepper to taste
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- ½ cup shredded American cheese
- ½ cup light cream

Peel potatoes, cut as for french fries. Place in center of large piece of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Shape foil to form baking dish. Dot with butter, salt, pepper, 2 tablespoons of parsley and cheese. Pour cream over. Bring edges of foil up to cover. Seal all edges to make tightly closed package, but do not flatten. Place on cookie sheet. Bake at 425 degrees 40-50 minutes. Serves 4.

CHILE RELLENO

- 2 4-oz. cans of green chiles
- ½ lb. jack cheese grated
- 1 lb. cheddar cheese grated
- 4 eggs
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 large can of evaporated milk
- 1 tblsp. flour
- 2 8-oz. cans of tomato sauce.

Clean seeds out of chiles, open flat, and soak in cold water 1 hour. Drain chiles and line 9x13 baking dish with half of them. Spread grated jack cheese over chiles. Spread grated cheddar cheese over jack cheese. Arrange the rest of the chiles over the cheese. Beat together the eggs, salt, flour and milk. Pour this mixture on top of cheese and chiles and bake about 25 minutes at 350 degrees or until set (similar to custard). Add tomato sauce, spreading it over the baked cheese and chiles and reheat a few minutes.

First Prize

LIMA SUNSHINE CASSEROLE

- 1 cup large dry limas
- 1 tsp. salt
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- ¼ cup diced green sweet pepper
- 2 tblsp. butter or margarine
- 1½ cups canned tomatoes
- 1 cup cream-style canned corn
- 1 cup cubed cooked ham
- Buttered crumbs

Stir rinsed limas into 1 quart rapidly boiling water. Boil gently over low heat until tender (about 1½ to 2 hours). Season with salt in the last half hour. Saute onion and green pepper lightly in heated butter. Stir in tomatoes, corn, limas and ham. Mix thoroughly and turn into greased casserole. Top with buttered crumbs or some of ham pieces if desired. Bake in 350 degree oven until heated through, and flavors are blended, about 45 minutes to 1 hour. Serves 4-5.

TURKEY CASSEROLE

- 5 tblsp. sifted flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. onion salt
- ¼ cup melted butter or margarine
- 2½ cups milk or light cream
- 1½ cups minute rice
- ½ cup grated American cheese
- 1½ cups turkey or chicken broth
- 1½ cups cooked asparagus
- 2 cups diced turkey
- 2 tblsp. toasted slivered almonds

Stir flour, half of the salt, onion salt and mix into the butter. Stir in the milk. Cook over hot water stirring occasionally until thickened. Pour Minute rice from the box into a 2 quart shallow baking dish. Combine broth, remaining salt, and pour over the rice. Sprinkle half the cheese over the rice. Top with asparagus, then turkey. Pour on the sauce. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake at 375 for about 20 minutes. Top with almonds. A small can of chopped pimiento may be arranged over the top for garnish before baking if desires. Serves 6.

CHUCK-WAGON CASSEROLE

- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 2 onions, chopped
- 4 tblsp. shortening
- 3½ cups peeled tomatoes (No. 2½ can)
- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1 can cream of mushroom soup
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tblsp. worcestershire sauce
- Cayenne pepper to taste
- 1 8 oz. pkg. uncooked egg noodles
- ¼ lb. American or velveta cheese grated

Lightly saute green pepper and onions in 2 tablespoons shortening using deep, large skillet. Push vegetables aside. Add remaining shortening. Saute meat and combine with pepper and onions. In a separate dish, mash the peeled tomatoes and mix the can of mushroom soup with the tomatoes. Add pepper, salt, cayenne and worcestershire sauce, mix well and pour into skillet, combining meat and everything together. Bring mixture to a boil. Reduce flame. Sprinkle the package of noodles over top. Cover and let mixture simmer on low flame 45 minutes. Stir once or twice during that time. Sprinkle cheese over top, cover and cook another 10-15 minutes longer.

OYSTERS BROILED IN SHERRY WINE

24 selected oysters
2 tblsp. flour
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
2 tblsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 cup A-1 steak sauce
2 1-oz. jiggers of pale dry sherry
2 tblsp. flour
3 tblsp. water.

Salt and pepper oysters — dredge in flour. Grill on lightly buttered griddle until crisp and browned on both sides. Sprinkle oysters with butter or cooking oil while grilling. Do this on both sides — it browns and crisps them. Place lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, steak sauce and sherry in a saucepan over a low fire and heat thoroughly but do not allow to come to a boil. Blend 2 tablespoons of flour into the 3 tablespoons of water and stir in as thickening after the sauce is heated. Season to taste by addition of A-1 sauce if too thin, or sherry if too thick. Place freshly grilled oysters on a hot serving plate and dress with the heated sauce. Insert toothpicks in oysters. Serves 6-8.

CAKES

MRS. DONALD D. CLARK

First Prize

OATMEAL CAKE

- 1¼ cup water
- ¾ cube butter or margarine
- 1 cup quick cooking oatmeal
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup white sugar
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1½ cup flour
- ½ tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. nutmeg
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 tsp. soda

Bring water and butter to a boil; remove from heat. Add oatmeal; mix gently. Cool. Add eggs, sugar and vanilla. Heat just enough to mix well. Add dry ingredients. Pour into oblong pan. Bake at 350 degrees 30 40 minutes; cool.

Topping

- 6-8 tblsp. butter or margarine
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- 1 cup shredded coconut
- 1-2 egg yolks
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 tsp. vanilla

Melt margarine and brown sugar together; add nuts, coconut and egg yolks. Gradually add milk until topping is of spreading consistency. Spread mixture over Hot Cake, broil until brown and bubbly, 5-8 minutes.

Mrs. D. Clark
7006 El Paseo St.

Second Prize

MOTHER'S DELIGHT CAKE

- ½ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup white sugar
- 4 eggs, separated, beaten with fork
- ½ cup milk
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- ½ tsp. salt

Cream butter and sugar until sugar is dissolved. Add egg yolks and beat until lemon color. Sift dry ingredients 4 times. Add to sugar mixture, alternately with milk and vanilla.

Topping

- 4 egg whites, beaten stiff
- ½ tsp. salt
- ⅛ tsp. baking powder
- 8 tblsp. sugar

Pour cake ingredients into greased 8x10 pan. Spread topping of meringue on and sprinkle with chopped almonds or walnuts and shredded coconut. Bake at 350 degrees 30 minutes. A very moist, light cake.

Third Prize

POUND CAKE

- 1 cup margarine
- 2 cups sugar
- 3 cups flour, all purpose
- 4 eggs
- 1 cup buttermilk
- ½ tsp. baking powder
- ½ tsp. soda
- 1 tsp. vanilla or almond flavoring (½ tsp. each)

Mix shortening with sugar, flour, baking powder and soda with a pastry blender. Mix eggs with buttermilk and add gradually to dry ingredients. Beat with mixer at high speed for at least 10 minutes (do not be afraid of overbeating.) Bake in greased, lightly floured pan 13x9x2 in 350 degree oven until lightly browned and cake springs back when touched with finger, about 45 minutes.

Mrs. Paul M. Johnston
2018 Shipway Ave.
Long Beach

AVOCADO CAKE

- ½ cup shortening
- 1¾ cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- ⅓ cup buttermilk
- 1½ cups flour
- 1 tsp. soda
- ½ tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. nutmeg
- ½ tsp. cinnamon
- ½ tsp. cardamon
- 1 cup mashed avocado
- ½ cup currants or raisins
- ½ cup chopped nuts

Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and beat thoroughly. Add buttermilk alternately with dry ingredients. Stir in avocado and nuts and riaisins. Bake in greased 8x4x3 loaf pan at 375 degrees 1 hour and 15 minutes. Serves 12.

Note: The avocado may be creamed with sugar and shortening. This tends to darken cake and make it heavier, like fruit cake.

Lynn McMillen

Wilmington

ALMOND LUXOR CAKE

- ¾ cup butter
- 1¾ cups sugar
- 4 eggs
- 1 tsp. lemon extract
- 2⅔ cups sifted cake flour
- 5 tsp. baking powder
- ½ tsp. salt
- ¾ cup milk
- ¾ cup ground roasted blanched almonds

Custard Filling

- 2 cups milk
- ⅔ cup sugar
- Pinch of salt
- 3 tblsp. cornstarch
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 tsp. lemon extract

Boiled Icing Basis

- 3 egg whites
- ground unblanched almonds
- whole almonds for top of cake

Batter: Cream butter, add sugar gradually, creaming thoroughly. Add well beaten eggs and flavoring and mix. Add flour sifted with baking powder and salt, alternately with milk and beat, (first and last addition should be flour). Add ground almonds and stir to blend. Bake in three (8-9 inch) layer cake pans in 375 degree oven 25 to 30 minutes. Put layers together with custard filling and cover sides and top layer with boiled icing. Sprinkle sides of cake with chopped almonds. Decorate top with whole, roasted, blanched almonds if desired.

Filling: Combine 1½ cups milk, sugar and salt in top of double boiler and scald. Blend remaining half-cup milk, cornstarch and beaten egg yolks and stir into hot milk. Cook and stir until thick. Remove from heat, add flavoring and stir to blend. Cool before spreading on cake. Serves 16.

RAW RHUBARB OR APPLE CAKE

- 1 cup white sugar
- 1 cup brown sugar
- ½ cup shortening
- 2 eggs
- 2¼ cup white flour
- ½ tsp. salt
- 2 tsp. soda
- 2 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 2 cups chopped rhubarb or tart apple

Cream brown sugar and white sugar with shortening. Add 2 eggs and beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with 1 cup buttermilk. Fold in rhubarb or apples. Pour batter into greased 13x9x2 inch pan. Put topping evenly over batter.

Topping

- ¼ cup brown sugar
- ¼ cup white sugar
- ½ tsp. cinnamon
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

Bake in a 350 degree oven 1 hour. This is cake or coffee cake and it is natural for it to drop in spots.

Mrs. Carl Kookmann

MAHOGANY SOUR CREAM CAKE

- 3 squares unsweetened chocolate
- ½ cup water
- 2 cups cake flour, sifted or 1¾ cups regular flour
- 1½ tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 cup sour cream
- ⅔ cup butter
- ⅔ cup light brown sugar firmly packed
- 1 cup white sugar
- 3 eggs, unbeaten
- 2 tsp. vanilla

Melt chocolate in water over low heat; blend. Cool thoroughly. Sift flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Mix sour cream and cooled chocolate. Cream butter and sugars well; add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Beat in vanilla. Add flour and chocolate mixtures alternately, mixing well. Grease and line two 9" layer pans with wax paper. Bake at 350 degrees 35-40 minutes or 40-45 for sheet pan. Serves 12.

SHORTCAKE

- 1¾ cups sifted flour
- 3½ tsp. baking powder
- ¼ tsp. salt
- ⅓ cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 cup milk
- 1 tsp. vanilla

Measure and sift together, flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening and sugar and add egg. Add flour mixture alternately with milk and vanilla. Work quickly and beat after each addition only until smooth. Pour into a well greased, shallow baking pan. Bake in 375 degree oven 30-35 minutes. Serves 8.

Mrs. W. E. Esswein
3061 Studebaker Road

SOUR CREAM SPICE CAKE

- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1¾ cups unsifted all purpose flour
- ½ cup margarine
- ½ cup white sugar
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- ½ tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. soda
- ½ tsp. nutmeg
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup sour cream
- ½ cup chopped pecans

Cream together margarine and brown sugar. Add ¾ cup of the four and blend until mixture resembles crumbs. Remove half cup of this mixture and set aside for topping. To the remaining crumb mixture, add white sugar, baking powder, salt, soda, nutmeg, cinnamon and eggs. Beat until blended and smooth. Add sour cream and remaining one cup flour, and mix until just blended to make a stiff batter. Spread in a greased 9" square baking pan. Work reserved crumb mixture between fingers until it resembles coarse crumbs; mix in pecans. Sprinkle this mixture over top of batter. Bake in 350 degree 40 minutes or until pick inserted in center of cake comes clean. Serves 10.

Mrs. Eloise Leander
1562 Golden Rain Rd. 44-E

ROSY APPLE CAKE

- 1 cup sifted all purpose flour
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- ¼ tsp. salt
- 2 tblsp. butter
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 tblsp. milk
- 4 lge. apples, pared and sliced thin
- 1 pkg. raspberry gelatin

Topping

- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup sifted all purpose flour
- ½ cup butter or margarine

Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in butter same as for pie crust. Combine egg and milk and stir into first mixture. Roll on a floured pastry cloth into a rectangle to fit a pan 7x11 inches. Press into bottom and on sides of pan. Fill with apples and sprinkle with gelatin. Mix sugar, flour and butter with finger tips or pastry blender until crumbly. Sprinkle over all. Bake in a 375 degree oven 45 mins. This is a very different and unique cake which resembles a one crust apple pie with a strausel-like crumb topping. The apples are sweetened, and raspberry flavored gelatin gives them an attractive hue. Serves 8.

JELLIED EASTER EGGS

- 1 pg. lemon or other flavor gelatin
- 1 can fruit cocktail, drained

Whole egg shells (4-6) Save egg shells by carefully removing large end without breaking rest of shell. Rinse shell after egg is removed and again just before using. Make gelatin with juice from fruit cocktail and sufficient additional water. Add fruit when slightly jelled and pour by spoonfuls into egg shell. Use egg carton and prop up the filled shells and refrigerate until firm. Peel off shell and serve in nest of green tinted coconut, if desired.

Pig In Pokey

- 5 weiners
- 10 slices of bacon
- 5 slices American cheese
- 15 toothpicks

Slice each weiner lengthwise and fill with half slice of cheese. Wrap 2 slices of bacon around each weiner and fasten with toothpicks. Broil approximately 5 minutes or until bacon is done. Makes 5 servings.

JUBILEE TORTE

- 8 egg whites (1⅓ cups)
- 1½ tsp. vanilla
- 2 tsp. vinegar
- 2 cups sifted sugar

Have egg whites at room temperature. Add the vanilla and vinegar and beat until mixture forms peaks. Add the sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating until mixture is stiff and all of sugar is dissolved. This makes 2 layers. Spread the mixture gently into two 9" round cake pans. Use pans with blade scraper or line pans with brown paper. Bake in slow oven 300 degrees 1 hour and 15 minutes. Cool well in pans before removing. Turn meringue onto serving plate.

Filling

- 1 cup crushed drained pineapple
- ¾ cup maraschino cherries drained and cut in ¼'s
- 2 cups heavy cream whipped stiff

Fold the crushed pineapple and maraschino cherries into the whipped cream. Spread this mixture generously over the meringue with a narrow spatula. Top with the second meringue and frost whole thing with remaining whipped cream mixture. Chill 12 hours or overnight. Garnish with more maraschino cherries. Serves 14-16.

BRANDIED APPLE FRITTERS

- 4 med. apples
- 1 egg
- 1 tblsp. sugar
- 1½ tsp. baking powder
- 4 tblsp. brandy
- ½ cup milk
- 1 cup flour
- ¼ tsp. salt

Pare apples, core and slice in circles or cut in segments. Pour over them the brandy, cover tightly. Combine the well beaten egg yolk with the sugar and milk. Add flour that has been sifted with the salt and baking powder. Fold in egg whites beaten stiff. Dip the brandied apples in the batter and fry in deep fat at 368-370 degrees two to four minutes. Serve with Sauce Superb or powdered sugar.

Sauce Superb

- 2 eggs
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1 cup powdered sugar
- 4 tsp. rum

Beat the eggs until thick and lemon colored. Add the sugar gradually and continue beating. Whip the cream very stiff, add the rum and combine the two mixtures. The secret in making this sauce is to beat it thoroughly. It will keep for hours in the refrigerator.

2½ cups flaked coconut

Combine butter and coconut and press evenly into lightly buttered 9 inch pie plate, building up sides. Bake in 300 degree oven, 20-25 minutes or until crust is golden. Cool.

Eggnog Pie Filling
1 pkg. lemon flavor gelatin
1 cup hot water
1 pt. vanilla ice cream
¼ tsp. nutmeg
¾ tsp. rum flavoring
2 egg yolks, well beaten
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Cut ice cream in 6 chunks and add to gelatin and stir until melted. Chill until partially set. Add flavoring, stir in egg yolks, fold in egg whites. Pour into cooled coconut shell and chill until set. Serves 6-8.

GRAPEFRUIT PIE

Filling
1 cup water
¾ cup grapefruit juice
2 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
3 tblsp. cornstarch
Few grains of salt
Meringue
2 egg whites
¼ cup sugar
1½ tsp. grapefruit juice

Filling: Boil the sugar, water and one-half cup of the grapefruit juice. Mix the cornstarch and salt with ¼ cup of the grapefruit juice, and stir into the boiling mixture. When thick, remove from the fire and add the beaten egg yolks, first stirring some of the hot mixture into them. Pour into a baked pie shell. Meringue: Beat the egg whites stiff, beat into them the sugar, then beat in the grapefruit juice. Spread over the pie and brown in oven.

TASSIES

½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup flour
1 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese

Cream butter and cream cheese. Add flour and mix well. Divide into 24 pieces and fit into 24 small muffin tin wells. Do not grease.

Filling
2 eggs, beaten
4 tblsp. melted butter or margarine
1½ cups light brown sugar
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup semi-sweet chocolate bits
1 tsp. vanilla
Dash of salt

Blend all ingredients well. Fill tart shells. Bake 25 minutes at 350 degrees. Reduce heat to 250 degrees and bake 10 minutes longer. Makes 24 tassies.

CHOCOLATE CHEESE PIE

1 6-oz. pkg. semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese softened
¾ cup light brown sugar
⅛ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
2 eggs separated
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 9" graham cracker crust

Melt chocolate pieces over hot, not boiling water. Cool about 10 minutes. Blend cream cheese, ½ cup sugar, salt and vanilla. Beat in egg yolks, one at a time. Beat in cooled chocolate. Blend well. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gradually beat in the remaining ¼ cup sugar. Beat until stiff and glossy. Fold chocolate mixture into beaten whites. Fold in the shipped cream. Pour into chilled crust. Chill overnight.

Graham Cracker Crust
1½-cups graham cracker crumbs
¼ cup brown sugar
⅛ tsp. nutmeg
⅓ cup melted butter or margarine

Press into 9" pie pan and chill until firm. Serves 8.

FRENCH APPLE CREAM PIE

5 apples sliced
½-¾ cup sugar
¼-½ cup water
¼ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. grated lemon rind
1 egg
⅓ cup sugar
1 tblsp. lemon juice
1 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese
¼ cup dairy sour cream

Cook the apples with the sugar and the water. Combine the apples, cinnamon, nutmeg and lemon rind. Pour into a pastry-lined pan. In small mixing bowl, combine remaining ingredients. Beat at medium speed of mixer until smooth. Pour over apples. Place top crust over filling. Bake at 425 degrees 25 to 30 minutes, until golden brown.

MILE HIGH RASPBERRY PIE

2 pkgs. (10 oz. each) frozen raspberries
2 envelopes flavored gelatin
½ cup sugar
½ cup water
4 egg whites, stiffly beaten
2 cups heavy cream, whipped
1 baked 9" pie shell
Shredded coconut

Thaw raspberries, drain juice into a measuring cup, add cold water if necessary to make 1 cup juice. Soften gelatin in raspberry juice. Combine sugar and water and stir over low heat until sugar dissolves. Cook rapidly to 235 degrees on candy thermometer or until syrup spins a thread. Add softened gelatin to syrup, stir to dissolve. Slowly pour syrup mixture over egg whites, while beating rapidly. Continue beating until mixture forms peaks when beater is raised. Fold in cream. Fold in drained raspberries and spoon into pie shell. Garnish with shredded coconut in a circle. Chill several hours or until set.

CHOCOLATE CHERRY PIE

1 can pitted dark cherries, drained
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 cups milk
1 cup sugar
⅛ tsp. salt
3 squares bitter chocolate broken into bits
2 eggs, separated
1 tsp. vanilla
1 baked pie shell

Mix gelatin, half cup sugar, chocolate pieces and salt thoroughly in top of double boiler. Beat the egg yolks and milk together. Add to gelatin. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until gelatin is dissolved, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla. Chill until mixture mounds slightly. Beat egg whites until stiff. Beat in remaining sugar. Fold in gelatin mixture. Arrange drained cherries evenly in pie shell, pour gelatin mixture over them and chill a couple of hours. Garnish with whipped cream. Serves 4-6.

SESAME-NUTMEG LOGS

½ cup sesame seed, browned
3 cups sifted flour
1 tsp. nutmeg
1 cup butter
¾ cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
2 tsp. vanilla
2 tsp. rum flavoring

Frosting

3 tblsp. butter
½ tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. rum flavoring
½ cup sifted confectioners' sugar
2 cups additional confectioners' sugar
2-3 tblsps. undiluted evaporated milk

Brown the sesame seed and put aside to cool. Sift the 3 cups flour and nutmeg. Cream the butter and gradually add ¾ cup sugar, creaming well. Blend in the unbeaten egg, cooled sesame seed, vanilla and rum flavoring. Gradually add the dry ingredients. Mix thoroughly. Shape pieces of dough on lightly floured surface into long rolls, half inch in diameter. Cut in 3 inch lengths; place on ungreased baking sheets. Bake in 350 degree oven 12-15 minutes until light golden brown. Cool. Spread frosting on tops and sides of cookies. Mark frosting with tines of fork to resemble bark. Sprinkle lightly with nutmeg.

Frosting: Cream 3 tablespoons butter with half teaspoon vanilla and 1 teaspoon rum flavoring. Blend in half cup sifted confectioners' sugar, beating well. Add 2 additional cups of confectioners' sugar alternately with 2 to 3 tablespoons undiluted evaporated milk or cream beating well after each addition until of spreading consistency.

CHERRY COCONUT BARS

2 cups flour
1 cup butter
6 tblsp. powdered sugar
4 eggs slightly beaten
2 cups granulated sugar
½ cup flour
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
2 tsp. vanilla
1½ cups chopped nuts
1 cup angel flake coconut
1 cup of maraschino cherries cut in fourths

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Measure flour by dipping method, then with hands mix flour, butter and powdered sugar until smooth. Spread thin with fingers in an ungreased 9x13 pan and bake 25 minutes.

Beat the 4 eggs slightly and stir the remaining ingredients into the eggs. Spread over the top of the baked pastry. Bake about 30 minutes. Cool and cut into bars.

FRUIT AND NUT BARS

Crust

½ cup wheat germ
½ cup sifted flour
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ cup melted butter or margarine

Fillings

2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 tblsp. flour
¼ tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
1 can (3½ oz.) flaked coconut
1 cup sifted confectioners sugar
½ cup chopped pecans
1 tsp. grated orange rind
1 tblsp. orange juice

To make crust, combine wheat germ, flour, brown sugar and butter and mix well. Press in even layers over bottom of greased 8" square pan. Bake in 350 degree oven 10 minutes.

Make filling by beating eggs and vanilla then adding brown sugar, flour, baking powder and salt; beat well. Fold in coconut and pecans. Spread over partially baked crust. Return to oven and continue baking until done, about 25 minutes. Make frosting by combining confectioners' sugar, orange rind and juice; blend until smooth. Spread over warm cookies. Cool and cut into bars about 1x4. Makes 16 bars.

DEEP-DISH PIE

1 lb. can pitted sour red cherries
½ cup cherry syrup
1 12 oz. pkg. frozen blueberries, thawed
3 tblsp. lemon juice
¼ cup quick cooking tapioca
¾ cup granulated sugar
¼ tsp. salt
Package piecrust for 1 crust pie
¼ cup tapioca, quick cooking

Drain cherries, reserving half cup syrup. In a 1½-2 quart baking dish, combine cherries, cherry syrup, blueberries, lemon juice, tapioca, sugar and salt. Let stand 15 minutes. Start heating oven to 425 degrees. Roll out pastry to fit over top of baking dish; lay over cherry mixture, sealing well to prevent juice from bubbling out; make a few slits in crust. Place foil drip catcher underneath. Bake pie 50 minutes (till crust is golden) and filling is bubbly; serve warm. Serves 8.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE EVENING NEWS AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

Englishman On the Range

New York Times Service

It's Labor Day weekend.

You're getting the kids ready for school and in another month you'll be raking the leaves. But you also better get out your goggles because you'll be glued to your TV set. The new season is ready to begin.

There'll be flying nuns, a disabled detective, a cowboy in Africa and some meddling mothers-in-law. There'll even be an Englishman on the range.

JOHN MILLS doesn't look like a cowboy. He doesn't act like a cowboy. And he certainly doesn't sound like a cowboy. But there he is—in 1876—roaming the American frontier.

The British actor has starred in more than 50 movies. Now he's finally fulfilling a lifelong ambition—starring in an American TV Western.

"I've always had a strange longing to do a Western," the articulate Englishman said the other day during a break in shooting the 10th episode of CBS's new horse opera, "Dundee and the Culhane."

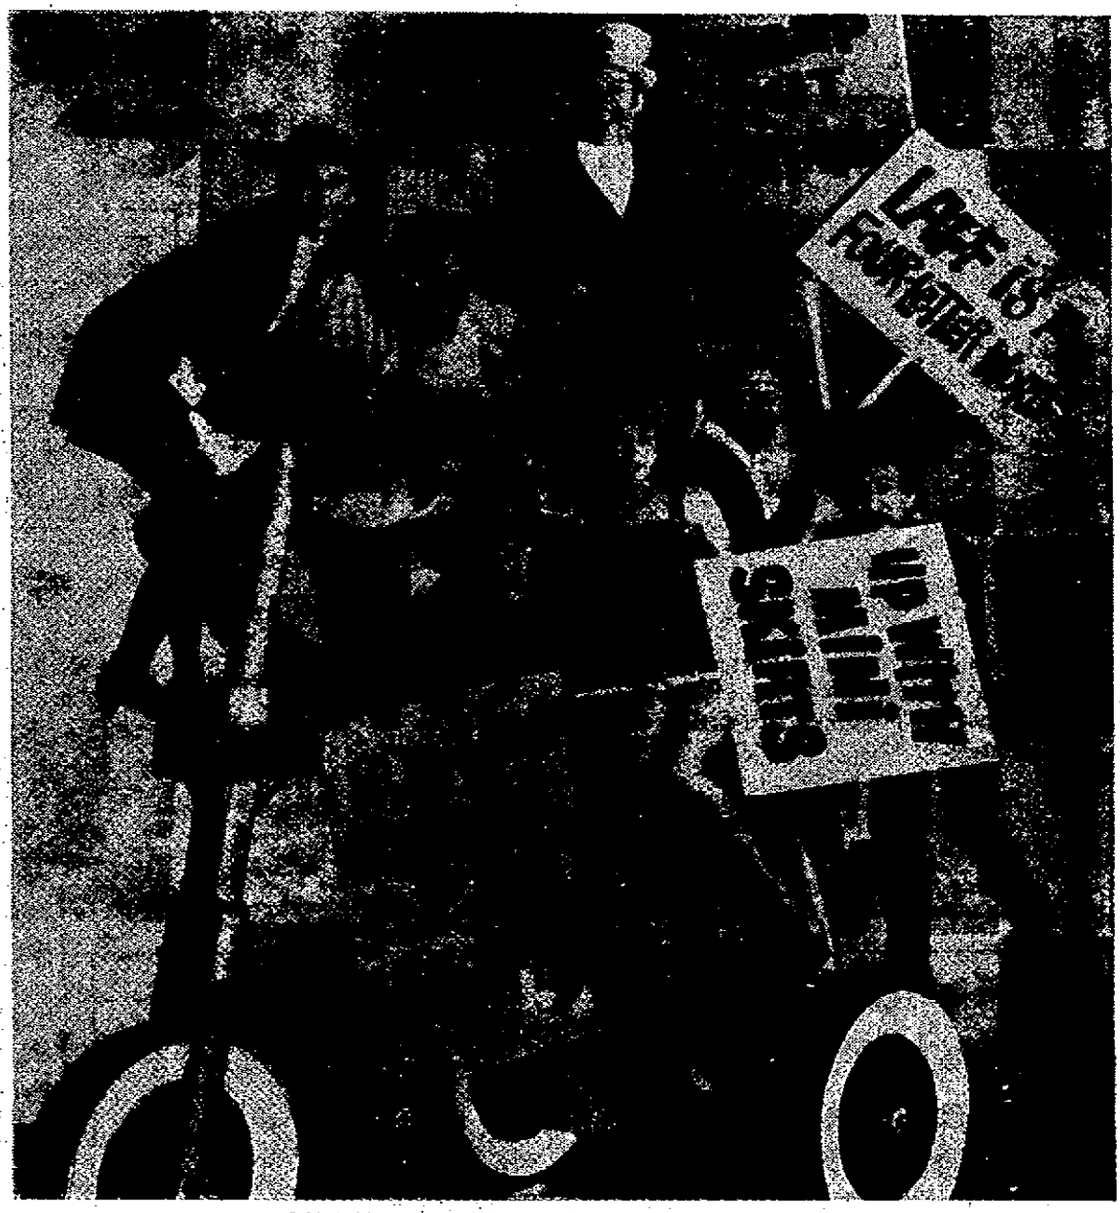

The first episode will be shown on Wednesday night (see Special, Page 10).

In the new series Mills portrays Dundee, a lawyer quick with words, who travels the West with The Culhane (Sean Garrison), a young fellow attorney who is adept at using gun and fist. The law partners seldom see their San Francisco office. They spend most of their time moving around the frontier in a wagon driven by The Culhane. And they get into one scrape after another.

WHILE NEWS shows make debuts this week and others return for the new season, one old-timer has reached the end of the line.

"What's My Line?" completes a 17-year run on CBS tonight. Producer Franklin Heller says there will be some "unusual" mystery guests and other "surprises" on the windup program.

Host John Charles Daly, the only surviving member of the first "What's My Line?" show, on Feb. 2, 1950, will be going on to a new line, as director of the Voice of America.

Good Company Squabble

By ROBERT E. DALLOS
New York Times Service

John Aaron, producer of the new TV program starring F. Lee Bailey, was discharged after a series of disagreements with the program's executive producer, David Susskind, according to Daniel Melnick, Susskind's partner.

Aaron said that he and Susskind were "tuned to different wave lengths."

THE NEW program, titled "Good Company," is scheduled for its premiere Thursday (see Specials, Page 12).

Aaron said Susskind wanted to ask some of the guests on programs controversial and embarrassing questions. He said Susskind pressed Sen. Everett Dirksen to discuss White House affairs to which he was privy, but the Illinois Republican refused. Aaron also said Susskind wanted to ask Hugh Hefner, the publisher of Playboy Magazine, if he would "allow his kids to sleep in a Playboy pad or read Playboy Magazine."

HE SAID Susskind turned thumbs down on an interview with Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of United States Forces in Vietnam, because he "did not want to build up a potential Republican presidential candidate."

He added that Susskind "tried to dump" Bailey in the early stages of the program.

Susskind could not be reached for comment.

SPECIAL

TEEN-AGE DRUGS: A Crisis (13), 7:30 p.m., in color —The ramifications of the growing use of drugs by our young people is studied in a 2-hour report by Bill Johns, whose "Child Molesters" won an Emmy award last year. Included is the capture of a drug pusher, interviews with young addicts and with police specialists, and a look at the impact of the new drugs on our society. (See also "LSD: Insight or Insanity?" at 6:30 p.m., in color, ch. 7.)

OUR PLACE (2), 9 p.m., in color — Guest Arthur Godfrey sings solo, then separately joins both the Doodletown girls and the Doodletown boys. Series winds up its summer run as Burns and Schreiber team for sketches about a political candidate, and a man who teaches a friend the art of panhandling. The Smothers Brothers return next week for their second season premiere.

SPORTS TODAY

PRO FOOTBALL, 11 a.m. (2), in color, has Gil Stratton and Don Paul with tapes of Friday's Coliseum clash between the Rams and the Kansas City Chiefs. (Next week, a Browns-Vikings, Rams-49ers double header.)

AFL FOOTBALL (season premiere), 1:30 p.m. (4), in color, has Curt Gowdy and Paul Christman mikeside at Bears Stadium where the Denver Broncos take on the Boston Patriots. Pat Hernon's "Pro Football Scoreboard" and Arnold Palmer's golf tips follow game's conclusion.

NPSL SOCCER, 2 p.m. (2), by color tape, begins a 2-game, total-goals championship playoff between the Oakland Clippers and Baltimore Bays, with Jack Whitaker and Danny Blanchflower in Baltimore. (Second game airs Saturday.)

CARLING World Golf Championship, 4:30 (2), by color tape, has Jack Drees at Toronto for the last five holes in the third round at the Board of Trade Country Club, all holes par-4s, with Bruce Devlin defending champion in the 4th annual $200,000 classic. (Final round airs Monday at 4:30)

SPECIAL

CORONET BLUE (2), 10 p.m. (C)—In a bit of typecasting, Murray the K plays a disc jockey, with Peter Duchin as a pianist, and Dick Clark as a music publisher. All get involved when the familiar lyrics of a composer's posthumously published tune convince Alden he's found a link with his past. As dusty segments are a legacy from a series planned three years ago, there obviously is no solution in this final outing, but star Frank Converse returns tomorrow with the identity of N.Y.P.D. detective Johnny Corso in ABC's new 9:30 p.m. series.

CROP CRISIS (4), 10:30 p.m. (Color) — The disastrous 1967 losses of California farmers, plowed under by problems of nature, labor and finances, are examined by Jim Bennett during a KNBC news special report. Production has dipped in asparagus, corn, tomatoes and lettuce, and heavy spring rains delayed planting so that northern schools will open before the harvest is ready.

SPORTS TODAY

BASEBALL, 4 p.m. (4), in color, has Curt Gowdy, Sandy Koufax and Pee Wee Reese at Metropolitan Stadium where the Minnesota Twins host the Indians.

CARLING World Golf Championship, 4:30 p.m. (2), in color, winds up the $200,000 tournament with the last five holes in the final round from Toronto's Board of Trade Country Club. (Sudden-death playoff, if needed, follows immediately at 14th hole.)

Emperor's New Clothes

TAILERS Stitch (Alan Kass) and Sew (Don Potter, right) fashion an invisible wardrobe for Emperor Will B. Able.

"The Emperor's New Clothes," the classic Hans Christian Andersen story of the emperor whose vanity leads him to purchase an invisible wardrobe, will be presented in an original musical adaptation as a color Special at 8 p.m. Monday, on Ch. 2.

The production will mark the third appearance on the network of the Prince Street Players, Ltd., a New York City repertory company specializing in children's theater.

Featured in the cast will be Will B. Able as the Emperor, Marcie Stringer as his befuddled wife, Fred Grades as Chester the Jester and Bob Dagny as the emperor's evil aide, Sinister the Prime Minister. Also in the cast are Vicki Morales as a girl who can speak only the truth and Don Potter and Alan Kass as Stitch and Sew, the "tailors" who claim a gift for spinning cloth which "only the pure in heart can see."

DAKTARI (2), 7:30 p.m. (C) — 3rd season premiere. Rams fullback Dick Bass plays an Air Force sergeant, as Judy finds an astro-chimp in the jungle with amnesia, and takes her helmet to masquerade as the space star.

LI'L ABNER (4), 7:30 p.m. (C) — "Sneak Preview" special. A 1966 pilot film based on Al Capp's comic strip, with Sammy Jackson in the title, role, Jeannine Riley as Daisy Mae and Judy Canova as Mammy Yokum. Robert Reed guests as Henry Cabbage Cod, on government monkey business in Dogpatch.

GARRISON'S GORILLAS (7), 7:30 p.m. (C) — Premiere. Ron Harper and Cesare Danova star in a

HARPER DANOVA

World War II series of a group of ex-convicts who use their special skills behind enemy lines to earn their freedom. Telly Savalas and Gilbert Roland are opening guests, as team sets out to exchange coded plates for those being used to print bogus U.S. $20 bills.

SHERIFF WHO?? (4), 8 p.m. (C) — "Sneak Preview special. Dick Shawn, John Astin, Jerry Belson, Jeannine Riley (see also "Li'l Abner") and Irene Tetrow star in this pilot Western spoof set in Blood, Texas, where the turnover in sheriffs (60 in one year) has created a problem of knowing who's currently on duty. Jerry Lewis, whose new show gets this hour next week, plays a cameo role.

RED SKELTON (2), 8:30 p.m. (C) — 15th season premiere. Eve Arden and Robert Stack guest in a George Appleby sketch, as an escaped convict holds the arguing Applebys hostage in a Mexican hideaway. Johnny Rivers is musical guest, with Red a tourist in Hawaii in the silent spot, and the introduction of a new feature, the one-minute drama.

THE INVADERS (7), 8:30 p.m. (C) — 2nd season premiere. A doctor dies after reporting a woman with no pulse or heart beat — and Vincent finds that her husband heads the computer section of the NORAD defense Installation. Antionette Bower and Jason Evers are initial guests.

GOOD MORNING World (2), 9:30 p.m. (C) — Premiere. Joby Baker stars with Ronnie Schell, Julie Parrish and Billy De Wolfe in the comic adventures of a young disc jockey and his problems with his partner, his wife, his job and the world. Marty Ingels and Charlie Brill guest on opener as Lewis (Baker) returns a defective sweater to a store that buys time on his radio show.

N.Y.P.D. (7), 9:30 p.m. (C) — Premiere. Despite the early demise of its "Hawk" series, ABC tries again with a New York-filmed police series, this one starring Jack Warden, Frank Converse and Robert Hooks. James Broderick is initial guest, as investigation of an apparent suicide leads to a blackmail ring specializing in extortion from homosexuals.

NAME OF THE GAME (2), 10 p.m. (C) — In a special edition of the weekend series, Gil Stratton looks at the Rams from the coaches' command post, the bench, and at the mikeside activities of the Dodgers' Vin Scully, showing what he does in addition to calling the game.

HOLLYWOOD PALACE (7), 10 p.m. (C) — 5th season premiere, new time. Bing Crosby, who has hosted every season-opener, returns for his 19th "Palace" outing hosting Jimmy Durante, Milton Berle, Joey Heatherton, Diahann Carroll, The Association and the network debut of Ravi Shankar, foremost exponent of the Indian sitar. Bing, Miltie and the Schnoz re-create an old Clayton, Jackson and Durante sketch.

GEN. THIEU and Uncle Sam — Harry Reasoner follows the 11 South Vietnamese presidential candidates as they prepared for last Sunday's elections during a "Vietnam Perspective" report, analyzing the elections, and talking with Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, Truong Dinh Dzu and U.S. Amb. Ellsworth Bunker. (Next week, a full hour on "The New Left.")

PAN AND FAN MAIL

SEVERAL MONTHS ago, the Johnny Carson Show had two brothers, Chris and Peter Allen. I was so taken by them I went out to buy several of their records. I couldn't find any. Can you help me find out when they plan to appear on TV again? And where can I buy their records.

Lana Schaible
Long Beach

(We have no information about future appearances of the Allens. Their recordings are listed under the ABC-Paramount label and a music store record department should be able to order them for you if not in stock).

COULD YOU give me some information on "Time Tunnel" star James Darren? I would also like to know if he will be appearing in any movies or television shows in the future. A friend told me that he has a glass eye; is this true? Where can I get an autographed photograph?

J. Riffel
Anaheim

(Darren is not doing anything at present, except making some guest appearances — most recently, Joey Bishop show. According to a girl in the office of his agency, Darren does not have a glass eye, "he has two beautiful blue eyes." You can write to his manager, Pierre Cossette, 120 El Camino Dr., Beverly Hills, and ask for the autographed picture).

YOU HAVE one of the most interesting and informative television papers in Southern California.

However, I wish the fans of "Star Trek" would declare a moratorium on letter-writing for a few weeks . . .

Virginia Denker
Lakewood

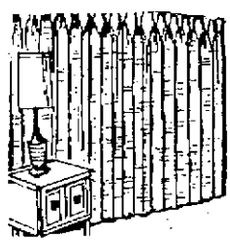

DO TELL ME, what do they do with the films of series that are taken off after one season (such as T.H.E. Cat)? Also what happens to Robert Loggia (T.H.E. Cat) and where can I write to him?

Theresa Helena Edwards Cat
Long Beach

(They usually wind up as reruns on independent stations. Ch. 4 (NBC) which has been running the series, at this point, doesn't know where it will show up next. Loggia may be reached through his agent, Ashly Famous, 9255 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. 90068).

SPECIAL

LOST IN SPACE (2), 7:30 p.m. (C) — 3rd season premiere. A robot warden of a strange craft tries to "zap" the Robinson party with his freezing-gun and add them to his collection of convicts frozen in suspended animation. Marcel Hillaire is initial guest.

CUSTER (7), 7:30 p.m. (C) — Premiere. Despite protests from Indians and the ministry alike, George Armstrong Custer comes to life again as the troopers of the 7th Cavalry patrol against the Kiowas in Kansas. Guests Rudolfo Acosta and Mary Ann Mobley join regulars Wayne Maunder, Slim Pickens and Peter Palmer in opener, as Lt. Col. Custer arrives at Ft. Hays just as war chiefs Crazy Horse and Satanta have joined forces for pillage.

BEVERLY HILLBILLIES (2), 8:30 p.m. (C) — 6th season premiere. Jed inherits an English castle and Drysdale, who wants the excuse to go with them, persuades the reluctant Clampetts to go to Britain to occupy their holdings. Paul Lynde guests as a passport clerk.

SECOND 100 YEARS (7), 8:30 p.m. (C) — Premiere. Monte Markham stars as a lusty sourdough frozen for 67 years in an Alaskan glacier. Then he thaws to meet his aging son (Arthur O'Connell), a stuffy look-alike grandson (Markham) and the 20th century head-on. Susan Browning plays a social worker in opener.

GARRISON MILLS

GREEN ACRES (2), 9 p.m. (C) — 3rd season premiere. After asking neighbors' opinions, a select committee nominates Oliver to be the new state senator from Hooterville. J. Pat O'Malley and Guy Raymond are guests.

HE AND SHE (2), 9:30 p.m. (C) — Premiere. Real-life husband-and-wife Richard Benjamin and Paula Prentiss star as a practical-minded cartoonist and his wife, with Jack Cassidy the TVersion of his newspaper comic strip, "Jetman."

DUNDEE & The Culhane (2), 10 p.m. (C) — Premiere. British actor John Mills stars with Sean Garrison in a kind of Perry Mason-on-horseback, as two lawyers of the west — one quick with words and the other equally quick with guns. John Drew Barrymore, Warren Oates and Pippa Scott guest on opener, as outlaws dam off a Quaker settlement's water supply.

WAYNE MAUNDER brings Custer back to life in the new series "Custer" premiering at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Ch. 7.

IRENE RYAN and Buddy Ebsen pose in clothes they think they'll have to wear in England when they open the new "Beverly Hillbillies" season at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Ch. 2.

He & She

Not in Usual Video Pattern

By JACK GAVER
United Press International

Before Paula Prentiss and Dick Benjamin left New York to start work on their new television series in Hollywood, they swore that their portrayal of man and wife, which they are, won't be in the usual video domestic pattern.

"I will not play a loveable, incompetent boob, and Paula will not be the usual all-knowing wife," said Benjamin while they were closing up their apartment for the trek westward.

"We won't have any cute, mischievous kids, or even a cuddly dog, and not one episode will deal with how I forgot our anniversary."

This happy prospect is connected with a half hour series called "He & She," which will have its premiere on Ch. 2 (at 9:30 p.m. Wednesdays).

"MOST television show marriages are so idyllic that they're fantasy," chimed in Miss Prentiss, who has been most identified with movies, while Benjamin's work has been on the stage.

"You know the sort of show I mean. The wife greets the husband at breakfast in a gorgeous dressing gown, her hair perfectly coifed, and sings out, 'Good morning, Sweetheart.'"

"People just don't behave that way," added Benjamin. "Most couples grumble and growl and stagger around at breakfast. They may get a little more human after that first cup of coffee, but there's no guarantee of this."

"He & She," by the way, concerns a cartoonist and his wife. His newspaper strip has developed into a popular video series, "Jetman." Stage star Jack Cassidy is another regular cast member in the role of the egotistical actor who plays Jetman on the air.

MISS PRENTISS and her husband, who has an impish sort of attractiveness, said that the program will not overlook the matter of physical appeal in the case of the married pair.

"Marriage on television is usually so antiseptic," Miss Prentiss said. "You get the impression that if the husband reached over and kissed his wife—I mean, really kissed her—she'd scream for help.

"We hope to come off the way we are—two persons who sometimes squabble but who find each other outrageously attractive and have a legal right to make this apparent."

The Benjamins were married five years ago when he was a member of New York's Shakespeare - in - The - Park troupe, at $15 a week, and she was an MGM starlet. Benjamin quickly got into a better bracket with good jobs in "Barefoot in The Park" and, just recently, "The Star Spangled Girl," so Miss Prentiss left MGM and set up housekeeping in New York.

"I REALLY didn't enjoy being a so-called movie star, not if it meant being away from Dick," she said. "I was fully reconciled to no acting again. The Leonard Stern, the fellow who created the 'Get Smart' show, asked us about doing this series. We wanted to know what we would play, and he replied, "yourselves.'"

"And that's the way it has turned out," Benjamin interposed. "For instance, both on and off the show, Paula trusts everyone. When we first started living in New York, she woke me up one 2 a.m. and suggested a walk in Central Park. She couldn't believe that there might be muggers who would attack persons as nice as us."

"Dick's a typical New Yorker," Miss Prentiss said. "He's sophisticated and distrustful and a little cheap. But he's not nearly as tough as he pretends to be, and, like most New Yorkers, he can laugh at himself. Which is precisely the sort of character he will be in the series."

ONE NETWORK executive did try to alter the Benjamins' viewpoint by suggesting they at least have a dog on the show because "all Americans love dogs." Benjamin replied he was one who didn't.

"In fact," he added, "I'm very apathetic about dogs, especially in city apartments. I told this man that if they put a dog in the cast, I'd kick the animal, which would send the rating down 15 points overnight."

SPECIAL

CIMARRON STRIP (2), 7:30 p.m. (C) — Premiere. It's CBS' answer to "The Virginian," a 90-minute western with film star Stuart Whitman as a marshal with a vast borderland to patrol. John Saxon and Henry Silva are initial guests as a greedy cowboy, who saw a bandit leader kill his own man to silence him, covets the $10,000 price on the killer's head.

DAMN YANKEES (4), 7:30 p.m. (C)—Repeat adaptation of the Broadway musical about a baseball fan who sells his soul to the devil for the privilege of helping the Senators win the pennant from the Yankees. Jerry Lanning stars with Phil Silvers, Lee Remick, Jim Backus, Ray Middleton and Fran Allison, in the 2-hour comedy.

FLYING NUN (7), 7:30 p.m. (C) — Premiere. Sally Field plays a young nun at a convent in Puerto Rico who is so light that when high breezes blow she becomes airborne. Opener is an hour-long program (series will be a half-hour at 8 p.m.) as the novice arrives in San Juan only to be swept into the sea and fished from the water by a playboy (Carlos Ramirez) from his yacht.

THOMAS MERMAN

"CIMARRON STRIP", new 90-minute Western at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Ch. 2, features Randy Boone, Stuart Whitman, Jill Townsend, and Percy Herbert (left to right).

BEWITCHED (7), 8:30 p.m. (C) — 4th season premiere. Samantha achieves a life-long dream when she's asked to be Queen of the Witches, but she's reluctant to accept because of promises to her mortal husband. Ruth McDevill guests as the retiring queen.

THAT GIRL, (7), 9 p.m. (C) — 2nd season premiere. Ann (Marlo Thomas) is tongue-tied to find herself on-stage with the great Ethel Merman, who chooses her for a walk-on part in a Lincoln Center revival of "Gypsy." Then Don invites the star to dinner at Ann's apartment.

GOOD COMPANY (7), 10 p.m. (C) — Premiere. Attorney F. Lee Bailey, more familiar with witness stand interviews, takes a page from the book of the late Edward R. Murrow (plus Person to Person's co-producer John Aaron) to take viewers to the Beverly Hills home of Tony Curtis and his wife, Christine Kaufmann, to see how Bernie Schwartz of New York's lower east side has come up in the world. (Next week, the Virginia farm of Ev and Loucila Dirksen.)

COLLEGE FOOTBALL: 1967 (7), 10:30 p.m. (C) — Chris Schenkel and Bud Wilkinson preview the NCAA season (telecasts start Sept. 16), predicting the outcome of the various conferences and discussing the new punt rule. ("The Lid's Off — with Linkletter" debuts next week in this weekly slot.)

SPECIAL

WEEKEND (4), 6:30 p.m. (C) — "Sneak preview" special. Tim Matthieson, Rick Kelman and Lee Goodman star with Lori Martin and Tony Dow in a comedy about the after-school antics of teen-agers and about their befuddled parents.

CARTOONS (2, 4, 7), in color. A brand new lineup this morning for the kiddies, so check the log.

MISS AMERICA Pageant (4), 7 p.m. (C) — Bert Parks and Bess Myerson are hosts at Atlantic City as 50 contestants compete for the title worth approximately $100,000, with Jane Anne Jayroe of Oklahoma on hand to crown her successor from among the ten simefinalists. Two-hour colorcast is live, thereby shifting "Get Smart" to 10:30 p.m.

ANGELA DORIAN and Bob Crane prepare to sabotage a tunnel in "Hogan's Heroes" returning to CBS at 9 p.m. Saturday, Ch. 2.

MY THREE SONS (2), 8:30 p.m. (C) — 8th season premiere, new ime. Tina Cole, of the King Cousins (she's Yvonne's daughter), debuts on series as girl destined later to be Robbie's bride, as Steve moves his family to southern California where at first the Douglasses find the residents as chilly as the weather is warm.

HOGAN'S HEROES (2), 9 p.m. (C) — 3rd season premiere, new time. Bernard Fox guests as a scatterbrained, flower-loving British colonel assigned to help (!) Hogan sabotage a strategic highway tunnel in Germany.

ROWAN & MARTIN's Laugh-In (4), 9 p.m. (C) — Pamela Austin, Ken Berry, Judy Carne and Barbara Feldon join Dan and Dick in taking a humorous look at the contemporary American scene. In sketches and blackouts dealing with newscasts of 1987, birdwatching and ping pong, featured character comedians include Ruth Buzzi, Henry Gibson, Larry Hovis, Arte Johnson, Monty Landis and Jo Anne Worley. George Schlatter produced, with musical direction by Paul Weston.

PETTICOAT JUNCTION (2), 9:30 p.m. (C) — 5th season premiere, new time. Betty Jo's back fro mher trip to Europe, a graduation present, extremely changed — and followed by three obnoxious young "gentlemen" she met in New York on her return.

JACKIE GLEASON (2), 10 p.m. (C) — 6th season premiere. The Great One's back with variet y hours and musical adaptations of "The Honeymooners," in his fourth season from Miami Beach. But for his opener only he'll shift away from the Miss American competition, in a time trade with "Gunsmoke." Next week Gleason returns to 7:30 p.m., with Dillon moving to Mondays, and "Mannix" debuting in this hour.

CAMPO 44 (4), 10 p.m. (C) — "Sneak preview" special. Phillip Abbott, Jim Dawson, Vito Scotti and Dino Fazio in a kind of Italian Stalag 15, with prisoners of war outwitting their camp commander and having a ball with the fun-loving Italian villages. Comedy was created by David Westheimer from his "Von Ryan's Express".

Radio Notes

ABC radio continues its series of programs on Africa with "Africa: The Quest for Progress" at 8:05 p.m., Wednesday, when economic and political problems, tribalism, and the continents's relationship to the world community are set for discussion.

The third program in the series, "Africa: The Big Picture," will be presented at 7:30 a.m. and repeated at 4:30 p.m., Sept. 10, on "Perspective from ABC News." Two newsmen James Fleming, executive producer of the four-hour TV Africa show (to air Sept. 10) and Blaine Littell, who served as coordinator and producer for the project will give their views of Africa, its leaders and outlook for the continent.

KEZY now is broadcasting on a 24 hour basis, Tuesday through Sunday, with the Red Benson Show from midnight to 6 a.m. — jazz, "middle of the road music" and requests . . . KMPC begins a "Forum" featured Sept. 10 at 10:15 p.m.—a half-hour discussion of issues of current community interest. First show, with Hugh Brundage as moderator, spotlights Dr. Jack P. Crowther, L. A. City Schools superintendent.

KRLA is dropping the music-and-news format of hourly five-minute reports and expanding its news coverage. Under the new format quarter hour news broadcasts will air at 3, 6, 9 and 12 o'clock on a 24 hour basis. Bulletin and major news development "breaks" will continue. The station has added disc jockey Jim Wood to its staff to fill the 9 p.m. to midnight slot.

CRITICS' CORNER

Excerpted Reviews of TV Critics

PROGRAM: "The Fugitive," aired Tuesday, Ch. 7.

It's all over, but really, couldn't the whole four years have been boiled down to the murder, the manhunt and the chase in a fairly decent one hour show?

Tele-Vues for Aug. 20, quoted Fugitive Producer Quinn Martin as stating that the one-armed man committed the murder, but the plot twistings in the final episode made us wonder if Martin really did know who did it? When it was irrevocably decided that One-Arm did it, we sighed with relief.

However, we confess that we sat still for the final episode — up to the point when the one-armed man started climbing up a tower. Don't they ever learn there's no other way down?

There was one nice touch. The final shot of David Janssen watching a police car drive up — unable to make up his mind about whether he's really free.

—George Eres, IPT

PROGRAM: "A House Divided," aired Monday, Ch. 28.

. . . Show presented a "typical" American family of father, mother, 18-year-old son and 16-year-old daughter and various ways the parents could and should handle their son's drinking and exposure to marijuana and their daughter's smiling and sexual relationships. . . .

Eddie Albert was moderator, did a good job injecting a layman's point of view . . .

What made program stand out was that experts, for the most part, did not blandly generalize. They stated their convictions firmly, sometimes almost vehemently . . .

Perhaps most curious aspect of the discussions was that experts appeared to disagree most violently while trying to solve problems relating to smoking and drinking, while they were in general accord in quite liberal attitudes toward marijuana and sex. Trend of their thinking would seem to indicate that indulging in sex and smoking marijuana, in themselves, are not organically harmful and are problems mainly because they clash with traditional way of thinking. . . .

—Beig, Variety

PROGRAM: "The Woody Woodbury Show," aired Monday-Friday, Ch. 11.

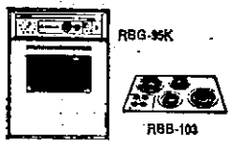

. . . Woody Woodbury, its host, is bland, like the program. He seems to be little more than a traffic cop and he had trouble directing the traffic on the opener; let it get out of hand to the degree that it seemed as if it was "The Bob Crane Show" much of the time. Crane was just a guest, but anyone tuning in after the opening credits wouldn't have known that. He really took over . . .

Stan Kenton was another guest, and again Woodbury's weakness at interviewing was evident.

They tossed in 22 blurbs, a goodly number, but somehow they didn't seem an annoyance on this show . . .

The Doodler's Dictionary

Of Self-Defining Words

By Bob Loeffelbein

What Your Name Means

By LA REINA RULE

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801 for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

MISS RULE: We would like brief data on PLUMMER.

—C.G., Long Beach

PLUMMER had two divergent occupational sources. The old French word "plumier" described a dresser and seller of colorful feathers for hat decoration as well as for talismans used on army warriors' helmets. This word, introduced to Britain in the 1100's, was soon taken as a surname. John Le Plumer was a 13th century descendant of the original feather merchant. The alternate Plummer origin was "Plombier," meaning "plumber."

MISS RULE: Please explain LA RIVIERE.

—M.L., Long Beach

LA RIVIERE, formerly the French surname De La Riviere, pertains in its inception to a family home on a "riverbank" or near a river. There are many De La Riviere armorial shields. A representative one from Champagne is blue, emblazoned with a gold chevron between three large golden rings.

MISS RULE: Please comment on MARBURY.

—E.D., Long Beach

MARBURY represents a remote ancestor who lived in the parish of Marbury, a place three miles from the village of Whitchurch, in Cheshire, England. Marbury developed from the 12th century phrase "Mar-burh," deciphered as "fortified stronghold by the pool." The Marbury armorial shield granted during the reign of King Edward III, 1327-1377, is silver. On it are three golden wheat sheaves engraved on a scalloped-edge blue cross stripe. American ancestors include Anne Marbury Hutchinson, born in 1600 at Alford, Lincolnshire, England, who with her husband emigrated to Massachusetts in 1634. They were members of a religious sect who were banished to Rhode Island in 1637.

MISS RULE: Please give

COVER

Journey up Lakewood Boulevard to the sprawling Douglas Aircraft Co. complex, look around and you'll see something that bolsters Long Beach's claim to the title of "International City." On the acres of "get ready" area used by Douglas to put the finishing touches on its DC8s and DC9s can be seen the often strange and usually colorful markings and insignia with which Douglas bedecks its new jets. Planes for 57 airlines, only about half of them American, are turned out by Douglas. Through the tall fences that surround the Douglas property you might see Oriental legends on the fuselage of Korean Air Lines jets, Arabic script on the tail assembly of Saudi Arabian aircraft or a bouncing kangaroo on the newest Trans-Australia Airlines planes. Turn to page five and read about these colorful big birds.

Outside House Painting Eliminated for 15 Years

LONG BEACH, CALIF. (CT)—Painting is a thing of the past. Find out about FLEXON Fiberglas Textured Coating that is factory guaranteed for a full 15 years.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the FLEXON story. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every Fiberglas FLEXON job is factory guaranteed for 15 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to FLEXON its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER THE YEARS

FLEXON is one of the oldest coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings since 1946. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 15 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

FLEXON is applied with heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. FLEXON fuses itself to the wall and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects. FLEXON may be applied over stucco, wood, brick, block or shingles.

CITY OF LONG BEACH

Cal-Tex Improvements, Inc., is a licensed City of Long Beach Building Contractor. Most of the work now being done by Cal-Tex is in the greater Long Beach and West Orange County Areas.

The Day All Hell Broke Loose

BEARDED YOUTHS defied authority and shouted they would not serve in a war that meant nothing to them. Mobs of young men clashed with police. The word "Draft" became a filthy term in the ghetto, another symbol of oppression. Ballads were sung denouncing the President of the United States, the war, poverty, prejudice—and, always, the hated Draft.

Southern California in 1967? A love-in at Griffith Park? No, the scene was New York City 104 years ago, in a summer of discontent much like our own.

The multitude of evils that is the heritage of the poor had become too heavy to bear. The sack would be hurled to the ground, a paving stone taken in its place. The Draft Riot of 1863 was about to begin. Before it would end, 4,000 persons would be killed, another 10,000 made candidates for the surgeon's knife. The toll in dead and wounded would surpass the casualty rate of the recently concluded Battle of Bull Run. And absolutely nothing would have been accomplished.

HISTORIANS disagree on what spark touched the emotional tinder box, but the main factors seem to have been those that have caused rioting and rebellion down to the present day. There was resentment of oppressive authority, blind hatred, abject poverty, hopelessness, racial intolerance as the poor took it out on the poorer—and there was the stifling heat and humidity of a New York summer.

To an eyewitness reporter, the New York of 1863 must have seemed to have an invisible wall high between it's two economic cultures. On the one side were the established forces of wealth and influence, driving a matched pair to Rector's for dinner and making the decisions of government. On the other side of that wall were the poor, hundreds of thousands of them, Irish and German immigrants for the most part. They huddled in dreary tenements or eked out a bare existence in squalid shanty towns. Then, as now, there was very little middle class in Manhattan to serve as a buffer. They had long since fled to the ocean breezes of Long Island or the rustic comfort of Westchester County.

The War Between the States meant nothing to the residents of the ghetto. The cheerleading militarism of Secretary of War Stanton was laughed at if heard at all. Their war was a different kind, a daily battle to keep fed and clothed and sheltered.

THE MAJORITY were followers of the Democratic Party, formed into a solid voting bloc by the shrewd ward heelers of Tammany Hall. Tammany was so anti-Lincoln its leaders seriously considered seceding New York City from the Union and aligning with the Confederacy. Also working among the ghetto residents were expert agitators from the South. One such was a U.S. marshal named Isaiah Rynders, former card sharp on a Mississippi riverboat and now secretly a captain in the Confederate Army's intelligence service.

But Rynders and other southern sympathizers didn't have to work very hard to foment violence. The U.S. government itself saw to that. On July 11, the first names were picked in the nation's first military draft. An undue amount came from the slums. No allowance was provided for family men. No allotment was given their wives and children.

The final indignity, though, was the government's decision to exempt from military service any man who could pay $300 cash into the depleted U.S. Treasury. A proxy, chosen from the slums, would be sent to war in his stead.

THAT DID IT. Some poetical Hibernian coined a battle cry that rang through the miserable streets:

"'Tis a rich man's war and a poor man's fight!"

Not that the Irish had suddenly renounced their heritage and become pacifists. Far from it. Throughout the North, the sons of Erin had volunteered at an amazing rate. No fewer than 38 Union regiments had the word "Irish" in their titles, such as the famed "Irish Brigade" and the "Fighting Irish" of the 69th Regiment.

Nor were the stolid German immigrants remiss in their duty. Regiments in which every man spoke Dutch fought side-by-side with green cockaded Irish troops in turning the Confederacy's high tide at Gettysburg.

But to be forced to serve, said Irishman and German alike, well, wasn't that why we left the old country? And to be forced to serve while the fancy boys uptown were buying out at $300 per cowardly head . . .!

AND SO THE stage was set and the players waited anxiously for a cue. It came about 6 a.m. on July 13. A policeman on the West Side ordered a crowd to disperse. The mob attacked him and beat him senseless. Other police arrived and shot into the crowd. Several men and women fell to the street. Hundreds rushed out of their tenements to join the fray. Soon the police, those still able to run, were fleeing toward their station house and the mob had several shiny new revolvers.

Soon there were riotous mobs in all the poorer sections of the city. On the Bowery, veteran street fighters, members of the Plug Uglies, the Dead Rabbits and other Bowery gangs, were joined by workmen and by women waving broomsticks and carving knives. In Hell's Kitchen on the West Side, the tenements spewed forth their thousands.

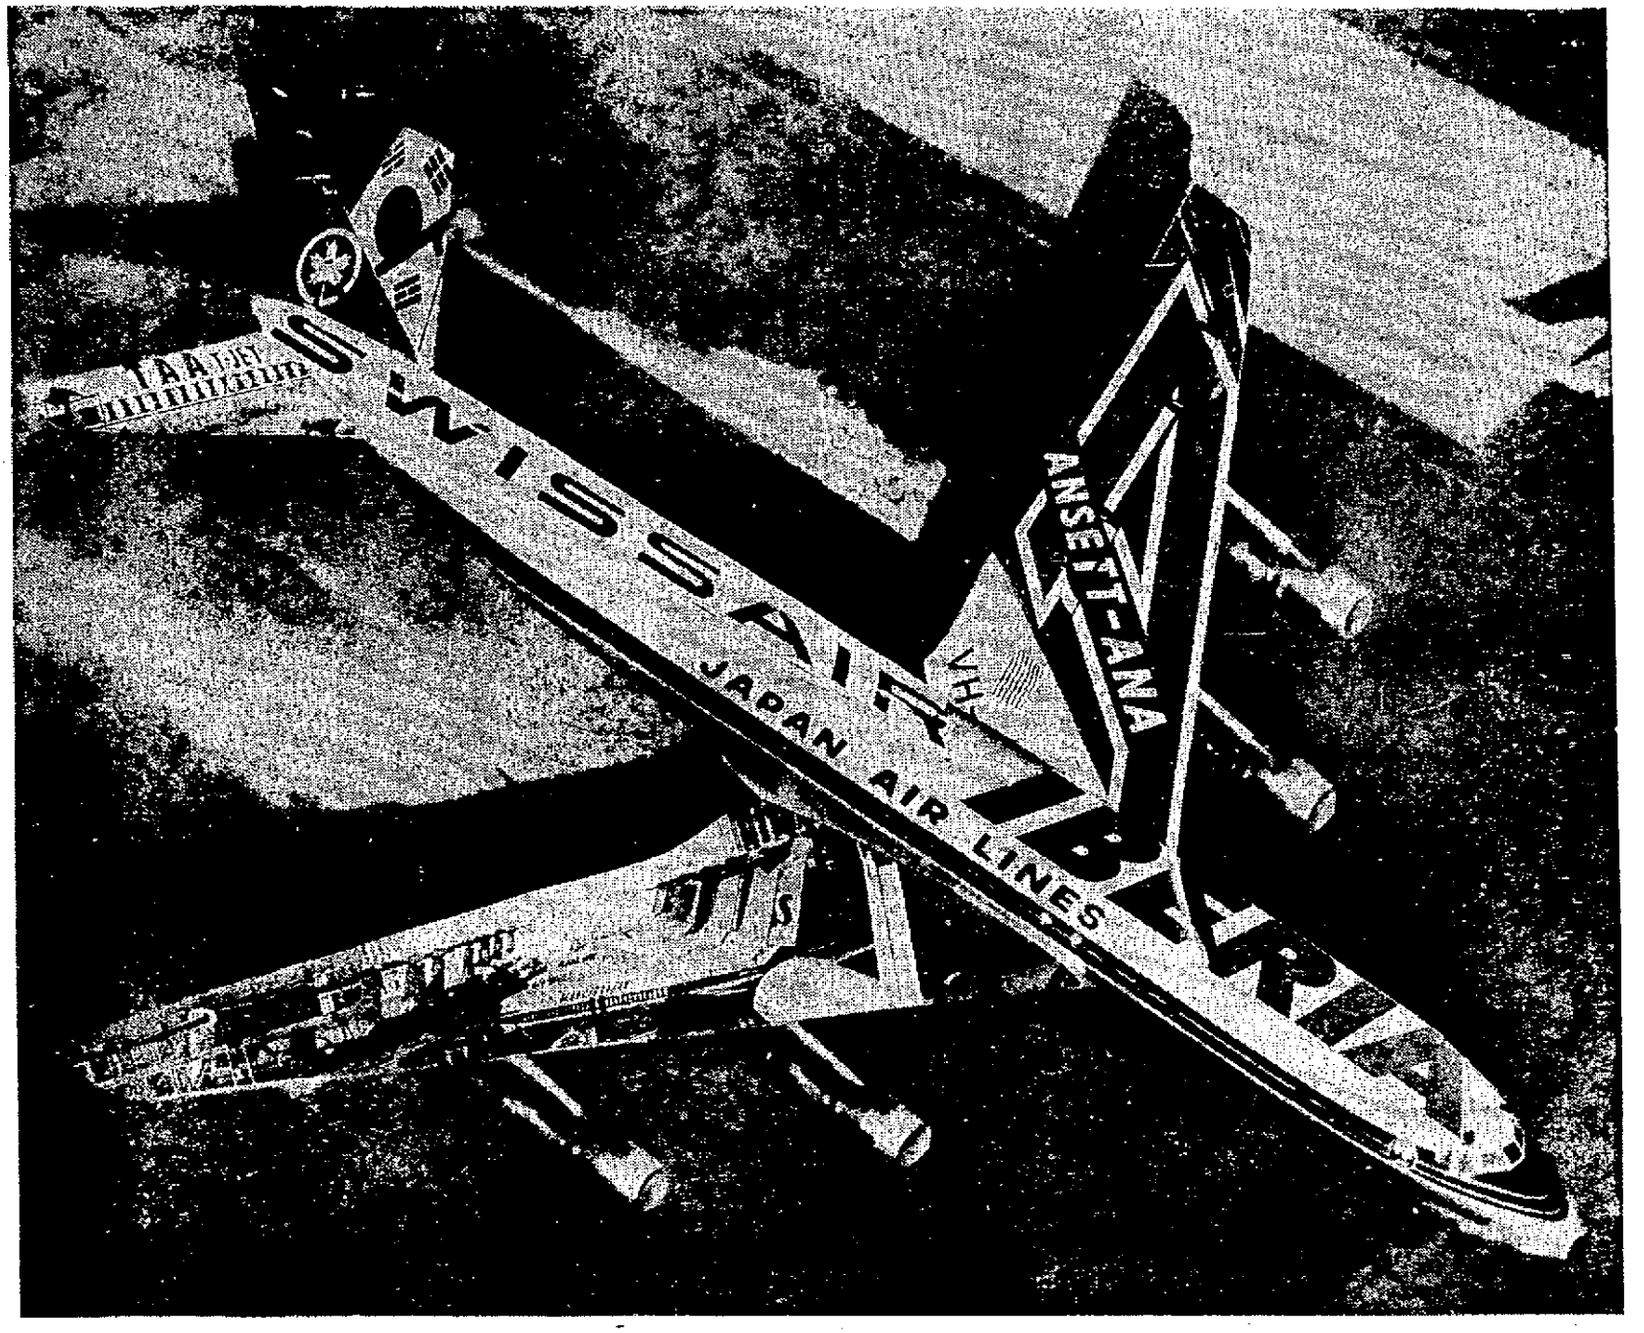

By some instinct, or perhaps just common hatred, they all converged on Central Park far uptown and poured into Fifth and Sixth Avenues, where railroad barons peered out fearfully from behind the windows of their clubs. More than 50,000 rioters already were loose on the streets, and their number was multiplying rapidly. A volunteer fire company named "The Black Joke" for the color of its uniforms was called out and ordered to turn hoses on the mob. Instead, the firemen joined the rioters and helped set several buildings afire.

THE HUMAN tidal wave turned east and massed in front of the federal draft office. The volunteer firemen again demonstrated the worth of their training by setting the building afire. The rioters grabbed the draft officials fleeing the building and clubbed them.

A strong police detachment came marching up Fifth Avenue, armed with rifles. The mob tore into them with clubs and pikes and knives. The police dropped their weapons and fled, leaving their superintendent dead in the street.

The mayor asked for military assistance, but only a few federal troops were still near the city. He then ordered all police units to retreat south and protect

Tails With a Foreign Twist

By George Laine

IF THERE IS ANY doubt in anyone's mind about Long Beach's claim to the title of "The International City," the skeptics might journey up Lakewood Boulevard to the sprawling Douglas Aircraft Co. complex for a convincer.

There—on the acres of "get ready" area utilized by Douglas to put the finishing touches on its DC8s and DC9s—the nonbelievers can study the often strange but usually colorful markings and insignia with which Douglas bedecks its new jets. Planes for 57 different airlines (only about half of them American) can be seen through the tall fences which surround the Douglas property.

Oriental legends appear on the fuselage of Korean Air Lines jets, Arabic script lends an exotic flair to the four-story-high tail assembly of Saudi Arabian aircraft, and a kangaroo bounces along on the fuselage of the newest Trans-Australia Airlines planes.

None of these three airlines (nor about 35 of the others which buy from Douglas) will ever be seen in commercial activity at any California airport; most of them will never touch down in the United States again once they've headed for their purchasers in Venezuela, Germany, New Zealand, Finland and other foreign nations.

"They're colorful, all right," acknowledged J. L. Jones, vice president for operations for Douglas in Long Beach. "They'd better be. Most of the companies involved have spent a lot of time and money in devising some distinctive markings for their airline. They want something that will stand out and be readily identifiable as that company's own.

"We feel they succeed. You'd never mistake Alitalia's green, white and red striped tail for, say, Japan Air Lines' rising sun."

Deciding on the insignia and the colors may be a trying task for the respective airlines but no brain trust in Mexico City, Jakarta or Rio de Janeiro ever fretted more than the Douglas paint specialists assigned to carry out the wishes of the purchasers. Painting 9,000 square feet of jet aircraft isn't exactly the kind of a job you'd assign to a person who had just finished his first "paint-by-numbers" effort and was looking for new fields to conquer.

Before the big jets even see a paint brush they get two solvent washes, a bath in mild acid and another solvent wash.

Then the entire upper half of the plane gets a gleaming white coat fol-

I. Current Trends in Live Theater

EDWARD ALBEE'S NOTED PLAY "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" — now an even more noted film-since it has given Liz Taylor her second Oscar and an opportunity to snub the awards committee was, perhaps, the first in what might prove to be a long line of plays built precariously on human suffering.

This movement is called "The Theater of Cruelty."

Two works which have helped to further the popularity of this unconventional dramatic form on stage and film are "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mom's Hung You in the Closet, and I'm Feeling So Sad," and "The Persecution and Assassination of Jean Paul Marat as Performed by the Inmates of the Asylum of Charenton Under the Direction of the Marquis De Sade."

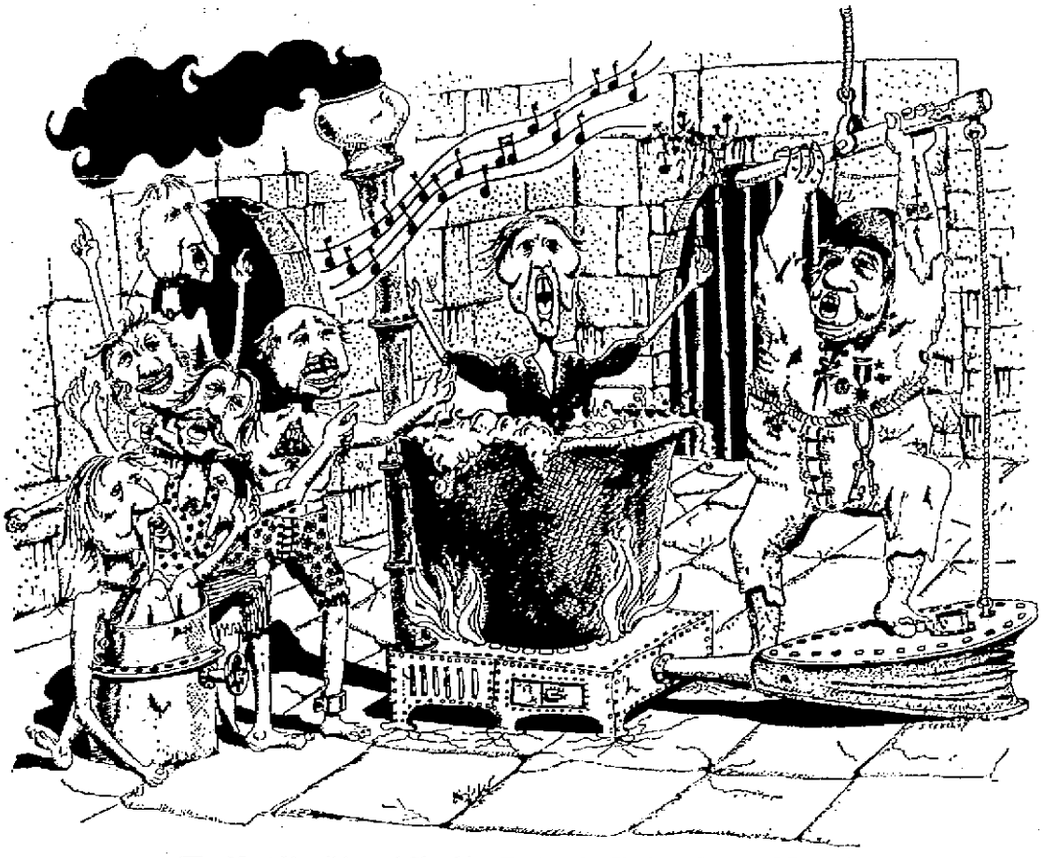

Marathon titles seem to go hand in hand with the cruelty bit. If the viewer gets a little bored with blood and gore, he can find some solace in reading the program — something he could never hope to accomplish during a 10-minute intermission.

If the present trend in cruel and unusually sadistic theater continues, we can expect to see the musical comedy field taken over by painful hits. Marat-Sade, in fact, was a "sick" musical in the Brechtian manner — the Brecht of "Mann ist Mann" and "The Measures Taken."

First, the scriptwriters will turn out musical versions of a few classics — "Justine" and "The Story of O." Then, the song and patter men will have to search for new material.

Fortunately, they will not have far to look. Throughout human history, man has done nothing more successfully than torture and maim his brothers.

The Spanish Inquisition of Philip II is a likely subject for comic treatment under the new rules. What laughs can be gleaned from these pages of history!

'The Most Horrible and Shocking Torture in Glorious Song and Patter'

A MUSICAL COMEDY based on the Inquisition would have to have a long title to be in vogue: "A Very Funny Thing Happened to Me on the Way to the Autos Da Fe" or "The Most Horrible and Shocking Torture of Practically Everybody Who Didn't Agree With Good Old Philip II as Performed by His Very Own Executioners in Glorious Song and Patter."

At the opening of the show, there is a production number staged in the dungeons in which torturer and prisoners join in a hearty song and dance chorus of "Dismemberment Tonite!"

Shortly thereafter, the scene changes to the private cell of an important political prisoner. Two hooded men ply their trade with rack, thumbscrew and iron maiden. While they work, they sing their song:

The Grand Inquisitor says we must do it;
The Papal Delegation urges us to do it;
And so, with a smile,
We'll muddle through it.
It's all part of a job well done!

We work and slave for our Heavenly Master;
Burning heretics faster and faster;
While our weapons of torture
Grow nastier and nastier.
It's all part of a job well done!

We're loyal torturers, we smile, we don't glower;
We're famous for racking, we screw thumbs by the hour;
And we fill the King's quota,
This fills us with power.
It's all part of a job well done!

The two do a soft shoe routine, during which time they are joined by their prisoner. After the dance, he sings his lament:

Hurt me!
Excruciating pain is my desire!
Hurt me!
Come on and kill me!
You know my desire!
Kill me!
Come on and kill me!
Hurt me!
Hurt me!
Do!

A show like this has very little in the way of plot. Reason? The author shouldn't want to take one minute of enjoyment away from his audience by forcing them into a logical argument. It is far more desirable to simply let the show run off by itself, like a review. Each scene must be a vignette, disgusting in its own right.

THE PLAY SHOULD HAVE many more bright and lyrical songs: "It's a Treat to Beat Your Whip on the Prisoners' Backs," "Bring Back the Rack," "Thumbscrew, How I Love Ya!" "Why Can't the Torturers Learn to Speak?" "When Philip Gets Blue" and "My Bloody Valentine."

All of this should make for a most pleasant and diverting evening of theater, without pushing moral questions and universal truths off on the unsuspecting audience. It reminds one of the good times that must have been had in the Circus Maximus, with lions eating Christians, naval battles, and the crowd yelling for thumbs down and lots more gore.

Unfortunately, the trend in cruel theater will fade. This often happens in America, the land of the faddist.

All is not lost, however, since there are new playwrights emerging, each with his own view of what theater should be. This will make the way for a totally new concept in entertainment.

Make way for the "Theater of Voyeurism!"

'To Hell Vith Der Rat Patrol; Dey Vill Neffer Drife Our Panzer Aus of Der Desert!'

II. Current Trends in Films

Instead of GI Joe, Captain Flagg and Sergeant Quirt, the new war movies have real people playing in huge, sweeping documentaries that cover an entire war, or a large segment of it, and show action on both sides. This portrayal of fighting from two points-of-view illustrates the modern feeling that there were no villains at all — the men who fought were either misunderstood, or they were simple, fun-loving guys who laughed their way through the whole thing.

Most of these World War II epics are long. "The Longest Day" may well be the longest film, and "The Battle of the Bulge" took as long as the real thing.

"The Night of the Generals" covered the war from 1942 to 1945 and some 20 years after, and took almost three hours to do it. Most of this is to the regret of the audience.

Many of them are waiting for the cartoons or previews.

What should happen is this: Hollywood should realize that it is in direct competition with Frankie and Annette, Surfboards and Beachblankets, and American International's bikini boom, and take steps to shorten its fare.

Capsulizations of war films might be complemented by palatable versions of classic literature. The moviegoer could enjoy Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor in "Thus Spake Zarathustra," and Michael Caine and Shirley MacLaine in "Plato's Republic."

The best film for this genre is still the war epic. Man can never lose sight of the fact that his greatest pleasure is derived from maiming his fellows. The next best thing is watching it. If all else fails, he will read about it.

THE ULTIMATE WAR MOVIE will be called "The Littlest War," produced, no doubt, by The Mirisch Corporation, which did so much to further war as a really fun entertainment with its production of "What Did You Do in the War, Daddy?"

If they can get away with that, they can do anything.

"The Littlest War" opens on a montage of Churchill, Hitler and the German Army marching on Poland. The screen is filled with bombs and blood. Winston makes the sign of the "V" and we see his lips move.

The scene shifts to the African Campaign. Inside Rommel's tent, we see Rommel, played again by James Mason because he is now mature enough to handle the role, and his aide, George Peppard, who still wears a World War I German flier's uniform because he makes movies so rapidly he hardly has time to change. The two men are bent over a map-strewn table.

The aide rakishly lights a Turkish cigarette as Rommel pours himself a glass of schnapps.

"To hell vith der Rat Patrol!" shrieks the field marshal. "Dey vill neffer drife our Panzer aus of der desert!"

There is another montage of explosions and fighting in glorious living color, and a cascade of dismembered bodies bursts across the screen.

The next scene takes place in Buchenwald, the German concentration camp. This is a scene of comic relief in which the audience sees how the inmates cavort and play jokes on the mischievous camp guards. This bit involves a really fun trick the mischievous guards are playing on a group of prisoners in the showers.

AFTER ANOTHER MONTAGE of guns, bodies, cannons, planes and bombs, the scene fades to Hitler's war office in Berlin. Hitler is speaking to his chiefs-of-staff.

His eyes are red; his cowlick is mussed; he is incoherent:

"Bbfffskkkk!" he screams.

His aide translates: "Der Fuhrer is unhappy."

"Ggggyyyaaahhhhh!"

"He is displeased."

"Nggaaannnnaaa!"

"He vants to know vy you haff not yet killed Audie Murphy?"

Next, we see a shot of Winston Churchill waving to a crowd of ecstatic Englishmen. They are getting blown to pieces at night, but they still fall out for that old "V."

After a 30-second cut showing documentary films of the capture of Berlin, the camera cuts to Eisenhower's headquarters, where he is talking with his generals Patton and Clark.

During this final moment, the titles for the film flash across the screen, interspersed with dialogue. This is the final coup in an unusual film.

The final scene goes something like this:

Eisenhower: Well, boys, we did it, didn't we?

THE MIRISCH CORPORATION . . .

Patton: Yep.

PRESENTS . . .

Clark: Sure looks like it, Ike.

"THE LITTLEST WAR" . . .

Eisenhower: Hey!

STARRING . . .

Patton: What?

JOHN WAYNE as GENERAL EISENHOWER . . .

Eisenhower: What are we going to do?

HENRY FONDA as GENERAL MARK CLARK . . .

Clark: How do you mean, Ike?

LEE MARVIN as GENERAL PATTON . . .

Patton: Yeah, what's on your mind, Ike?

AUDREY HEPBURN as LILI MARLENE . . .

Eisenhower: I guess the war's over.

CURT JURGENS as THE GERMAN ARMY . . .

Patton: You said it, Ike.

WOODY ALLEN as ADOLF HITLER . . .

Clark: And how, Ike.

TROY DONAHUE as GI JOE . . .

Clark: I see your point, Ike?

DIRECTED and PRODUCED by MILLARD FILLMORE . . .

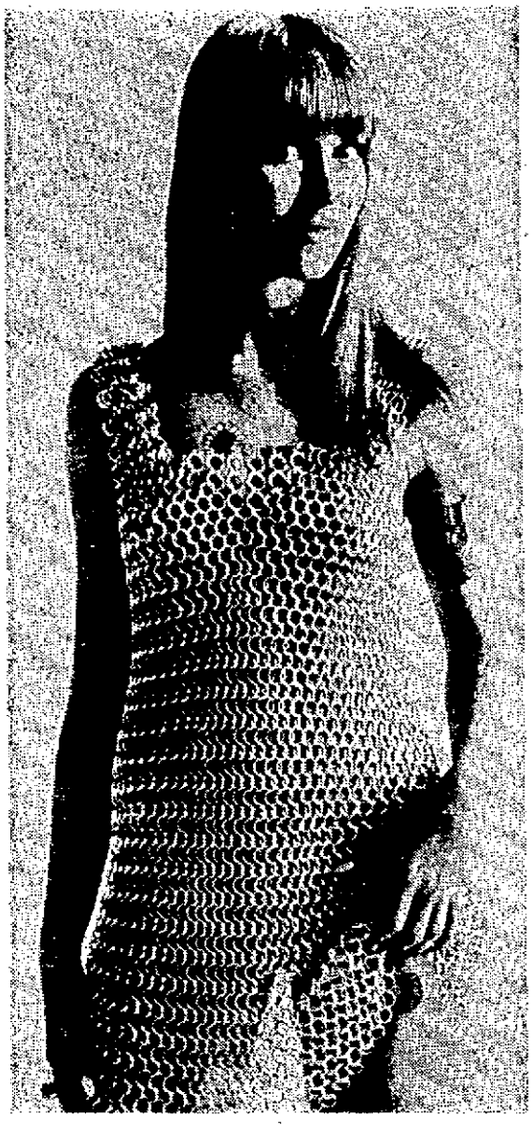

Eisenhower: Yep?

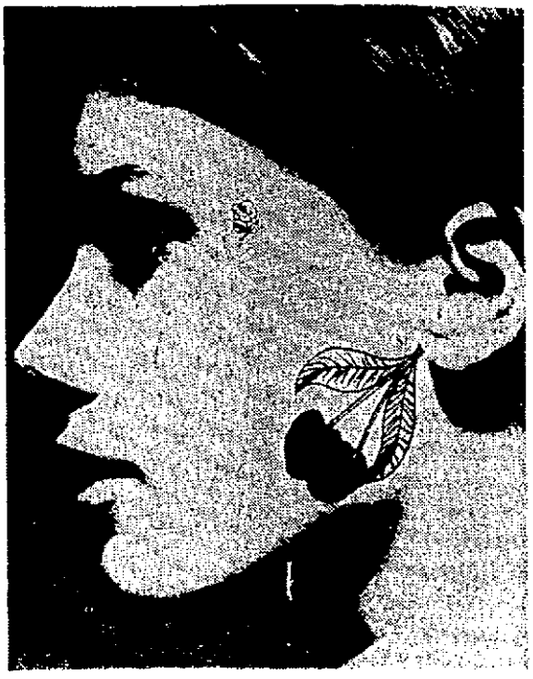

IN COLOR AND PANAVISION . . .

Clark: What the hell are we going to do now?

THE END.

Temporary Tattoos

By Mona Skager

THE ART OF decorating the surface of one's skin may have begun in primitive times, but it has suddenly had a rebirth of interest. What once were considered far-out styles are no longer out of the ordinary. Temporary tattoos are the most recent fad; fortunately, they carry neither the pain nor the permanent stigma of the real thing.

The fashion fad started in Paris and St. Tropez among the international "jet set." Celebrities were seen with parts of their anatomy bedecked in animals and flowers of brilliant colors. Reaction to the body decorations swept from the Paris discotheques to New York, where Eastern devotees of self-decoration accepted the fad with equal ardor.

Now the craze is in full flower in California. Introduced at the Monterey Pop Festival, the tattoos caught on with the music fans in attendance and the fad has been picked up and is most evident on the Southern California scene.

Southland teen-agers are breaking out in a rash of brilliantly colored designs, many of a psychedelic nature. The designs run from bow-wielding Cupids to Zodiac signs, bulls, dragons, Batman, traffic signs, hearts, screaming eagles, The Monkees and Moby Dick. The teen-agers are wearing the tattoos on their faces, arms, knees, nose, toes, hose, earlobes, fingers or wherever.

Fortunately for parents who might envision a permanently illustrated member of the family, the tattoos are easily removed with cold cream or nail polish remover.

Not to be outdone, the more conservative, jet-minded do-it-yourself gift decorators are also utilizing the tattoos to decorate gifts of wood, glass or fabric. They are strategically applying the decals to the gifts themselves and, if they have any tattoos left over, they are using them to add zest to their gift wrappings.

So when next you see your favorite teen-ager with a fully rigged ship sailing across his or her arm or a suburban matron madly affixing a mermaid to a present, don't become alarmed — they have just ventured into the sea of the latest fashion fad.

THE NAME GAME

By Bob Loeffelbein

THE MOST COMMON family name in the world is Wong. That's right, it's Wong! More than 150 million Chinese carry it.

San Francisco's Chinatown telephone book alone lists 257 Wong numbers.

The three most common names in the United States, however, are still Smith, first, then Johnson and Brown. There are 1½ million Smiths. In Chicago alone there is a ratio of 16 per thousand population. Chicago's second most common name is McDonald, with 12 of them per thousand population, and third is Campbell, with 10 per thousand, showing the area's Scottish inheritance. Individual areas and cities often show names which don't follow the national charting, because of the Irish or Dutch or whatever nationality settled the area.

In spite of the anonymity of this most popular of names, it is still tenaciously clung to by members of the Smith family. Three have even waged battles with movie companies to retain the name Smith—Constance, Alexis, and, more recently, John.

PARENTS OF ALL Smith babies should give them an unusual first name. Like "Preserved" Smith, who was once a Cornell professor. There ought to be more imagination exercised than plain John or Fred Smith. Fred Smith, in fact, is the most common combination in the United States. There once was an organization called the "Association of Fellows Named Fred Smith."

Charles Johnson, Henry Brown, William Jones, Robert Wilson and John Anderson are the other most common combinations, in that order.

Conversely, there are people blessed with names like Orange Lemon, Hewling Mumpers, Hazel Nutt, Holl Gee, Hyacinth Ringnose and Polly Wog. They're all for real.

The shortest name on record is Ik Ek, a Brockton, Mass., citizen.

One of the nicest to say is Russ Ross.

Or maybe you like rhyming names like Hugh Blue, Herman Sherman, Merry Berry, Gene Keene or Paul Zahl (author of "Flamingo Hunt").

Odder yet are the ones spelling the same forward and backward, like Hannah Mellem (Seattle, Wash.) and Hannah Anna Toot (Mesa, Ariz.).

ONE YOU CAN even spell upside down. Ole Lee, of Fairbault, Minn., gets number 337370 license plate each year, which, if you will look closely, is his name spelled upside down. down.

Leading the unusual names parade, or at least high in nomination, is Georgia Alabama Florida. The origin, naturally, is that the father's name was Joe Florida, the mother's name was Georglanna, and he was born on a showboat tied up at a dock in Mobile, Ala.

But if you think that is a rough handle to put on a pan, how about Daniel Wisdom May I Known Stephens Fair And Spirit Show John Divine Communion Feel Moses Meckness And Joshua Zeal Wins The Day Murphy? Dan was from Van Alstyne, Tex., just one more thing Texans can brag big about.

For an all-in-one shot, try this for size on your tongue, guaranteed better than a trial tongue twister for a suspicious wife. In fact, this guy's wife wouldn't need a tongue twister. He could just repeat his name. It's Gustantirius Papatheodorakoumantourigiomichelakpoulas. Just 53 letters. His checking account should be safe—no one could forge it. They couldn't even spell it. Matter of fact, I can picture HIM struggling through the sixth grade still trying to spell it!

ONE FELLOW tired of people mangling his name and did something constructive about it. George Poppavlakhodimitrakopulous is a restaurant owner in Lansing, Mich. He offers free meals to new customers who pronounce his name correctly the first time.

A Honolulan has a 75-letter name: Abraham Kaleialoha Kahoholokuakinlokeanueonalanialiikoulana Imihia Kealoha. Most Hawaiian names are quite long, like King Kamehameha and Queen Liliuokulani and George Kulanikapuulaekamoku Kane. Other foreign names seem just as odd to us, though. Some are real nightmares for newsroom personnel who must write headlines.

An Indian diplomat was Sir Tiruvalyanguid Vijayaragahavacharya. In London the Savoy Hotel staff solved this bottleneck nicely by referring to him as Sir 754, his room number.

Crete's modern day Romeo, Costa Kefaloghianis, who kidnaped his Juliet, Tassaula Petrokogheorgis, a few years back, made headlines, long headlines.

In Spain, Franco's granddaughter has a typical Spanish name: Maria del Carmen Esperanza Alejandra de la Santissima Trinidad y Todos Los Santos Bordin Franco. Imagine a traffic policeman pulling her over, pulling out his little book and saying "What's your name, lady?" "Oh, well, forget it lady, but be more careful next time."

A THAILAND nurse who made the news by accompanying air evacuees from Haneda AFB to their homeland is Thatsanaporn Kittivej. Other typical Thai names are Vikul Viranuvatti and Vichiara Jirawanjse.

Then there was a Commie jungle queen in Bombay, India, who when arrested gave her name as Godavaribai Parulekar.

Commander Sabri Tchelebioglue was rescued from his Turkish sub, in which 81 sailors were entombed following a collision with a freighter.

Momrajawong-ying Sirikit Kittiyakorn became the bride of "His Majesty, Reverend Lord Who Is Above Our Heads, Phumiphon Aduldij, of the Land of the Free People."

Even pity poor sergeants at roll call time when they try R. H. Trzuxkowski, Denzil E. Schetzle or Wojtkiewiez S. Wojciechowisz. One way to lick the problem is nickname. WSW is called "BowWow," for example. Saves wear and tear on the salivary glands.

A lot of odd notes on names turn up in the newspapers.

William Loves Peace was a registrant at Draft Board No. 1 at Notoway, Va., for example, as a conscientious objector.

Often, though, they mean nothing at all, for on the same day a Detroit judge granted divorces to Ida and Richard Love and Isabelle and David Love . . . and a 76-year-old man in Hartford, Conn., named William Sober, was arrested on a drunkenness charge . . . and Safety First, of Los Angeles, was pinched a second time for speeding 57 in a 35 mile zone . . . and R. U. Innocente pleaded guilty when asked that exact question to driving a stolen car . . . and Tom Collins, a police sergeant in Ferndale, Mich., was found to be a teetotaler, along with his wife, Jerry . . . and we hope this one doesn't mean anything either. Will Drowne joined the Navy.

Science for You

By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: Show Molecular Motion.

NEEDED: Two glasses of water, one hot and one cold; two soda straws, ink or dark food color.

DO THIS: Place a drop of ink in each straw. Let the water stand until it is still. Place the ends of the straws below the surface of the water, one in one glass and one in the other. Squeeze the straws until the ink comes out.

WHAT HAPPENS: The molecules of the water are in violent motion, faster in the hot water than in the cold. The molecules in the ink are also in motion. The collisions of the molecules mix the ink with the water, and the mixing proceeds faster in the hot water where the motion and collisions are faster.

Molecular motion of air is noted when an odor spreads throughout a room. The average velocity of air molecules is more than 1,000 miles per hour.

A Romantic Touch of Hawaii

Islands, lakes, bridges, volcanoes and fern grotto provide Hawaiian setting. Prized Koi fish fill lake. Lava rock and volcano are lighted by natural gas. Below, patio with Balboa-shaped pool is sheltered by ficus and apricot trees.

—Photos by KENT HENDERSON

THE CONTEMPORARY ranch house built by the Leo L. Yoders is well-built, decorated tastefully, functional to a minute degree and surrounded by romantic and beautiful gardens reminiscent of Hawaii.

Five rooms and two baths share 2,500 square feet of space allowing for greater individuality of design. Each room develops a specific personality with interesting angles and use of glass.

Admitting to a love of the islands . . . and future plans include retirement to a second home on Kauai . . . the Yoders have furnished an office in monkey pod wood.

Driftwood finish open beams and bone-painted walls contribute a clear background for the unusual textures and shapes of the furniture.

An asymmetric desk is placed to face the swimming pool with comfortable seating on burnt orange upholstered chairs. Monkey pod tables are used exclusively and, continuing the island influence, are topped with dried flowers from the Yoders' second home.

A zodiac wall clock is part of an unusual collection of clocks placed throughout the home.

Only one conventional door was used in the home — all of the rooms are closed by folding vertical shutters, excellent for privacy and keeping each room free from obstruction for easier decorating.

Steve, 14, has a room directly opposite the office but bordering the front of the home. A long window seat is upholstered in woven bronze cotton matching the fringed bedspread.

All of the furnishings in Steve's room are mahogany built-ins with the exception of a provincial chest and headboard. Short beige draperies may be closed for privacy although high shrubs shade the windows.

A wide, window-lined gallery borders the pool and lake with a narrow band of tropicals softening the base of the windows. English quarry tile was used on the uncarpeted areas of the gallery and foyer.

By Ellen Krec

A convenient lemon and white bath was built off the pool. Floral print silk wallpaper covers the wall and double white Austrian curtains brighten the windows.

A raised used-brick planter adds a touch of greenery to the foyer with a low marble table and tall Grecian mirror gracing the opposite wall.

A sharp, glassed angle between the foyer and the living room provides just the right amount of space for a grand piano.

The 15-foot pitched beam ceiling gives depth to the long kitchen and tinted wedges of glass were inserted high above the work area giving a rosy glow and a break in the wide expanse of wall. Mrs. Yoder likes cooking in her room of rose colored glass and used it in place of doors on her mahogany built-in china cabinets.

Pink on rose short silk draperies cover the lower border of windows surrounding the dinette table with ram's horn chairs.

English quarry tile moved from the floor to all of the counter tops and gold-flecked vinyl was used on the kitchen floor.

The solid mahogany cabinets were built with open space above for display.

Pink tinted walls add to the glow enjoyed for the serve-through above the stove. The pass-through may be a way of visiting with guests while cooking, but closed, when desired, by shutters.

The living room and dining room are distinctive in design even though they are in the same room. Then a small room was built on the interior to contain the radiant heating elements, a bold paneled corner was formed, so Yoder had the television built into the angled area.

With the exception of a scenic wallpaper on the dining room wall, the balance of the room is a mixture of horizontal and vertical mahogany paneling. The chambers for the Artisan organ also were paneled then used for added indirect lighting.

All of the windows and doors are draped with bone antique silk and matching padded valances. Above the sliding glass doors Mrs. Yoder placed a portrait of each member of the family.

The furnishings in both rooms are combined traditional and French provincial with the accent on accessories.

Raymond L. Quigley, AIA, was the designer, but the Yoders are responsible for everything else in the home.

Ornate Dresden compotes, circa 1700, were transformed into lamps along with a Belgian porcelain statue dated 1842. A family coat of arms studs the red brick fireplace and antique platinum-trimmed plates with hand-made cups and saucers are arranged attractively in the hutch.

Swinging doors open to the cabinet-lined private hall to the master bedroom. Bone carpeting covers the room with a long colorful print runner added for color. The master bedroom with an entrance to the pool also is furnished in a French provincial manner, using almost white with gold accents. Raw silk draperies and quilted silk bedspread give the room the subtle touch needed for the lush garden view.

A second dressing area with mahogany paneled and mirrored doors serves as an entrance to the master bath. The mahogany continues to line the bathroom walls with added touches of pink paint and white tile. Fluffy white carpeting covers the floor.

The conventional home is completely circular, leading directly from one room into another and also through the patio without having to return.

An open two-carport is trimmed with red brick and lattice. The walls are an unusual mixture of plaster

The 'Baron' Stole on Big Scale

By Bill Shelton

THE BARON OF ARIZONA. The Great 12 Million Acre Land Swindle. By E. H. Cookridge. John Day, $6.95.

Someone once said that there is a little larceny in all of us. Perhaps. It is fact that some of our most beloved and legendary heroes are of the ilk of Robin Hood, Jesse James and other slightly dishonest gentlemen.

Comes now the story of James Reavis, the granddaddy of them all, who conned the people of Arizona and the U.S. government out of some 18,500 square miles of land in Arizona and New Mexico back in the late 1880s, titled himself the Baron of Arizona and realized some half a billion dollars from rents, leases and gold and silver mines of the area before his downfall.

The Baron involved some of the biggest names of Wall Street and of the banking houses of Europe in his scheme; had congressmen on his side and was backed by the Huntingtons, the California railroad tycoons.

REAVIS HAD been a frontiersman, a soldier in the Confederate Army, a clothing clerk and a real estate agent. It was while handling some land claims for clients that he saw how dubious some of them were. Having toyed with forgery while in the Army he began to see what wonders he could conjure up with land claims.

Reavis set about painstakingly to improve his forgery and to make himself an expert on old documents. Then with the aid of a crooked Spanish lawyer he produced a claim to property in Arizona, including Phoenix and the Southern Pacific railroad right of way, and stretching as far as Deming, N.M.

He based his claim on what probably had been a legitimate claim or grant to Don Miguel Menecio Silva de Peralta de la Cordoba. To bolster his forged claim, Reavis found a fake Peralta descendant, married her and began calling himself Baron de Peralta y Cordoba. Actually, the bride turned out to be an Indian from California but the Baron was able to pass her off to European nobility as the real thing.

Reavis' claim, which he backed up with many forged documents, forged headstones in Mexico and

Betty Grable, Sitting on a Table

SOME 200 YEARS AGO, the editors of "The Lore and Language of Schoolchildren," (Oxford Paperbacks, $2.50) tell us, John Arbuthnot, physician to Queen Anne and friend of Swift and Pope, said tradition is preserved pure and uncorrupt only "amongst School-boys, whose Games and Plays are delivered down invariably from one generation to another." Unfortunately Dr. Arbuthnot let his own children make kites out of his papers, so that none of his notes on the matter, if he made any, have been discovered.

Iona and Peter Opie, editors of "The Lore and Language of Schoolchildren," (and of the excellent "Oxford Dictionary of Nursery Rhymes" which was reviewed in this column a few weeks ago) point out the strange fact that few people, since Dr. Arbuthnot, have given much thought to "the curious lore passing between children aged about 6-14, which today continues to be almost unnoticed by the other six-sevenths of the population."

Their study is based on the contributions of 5,000 children in 70 schools in different sections of England, Scotland and Wales, from "remote rural districts, such as one where squirrels steal from the pockets of children's coats hanging in the porch," to "the grim barrack-like buildings" in the cities of England. The children in the Opies' book chant their rhymes and transmit their traditional lore in Kircaldy High School, Scotland, where Thomas Carlyle was pupil as well as master, a modern slum-clearance school, where the Opies found more traditional lore than almost anywhere else in Britain.

The topical rhymes of children never seem to die; only the names change, and even these slowly. Three hundred years ago, in the reign of Charles I, the English children sang:

The King of France went up the hill
With forty thousand men;
The King of France came down the hill,
And ne'er went up again.

In the First World War, and 10 years after it, English children were singing:

Kaiser Bill went up the hill
To conquer all the nations;
Kaiser Bill came down the hill
And split his combinations.

Today, in Sutherland, Scotland, the Opies find, the children still sing:

Napoleon was a general,
He had ten thousand men,
He marched them up to the top of a hill,
And he marched them down again.

The Opies found children reciting rhymes about Charlie Chaplin, Popeye the sailor man, Shirley Temple and Deanna Durbin, and this one:

Betty Grable
Sitting on a table
Showing off her legs
To Clark Gable.

They apparently see old American movies on British TV too.

Clara Tells Life With Malraux

MEMOIRS. Clara Malraux. Translated by Patrick O'Brian. Farrar, Straus and Giroux, $6.95.

These are the memoirs of the ex-wife of Andre Malraux, top rank French novelist and art historian who flew a plane for the Loyalists in the Spanish Civil War, was active in the political left when the political right menaced France and most of the rest of Europe, and ran the gamut by ending up as De Gaulle's minister of culture.

Clara Malraux defied her bourgeois family by traveling openly with her lover, the young Malraux, and married him when fame was still over the horizon. The marriage that was to be a trial lasted 20 years.

The impecunious Malraux lost what money they had on the Bourse, and there followed Malraux' expedition to Cambodia, where Malraux went into the "business" of selling ancient Khmer art to rich Americans. The French colonial authorities looked on it as theft of state property and sentenced him to three years' imprisonment. Clara returned to Paris, where, penniless again, she succeeded in rallying French literary leaders to Malraux, and the sentence was commuted and suspended.

Then began Malraux' career as revolutionist, brilliant novelist, art critic and historian, and finally, propagandist and aide of De Gaulle.

Bolivar's Lady of the Sun

MANUELA (La Caballeresa del Sol). By Demetrio Aguilera Malta. Translated by Willis Knapp Jones. Southern Illinois University Press, $6.95.

Is it possible to write a historical novel without making it, as so many of our writers do, a somewhat slicker version of "The Rover Boys?" Or, as is increasingly the fashion, a "Peyton Place" turned backward in time?

It is possible, and it can be done with exceeding brilliance when the pen is that of a writer like the Ecuadorean Demetrio Aguilera Malta.

NOVELIST, 19

Carolyn Glyn, 19, has written her third novel, "The Unicorn Girl" (Coward-McCann, $4). At 14, she wrote her first novel, "Don't Knock the Corners Off," and it was widely praised. "The Unicorn Girl" explores a sensitive young girl's attempt to avoid the anguish of growing up by escaping into the security of fantasy. Miss Glyn, incidentally, is the great-granddaughter of Elinor Glyn.

Frontier Antiques

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF AMERICAN COUNTRY ANTIQUES. By Katharine M. McClinton. Coward-McCann, $5.95.

Mrs. McClinton does something unusual in her book on antiques — she devotes a whole section to those of the West and of the frontier. She talks of knives, and gives an interesting, though necessarily brief history of these instruments in the West — the various skinning knives and, of course, the Bowie knife.

The blades of some frontier knives had interesting inscriptions, such as "Genuine Arkansas Toothpick." A California knife of the 1850s was marked "I can get gold from quartz." Fur traps; powder horns, all sorts of cowboy gear and equipment are discussed.

Butter churns and maple sugar molds, warming pans and Shaker rugs, these give an idea of the range of country antiques dealt with. The eight sections of the book cover tinware; woodenware; wrought and cast iron; copper and brass; country pottery; homespun and handwoven articles; the country store.

How Mary Finds Her Characters

THE COMPANY SHE KEPT. By Doris Grumbach. Coward-McCann, $6.

There are few novelists whose work is as autobiographical as Mary McCarthy's, believes Doris Grumbach, and she sets out to prove it, having gone thoroughly into Miss McCarthy's nonfiction as well as her novels, and using conversations with the author as well. Since "The Group" set imaginations ablaze regarding who was who in that and other novels by Miss McCarthy, Mrs. Grumbach's book should add fuel to the fire.

"There is only a faint line between what really happened to her, the people she knew and knows including herself, and the characters in her fiction," Mrs. Grumbach writes. Miss McCarthy's first husband, Harold Johnsrud, is supposed to be the Harold of "The Group." Her next husband, the critic Edmund Wilson, figures in "The Charmed Life." Mary McCarthy herself is Meg Sargent, Martha Sinott and other McCarthy characters.

Black Anger

THE PANTHER AND THE LASH. Poems of Our Times. By Langston Hughes, Knopf, $1.95, paperbound.

For honest work
You proffer me poor pay,
For honest dreams
You spit in my face,
And so my fist is clenched
Today —
To strike your face.

In these poems, Langston Hughes, long America's leading Negro poet, wrote of freedom marches and sit-ins and militancy, and of resurgent Africa. Forty-four of the 70 poems are new; the rest are from previous books.

THE SELECTED POETRY OF GEORGE HERBERT. Edited by Joseph H. Summers. Signet, New American Library, $1.25.

The parson-poet George Herbert has come into his own again and critics and scholars of today hail him as one of the best versifiers of the 17th century. The Signet selection is a generous one indeed, including Affliction, The Altar, The Flower, The Quiddity and Church-music. Prof. Summers of Washington University, who has written a book on Herbert, contributes an introduction on the character and quality of Herbert's poetry.

COIN ROUNDUP

Culver City Man Builds Coin Houses

By Maurice M. Gould

AMONG THE MOST unusual exhibits ever assembled were models of the Lincoln Memorial, Lincoln's log cabin and a model of the White House, which were constructed and assembled by "Ernie" Hood of Culver City.

The Lincoln Memorial is constructed of 8,600 brand-new Lincoln cents and the Lincoln log cabin had the total of 9,600 uncirculated cents. The White House model was made up of more than 6,000 1963 dimes. The white plastic and the brilliant uncirculated dimes and the lighting were assembled by Hood, taking him 950 hours over a period of 15 months. Each column of the White House has $17 in dimes in it; 2,500 separate pieces of plastic were used, and the frame alone weighed 45 pounds. A great deal of research was done to build the model to scale.

Hood's house of Lincoln, his first effort in this most unusual field, was purchased by the "Believe It or Not," St. Augustine, Florida, Museum, after it had received numerous awards in exhibitions.

These exhibits have created a great deal of attention wherever shown and were of interest to collectors and noncollectors alike.

The demand was so great for his exhibits that he completed a second Lincoln Log Cabin, which was installed in the new Ripley Museum in San Francisco opposite Fisherman's Wharf on Feb. 2, 1967. This was the official opening and this new model contained more than 16,000 U.S. cents.

Hood is active in coin collecting in the Southern California area and was recently appointed museum curator for the Numismatic Association of Southern California Museum, which will be housed in the main office of the Union Bank in Los Angeles.

FROM A REAL STUDENT and friend, Bob Dickson of Ohio, comes some information which surprised me and may be of interest to you.

John C. Fremont, in 1846, virtually saved California for the United States and was elected governor by the settlers.

He was the first Presidential candidate of the Republican Party in 1856, and although defeated by James Buchanan, he still retained a great deal of political power.

In May of 1864, he was urged by a group of radical Republicans to run against Abraham Lincoln. He accepted but withdrew in September.

His wife, Jessie, was probably the first woman political helpmate. With her stormy and antagonistic conduct against Lincoln, it is generally believed that she caused John Fremont to withdraw.

While a major general in the Civil War, he was put in command of the newly created western department, with headquarters in St. Louis, Mo. On Aug. 30, 1861, he established martial law in Missouri and freed the slaves of all who resisted the government.

Fremont is well known to political token collectors because many interesting pieces were issued during his campaign.

Roasted Pork Loin Easy Summer Dinner

By Mildred K. Flanary

Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

LET'S HAVE a summer dinner party, an easy one! Make the entree a Spit Roasted Pork Loin garnished with pretty orange cups filled with frosted grapes and serve it with exotic Sour Cream-Orange Liqueur Sauce.

Nothing's as easily prepared as a big handsome spit-roasted pork loin or more tempting hot off the spit, beautifully tender, handsomely browned and crispy crusted. To make this fine roast the loin is allowed to stand in a spicy orange marinade before roasting. It's then drained and balanced on the spit so it will turn smoothly and roast evenly without straining the motor. The meat is basted frequently with additional orange marinade while roasting to give it added flavor.

The new extra lean pork loins are in plentiful supply these days so sleek moderns interested in maintaining, or securing, streamlined figures and good health can enjoy them often. These new loins come boned and unboned or cut into chops for quick easy charcoal broiling.

So, if sleek trim figures are "in" in your home, plan to serve the new extra lean, high protein pork frequently. It has fewer calories per pound, too!

Here is the recipe for Spit Roasted Loin with Sour Cream-Orange Liqueur Sauce.

ROASTED PORK LOIN WITH SOUR ORANGE SAUCE

1 can (6 ounce) frozen orange juice concentrate, defrosted
½ cup honey
⅓ cup water
⅓ cup vinegar
1 tsp. prepared mustard
1 tsp. soy sauce
¼ tsp. salt
5 or 6 drops Tabasco sauce
4 to 5 pound center cut pork loin
4 tsp. cornstarch
¼ cup orange liqueur
½ cup dairy sour cream

Combine first 8 ingredients in saucepan; bring to a boil. Cool. Carefully slide pork loin into plastic bag. Pour sauce into bag. Close bag and place in shallow baking dish in refrigerator to marinate 4 to 6 hours or overnight, turning roast in dish several times. Remove pork loin from marinade. Thread one fork or prong into rotisserie spit, points away from handle. Thread spit through loin, end to end, being careful to balance roast on rod perfectly. Put second fork or prong onto spit; push prongs firmly into roast and tighten screws. Attach rod to rotisserie motor; start motor. Roast over low glowing coals, electric or gas unit, until meat is tender and reaches an internal temperature of 170 degrees F. (about 2¾ hours). Save 1 cup of the marinade for sauce. Baste roast with remaining marinade during last 30 minutes of cooking. Combine reserved marinade with cornstarch; blend and cook, stirring constantly, until thick and clear. Stir in orange liqueur; heat. Blend in sour cream. Serve with pork. Yield: 8 to 10 servings.

A Penny Saved

By Star E. Bohl

MY HUSBAND and I created a sensation of sorts the other day. I say "of sorts" because it was something less than a Beatle's appearance, but more than a sewage treatment plant dedication.

It all began when we decided to give a party to celebrate a month when not much happens. And in the process of gathering party supplies we had to make a trip to the supermarket for a supply of Quote Brand Name Soft Drinks End Quote. As soon as we entered the liquids department our problem presented itself. There, in glorious display, was the object of our journey.

The only problem was that the particular brand we wanted came in a variety of five shapes and prices. There were disposable cans, snap-top cans, small bottles at 7⅜ ounces each, medium bottles and larger bottles — each at a different price.

THAT WAS the breaker. As a mother who can divide six and one-half peanut butter sandwiches between four starving 3-year-olds and a famished cat, I was used to dealing in higher mathematics. But this was beyond even my experience. I turned in panic to my husband.

As bastion of the budget, this was right in his line. With a great flourish he pulled his battered old slide rule out of his shirt pocket. He'd been using it only a few minutes before to compute miles per gallon for the family car, and he never missed an opportunity to display his dexterity. I dug into the clutter of my purse and came up with a pencil and small pad.

Now, we were both smiling. We rolled up our sleeves, so to speak, and stepped up to the beginning of the can display. I carefully listed the first type of can and its number of ounces, and waited for the pronouncement of the price per ounce, which I carefully jotted down. As we began on the second type of can, the snap-top kind, we noticed a few other shoppers beginning to gather. How about that — we had an audience.

Not exactly the shy type, my husband made a big show of marking the ounce amount on his slide rule. He then slid the center part along until the price part meshed just right and somehow told him what the price per ounce was. I wrote it down.

By this time, we had amassed quite a following. Including the department manager in his grubby little green apron. He just stood there with his folded arms propped up by his bulging stomach. Every few seconds he'd purse his lips and shake his head slowly. He didn't say anything, but the word "Nut" kept coming through to me. We just ignored him, though. We had work to do.

And so on down the display it went. At each pause for tabulating and note taking it seemed our drawing power increased. By the time we finished listing price per ounce for the largest bottles we had collected a real fan club. Some were smiling — whether for us or against us — and they all seemed to be enjoying the show.

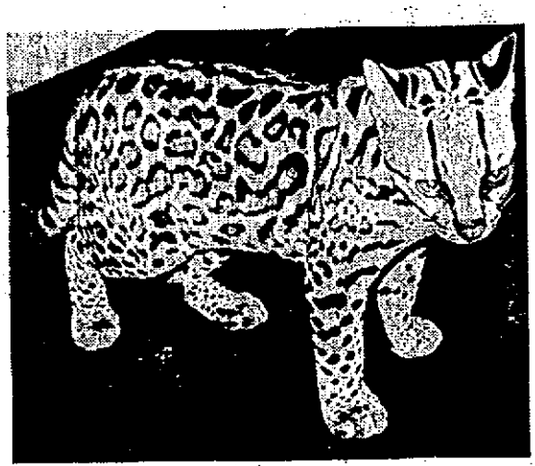

COMPUTATIONS complete, we proceeded to load six cartons of the most economically priced beverage into our shopping cart and start for the checkstand. When the manager, with a big smile on his face, stepped up to check us through himself we looked behind us. There, in single file extending all the way back to the liquids department, was about half of our audience.

And each of them had at least one carton of our chosen, price-tested soft drink.

Cat That's Not for Everybody

By Eleanor Avery Price

Ocelots are like house kittens at first. Then, suddenly, they aren't like house cats at all any more.

Santa Monica Cat Club presents its big show next Saturday and Sunday in Santa Monica Civic Auditorium. Just about every kind of cat known will be on exhibit. If you are wishing for a cat, perhaps the right breed for you will come into your home because you visited such an event.

Only if you are an unusual person should you own any kind of cat other than one you might see entered in cat shows, or a plain household cat. The ocelot may be gaining in popularity. In fact, there is a northern club devoted to increasing numbers of ocelots instead of dogs as protectors of the home. But he has traits that might upset your whole life. He certainly is not an ordinary cat.

The ocelot, Felis paradalis, can grow to twice the size of a regular cat, or even larger. He behaves somewhat like a house cat for the first few months, meaning he plays, mews (albeit more gruffly), growls, hisses and spits. And then suddenly he isn't a house kitty any more.

HE IS NOW a long-bodied, ewe-necked "powerhouse," very well able to leap just about as high as your ceiling. And I mean straight up from a position with all four big feet on the floor, so strong are his muscles. He moves with the speed of lightning, gracefully, beautifully, but frighteningly so. And just about anything seems fair game for him to pounce on.

He can frighten you with his "mouthing." And this is one reason why so many ocelot owners have their pets defanged. Many owners also have their ocelots declawed because their pets can make ribbons out of drapes, furniture, etc.

Much of the ocelot's activity takes place during the night if he isn't confined, and a confined ocelot isn't a very peaceful one at times. He is quite nervous, very sensitive, not always calm around strangers. In fact, an ocelot is inclined to keep your friends from coming to see you — that is, friends that don't own ocelots.

THE OCELOT is beautiful, with a short, smooth coat. Basic colors range from white, beige and grey to gold and russet. Irregular patterns of dark or brown spots, outlined spots and plain stripes are scattered over his streamlined body.

There are several ideas concerning his name. Some fanciers think it stems from the prominent white spots on the back of the ocelot's rounded ears. These spots resemble the eye-shaped patterns, or ocelli, on the wings of certain butterflies. This is one of nature's tricks to help the cat camouflage itself. Other animals are apt to be confused and think the spots are "eyes."

That Big Rock Candy Mountain

By Mark Clutter

EVERY AMERICAN wants to go to the Big Rock Candy Mountain.

The desire for Utopia, the ideal commonwealth in which carefully selected inhabitants are happy and free, is ingrained in this mass democracy. On the one hand, Americans consider themselves equal members of a great nation; on the other, they want to live within walls to protect them from people "who are not their kind."

This has been going on from the beginning. The Puritans who founded their little "cities of God" on the New England coast knew they were the "elect" — those chosen for good lives on this earth and the certainty of Heaven. The strangers in their midst — seafaring men, bond servants, occasional tourists from other colonies, were the "damned."

Throughout American history to the present day, there has been the passionate desire for the perfect community. This desire, rather than the imperatives of economics, drove the westering people. They were searching for the land of heart's desire. America is dotted with the ruins and memories of its many utopias.

AMERICANS have sought three kinds of utopias. There is the religious city-state in which the stern "truths" of a sect may be practiced in purity and without persecution. Then there is the community of free intellect in which men live reasonably together, shutting prejudice and ignorance and superstition outside the walls. And finally there is the community of pleasure in which men are free to indulge themselves in sport and conviviality.

The religious city-state has been most varied in its forms and the most likely to survive. The colonies had many such utopias, some of which exist almost without change today. Others gradually dissolved into the "world," tempering the nation with their zeal and energy. The willingness to work hard characterized the religious communities.

There has been no religious utopianism of importance begun in the 20th century. Some of the older movements remain strong; the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints may not be entirely what Brigham Young envisioned, but it is very much alive.

SINCE PLATO'S "Republic" thoughtful men have yearned for the community ruled by wisdom. Notable among the many attempts was New Harmony, Ind. Robert Owen, a British dreamer who held that the ultimate salvation of men lay in rational thinking, cooperation and free enterprise, had money enough to put his ideas into action in 1825. He and William Maclure, an American capitalist, purchased Harmony from a religious group that had grown disillusioned with the place.

The citizens who came to New Harmony were "greedy, incompetent or day dreamers." The factories and farms stood idle. The town still exists but the philosophic notions of its founders failed.

Then there was Brook Farm, Mass., organized by a minister in 1841. Its purpose was to unite thinkers and workers in a community devoted to mental freedom and the simple wholesome life. It was well planned, especially on the intellectual level, and the schools were excellent. Many of the respected intellectuals of the era supported the venture, which failed in 1849.

Most fragile of all the utopias were those devoted to pleasure. There was the half-legendary Merry Mount where life was a continuing orgy until the Puritans suppressed it in their gentle way. The British, who idealize country life, established many estates on the wild frontier. Redcoated gentlemen rode to the hounds and the joyful traditions of the aristocracy were maintained — until the money stopped coming from home.

Many of the pleasure colonies have no history. A pioneer told of a Dutch colony in Nebraska that grew fields of poppies. The people had fled to freedom to grow opium. There was the jolly town of Nonchalanta, Kan., whose citizens were so nonchalant they forgot to record the reason for its failure.

The free land is gone, but Americans are still trying to build their perfect communities. They are called suburbs. Like-minded people of similar incomes, weary of the insuperable problems of the parent city, create communities of their own. It is happening throughout America, but the Southland is the biggest Rock Candy Mountain of them all.

THERE IS much to be said for and against suburbia. On the credit side are beauty, orderliness, controllable environment, friendship, good schools and community services.

But suburbia takes the affluent and educated, those most able to lead, from the city. This opens the way to a disadvantaged utopianism. The rioters of Newark and Detroit were also utopians of a sort; many had come from the South in the hope of something better. Not finding it, they made the misruled cities pay.

Utopia in any of its forms is a kind of tyranny. It demands rigid conformity. Suburbia can be as narrow-minded as a religious sect. Not long ago in one of the Southland's loveliest coastal communities a group of citizens brought legal action against a free-lance writer. He was in violation of the zoning ordinance, operating a factory in a residential area by manufacturing magazine articles in his living room.

FREEDOM in a suburb exists within the limits of the consensus. And, in the nature of things, it limits contact with the rest of the human race. A child in an upper class suburb will get an excellent academic education — but he will have no knowledge of the variety of people who are his fellow citizens.

Utopianism is part of the American spirit. It is part of the restlessness, the migratory customs, the spiritual hunger of our society. It is hard for us to make the best of what we have. We want to move on, forever seeking for perfection. Which, of course, is a heartbreaking search. Perhaps it is most heartbreaking when it seems near achievement. Life in a dream home in a dream community may be bitterly disappointing.

Patio Storage Bench

Actress Lara Lindsay enjoys outdoor bench for patio.

By Steve Ellingson

HOW'S YOUR summer going? Having a problem finding a safe, dry place to keep outdoor living articles? Is clutter beginning to fill up your patio?

If it is, you might take two or three evenings and build a storage bench like the one shown here with Lara Lindsay of Fox's new movie "The Sweet Ride."

Not only does this make a handsome lounge or seat, but it's a sensible solution for all sorts of storage. You'll find that it's marvelously handy for keeping bags of briquettes, furniture pads, croquet sets, footballs, toys, garden tools or even a small barbecue.

All of these are hard items to store, especially when you want to keep them near the patio and out of the rain. The hinged lid makes the large storage area easily available.

The bench pictured was equipped with heavy-duty casters to make it mobile. It's easily moved either into the sun or shade for seating, napping or sunbathing. The big comfort feature is that it's extra long where even a six-footer isn't cramped for space.

The principal material used in building the bench is ¾ inch exterior plywood. This makes for easy building and it's something that will withstand all sorts of outdoor weather for many years. It's a project that can be built with success by anyone who can wield a hammer and saw. The easy-to-follow pattern eliminates all guesswork.

To obtain the easy-to-follow storage bench pattern number 423, send $1.00 (add 25c per pattern for air-mail delivery) by currency, check or money order to:

Steve Ellingson, Southland Living Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

Other patterns you will enjoy:

No. 239—Round-barbecue table and benches ..$1.00
No. 204—Chef's cart $1.00
No. 162—Cement block barbecue $1.00
New booklet picturing all projects 50c
No. 350—Patio rocker $1.00
No. 371 — Wishing well $1.00
No. 276—Lawn glider swing $1.00

The Baron

Spain, forged paintings and photographs of his regal ancestors, had the moral support of Sen. Roscoe Conkling, rail tycoon Cellis P. Huntington, the Southern Pacific Railway and the lawyer Robert G. Ingersoll.

IT WAS A small town newspaperman, suspicious of the type face on a certain ancient document, who stuck the first pin into Reavis' bubble. Its collapse was intriguing.

Reavis finally was brought to dock by Uncle Sam and a lengthy trial ensued at Santa Fe. One by one his frauds were exposed. He was found guilty of fraud, stripped of his claims and reduced to penury.

For all his shenanigans he drew a fine of $5,000 and two years in prison, which he served in Santa Fe. Then he roamed about the country, wrote articles on his escapades, claimed again and again that he would reassert and prove his claims.

The most intriguing aspect of Reavis' story is that he died in 1914, taking to his grave the secrets of his monumental hoax.

The book contains eight pages of photographs and three maps.

Leaves Tell Story of Pests

By Joe Littlefield

PLANT LEAVES often tell a story what is wrong with them if you recognize the signs. We'll try to help you. Holes in leaves indicate that a chewing worm has been eating the foliage. Small half circle leaf edges daintily nibbled out means that a tan night-feeding beetle did the damage.

Large perfect half circle of foliage chewed out means that carpenter bee did the damage, not to feast on the leafage but to use it for lining the nest. Grain farmers consider them beneficial because they help pollinate the grain. These bees don't stay on the plants as do other kinds of leaf chewing pests, hence there isn't much use spraying the plants.

Pear slugs, slimy gun metal color, skeletonize the flowering plum tree foliage by eating the epidermis layer off the leaves.

These pests are easily controlled if the gardener sprays the plants with a stomach-type insecticide spray.

Grasshoppers, too, damage plant leafage by chewing off larger portions of the leaf areas. It is difficult to control them because they don't stay put. Generally, they flit from one shrub to perhaps a third or a fourth plant away, then maybe fly some distance into your neighbor's yard. If you find them congregating in one specific bush, spray it with stomach type spray because that plant is a host plant where they may be breeding, then sally forth to attack other plants.

Snails and slugs may not seem to be busy during the hot summer but you'll still discover icy-looking tracks over foliage or walks, and find leaves chewed or young seedling plants attacked. Scatter an effective snail-slug bait to control them, also to prevent multiplication of them later in the season. A bait that has an attractant draws them, then kills them.

Crinkled foliage indicates that aphids earlier in the season sucked the sap juice of the leaf buds and caused a crippled condition as the leaves slowly developed.

There are several other signs such as a fungus and bacterial conditions too. Mildew causes gray powdery spots on foliage and somewhat distorts them too. Rust, with minute parasitic fungi in clusters, look like small orange color pimples on the underside of leaves. Proper watering procedures and fungicide spray controls these problems.

Sickly, anemic looking foliage may indicate a nutritional or trace mineral deficiency, or possibly a root knot nematode condition.

The one that seems to mystify the home gardener are the small brown spots near the edges of camellia leaves as if they had the measles. The brown spots enlarge, meet together causing brown margin leaf edges. This occurs to rhododendron foliage too.

This condition is due to keeping the soil constantly moist around the plant. This doesn't mean the plant gets deep thorough soaking, instead it indicates frequent shallow watering. The water may be alkaline, just enough to affect the leafage condition. Frequent shallow watering also tends to shut out air circulation of the soil. The two combined conditions affect the foliage hence the brown spots and brown edges.

Gardener can correct such a condition by first deep watering the plants and less frequently, which helps to leach the soil. There are several kinds of materials that will help correct the alkali condition. The old method is to use soil sulphur applied in the cooler months. There are several liquid soil conditioners and soil rinses on the market that do a much faster job of combatting the alkali condition.

RHUBARB SALAD for the troops is explained in the $5 prize recipe of Mrs. Ruth Brownell, 6638 E. San Mateo St., Paramount.

QUANTITY RHUBARB SALAD

3 cups diced rhubarb
2 cups white sugar
2 pkgs. of 3 oz. cherry jello
1 cup pineapple juice—may be part water
1 cup cold water

Cook rhubarb with water until tender. Add sugar, stir until dissolved. Turn off heat, add jello, stir until dissolved. Add juice and water. (Set aside about 1-3 of above mixture, leave outside refrigerator.) Put remainder in refrigerator in a 9x13 glass dish, until it begins to congeal. Add the following:

2 cups diced Delicious apples
1 lg. diced orange
1 cup celery diced
½ cup diced walnuts
1 No. 2 can drained pineapple
1 pt. sour cream

Add the chopped apples, orange, celery, walnuts and pineapple to the jello mixture. When congealed, spread 1 pint of sour cream over this. Then spoon the reserved jello and rhubarb mixture over the sour cream. Serves 16.

SOUTHLAND AT HOME

and glass . . . fireproof, soundproof and waterproof.

The front of the home is landscaped simply with wide borders of Algerian ivy and lawn with tall twisted junipers and giant bird of paradise for height.

The patio-pool area is the complete surprise with more than 200 feet devoted to gardens, lakes, pool and patio.

A dark red lava rock waterfall flows into an irregularly shaped lake filled with a prize collection of Koi fish. The lake is rimmed with concrete walkways and two bridges lead to center islands. Volcanic rock was placed in areas of the pool. The fern grotto as well as the pool rocks are illuminated at night by natural gas flames. Even the volcano erupts each evening! The fish are beautifully colored and respond to familiar sounds with rapid swimming. Yoder says "The fish are so friendly they kiss my hand when I clear the lake!"

The fern grotto has a redwood bark floor and a bench for seating surrounded by unusual ferns, orchids and bromeliads.

Kempe DeWitte was the landscape designer, but the Yoders were the moving force.

Mostly tropicals with some succulents form the gardens which change with the season as well as the shape of the patio.

An apricot tree was retained for sentimental reasons. Steve planted the pit almost 12 years ago and it has grown to shade the patio!

A "Balboa" shaped swimming pool is surrounded by concrete decking wide enough to contain a redwood base, tiled-top table weighing 1,000 pounds. The barbecue was built into the exterior of the interior fireplace by adding two flues.

When the torches are lighted each evening, encircling the patio, the Yoders' gardens truly become the Kauai of Garden Grove!

Notorious Woman Spy Still Snarls at U. S.

By Hoyt McAfee

EARLY-DAY Nazis and their new-style recruits in West Germany fondly regard Ruth Kuehn —one of the world's most dangerous women—as their guiding star. They remember that in the months preceding Dec. 7, 1941, she —one of Hitler's chosen "pure-Aryyns" — spied for the Japanese at Pearl Harbor. In so doing, she—perhaps as much as any one person—contributed to the disaster America suffered on that "Day of Infamy."

As of today, Ruth Kuehn —a slightly-graying, but still attractive woman in her mid-fifties—wields a potent influence among members of West Germany's National Democratic (Nazi-style) Party. Ruth's name is listed nowhere as belonging to this group. Its leaders feel that she can be more effective by remaining quietly and anonymously in the background, her role being that of an "elder stateswoman" (Nazi version).

Like creeping sickness, the National Democratic (Nazi) Party continues to gain greater political power throughout West Germany. Its members, urged on by Ruth Kuehn, deride German Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger (himself a onetime Nazi) as a "fink" and "renegade." On the other hand, they speak admiringly of Martin Borman, the high-ranking Nazi who has been missing and widely sought since the fall of Berlin in 1945.

AS FOR Ruth Kuehn, the woman of mystery in the new Nazi Party's inner councils, it would be hard to find a more implacable enemy of America than this embittered woman.

Her hatred of America, its institutions and its role as a world power, dates back to the early 1930s. Adolf Hitler had risen to the helm of leadership in Nazi Germany and Ruth—a native of that country—quickly became one of his most fanatical followers.

On two occasions she participated in the lurid sex revels at Hitler's hideaway mountain retreat. Joseph Goebbels, the Nazi propaganda minister, lost no time in adding Ruth to his stable of playmates. This fickle Lothario's technique was to love his women, then leave them.

But since Ruth was adept in the art of intrigue, Goebbels persuaded her to attend Prof. Hans Haushofer's school of espionage at Munich. There, promising students were taught the skills, finesse and skulduggery of espionage. Upon graduation, the best qualified ones were dispatched to hot spots around the world as secret agents of the German Reich.

AT THE urging of Rudolph Hess, Hitler's top-ranking aide, a few of the graduates volunteered for service with Japan, Nazi Germany's ally. Goebbels convinced Ruth that it would be to her advantage to accept a spying assignment in Honolulu. This was his pitch:

"Listen, lovely fraulein—I'll have your stepfather (Dr. Otto Kuehn) and your mother (Frau Friedel Kuehn) accompany you to Honolulu. You're to send secret reports to Kempei Tai (Japanese espionage in Tokyo) and to our central intelligence bureau in Berlin.

"You'll be doing your fatherland—and Der Fuhrer—a great service. Our ally, Japan, will reward you generously. Already I've received a down payment of $70,000 from the Japanese for you.

"After you start fulfilling your assignment in Honolulu, a Japanese diplomat will meet you and deliver the remaining payment—$30,000—for your services. Go to it, Lovely one! I'm counting on you."

After arriving in happy-go-lucky Hawaii Nei, Ruth Kuehn and her stepfather and mother made acquaintances easily. Their popular parties drew a mingling of army and navy officers. A procession of the younger ones took Ruth swimming, sunbathing and on motor trips around Oahu.

BY MAKING discreet inquiries and keeping her ears open, Ruth rounded up bits of incidental intelligence for her masters (the Japanese and Germans). Once, her mother acted as courier, made a trip to Tokyo listed as a "tourist," and delivered the accumulation of information to Kempei Tai and Japanese Naval Intelligence.

Soon thereafter Ruth Kuehn received this secret message: "Begin Operation East Wind." There it was—the tip-off that the Japanese intended to go ahead with their long-planned air raid on Pearl Harbor. Their timetable called for this to come off early in December —on or near Dec. 7 (1941).

In response to that directive, Ruth and her mother moved to Pearl Harbor and opened a beauty salon for Navy wives. As it turned out, they were both skilled beauticians and good listeners. Because of their popularity with customers, their business began to boom.

In the let-your-hair-down atmosphere of Ruth's beauty salon, her well-informed customers (mostly wives of high-ranking U.S. Navy officers) gabbed freely and divulged information about ship movements. No mistaking it, Ruth was the answer to a Hollywood producer's dream of what a female spy should look like.

HER STRIKING good looks, poise and sex appeal made her so. Yet like any skillful agent, she concentrated on Big Game: Officers and informants in possession of military and naval secrets hot off the griddle. As a further mark of her skill, she granted her sex favors only when that served a vital purpose.

To guard against any slip of the tongue, Ruth abstained from alcoholic drinks during her love trysts with U.S. Navy officers at Pearl Harbor. It was during her sleep-around sessions that she culled her Golden Nuggets —the revealing secrets about ship movements and the inner defenses at Pearl Harbor.

At the earliest possible moment, thereafter, she sped her findings off—in code—to Kempei Tai (espionage control) in Tokyo. Admiral Yamamoto and his war plotters back in Japan greeted Ruth Kuehn's

HARMONY WILL reign at Knott's Berry Farm Saturday as various chapters of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America get together to compete in the fourth annual "Notes at Knott's" event.

The main theater will be the Covered Wagon Camp where there will be a continuous all-day song festival following registration at 10 a.m. The finale will be a combination chorus of all Barbershoppers present under the direction of Don Lick of the host chapter from Orange.

Last year's "Notes" attracted more than 250 Southland Barbershoppers. More are expected this year.

In addition to the "Covered Wagon Camp" program there will be "woodshedding," a kind of musical lottery of quartets.

SPEBSQSA, Inc. — Barbershoppers — is an open organization which extends a cordial invitation to men interested in singing. Orange chapter men will have an information booth to provide literature on local chapters and answer questions.

Many members and their families intend to make this occasion an all-day outing. The event is free to the public.

"Woodshedders" make with impromptu harmony during last year's "Notes at Knott's" program of barbershop quartets and choruses.

Tails With a Foreign Twist

lowed by two more of the same. This white "lid" on each Douglas plane provides the backdrop for the insignia of each airline and also serves as a reflective shield which helps to maintain comfortable cabin temperatures.

EACH NEW DOUGLAS DC8 and DC9 is carefully measured and marked for the particular airline it will serve; every succeeding airliner purchased by the company will be identically marked.

Out at Douglas, where the possibility of human error has been taken into account with a variety of checks and double checks, the system still isn't foolproof. Painters tell about one job in which a painter reversed the order of color in horizontal striping on the two huge tail sections. When the rudder was fitted to the stabilizer, the error was quickly noted and quickly remedied (but not without some embarrassment to the painter who goofed).

Once in a while, the Douglas painters draw an assignment that would figure to test even the best of their number. One such case occurred two years ago when the Dutch airline firm KLM and Venezuela's VIASA company agreed on sharing a routing between Europe and South America. Douglas obliged the two companies by painting one side of a huge DC8 in the sedate blue of KLM, the other side in the cha-cha orange of VIASA. The Douglas paint crews, it is said, didn't sleep nights until the big jet was checked, double-checked and triple-checked for accuracy, then sent winging on its colorful way.

None of the Douglas painters ever saw that KLM-VIASA jet again. Few of them have ever seen the Air Afrique, Philippine Airlines or Swissair planes that leave the huge painting hangars off Lakewood Boulevard. It doesn't bother them. They know—as do the persons who gave the city its nickname—that Long Beach has sent a bit of its "International City" image abroad in the form of superb aircraft, beautifully "attired" for their owners.

information on NAUTA.

—M.M., Tustin

NAUTA had its beginning in medieval Holland. This Dutch surname developed from the archaic north German and Dutch word "nadha" meaning "gracious one." The Nauta armorial shield from Groningen, Holland, is silver, emblazoned with a three-masted sailing ship on a blue sea.

MISS RULE: May we learn about WAUGH?

—W.G., Long Beach

WAUGH evolved from the north English and Scottish word "waugh," describing the progenitor's home as being located near a "wall." This referred to an ancient ruined Roman wall which fortified the region against marauding robbers. The Waugh lineage were natives of Roxburghshire, southeast Scotland. Their armorial shield is blue, emblazoned with a gold stripe between three gold stars.

MISS RULE: Please give data on BOGEL for my school course.

—M.B., Long Beach

BOGEL, recorded in 13th century Germany, was originally spelled with an umlaut accent, two dots, over the letter "O." The source was the discontinued old German word "Bogo," a hero name meaning "bowman." To this was added the suffix "-el," the complete name signifying "young bowman." No armorial shield is in records for Bogel.

Woman Spy Still Snarls at U. S.

valuable reports from Honolulu with unabated joy.

To improve her usefulness she bought a pair of powerful binoculars. Unobtrusively she used them in her hilltop home to watch elements of the U.S. Pacific Fleet steam in and out of Pearl Harbor all through November and December of 1941. When Japanese raiding planes roared in over Pearl Harbor that morning 26 years ago (Dec. 7, 1941), Ruth Kuehn sent last-minute signals to the pilots via windowpane flashes.

THIS REPORTER, a witness to every agonizing moment of that tragedy, learned that officers of U.S. Naval Intelligence were at that moment speeding toward Ruth Kuehn's hilltop home. Furious over her treachery, they broke down the door and arrested a fuming and kicking Ruth.

They also took Dr. Otto Kuehn and Mrs. Kuehn into custody. Dr. Kuehn insisted, vehemently, that he was the ringleader, the master spy—and that Ruth was simply his messenger.

In a move to placate Naval Intelligence agents, he gave them the lowdown on German and Japanese spy networks in the Pacific and around the world. Later, a military court sentenced Dr. Otto Kuehn to 50 years' imprisonment at hard labor.

But so convincing was his plea in Ruth's behalf that she—and her mother—never stood trial. These two were interned for the duration of the Pacific war. Top ranking Navy officers who had unwittingly shared secrets with Ruth got off with a stiff lecture on the danger of "gabbing" while in the arms of a seductive woman!

AFTER THE war ended, Ruth Kuehn and her mother were permitted to return to West Germany and freedom. This reporter carried on a running conversation with the sullen ex-spy (Ruth) at the time of her departure. At one point her eyes flashed and she snapped out angrily:

"My arrest kept me from fleeing Honolulu in a Japanese submarine and spending the money I'd earned. But I'm proud of what I did. It cost the stupid Americans dearly!"

So spoke the femme fatale of espionage, Ruth Kuehn. She became a full-fledged spy for the Japanese (at Pearl Harbor) in August of 1941. Now, 26 years later, she's once again determined to give America the dirty end of the stick as a secret member of West Germany's revived Nazis.

Hell Broke Loose

the great financial institutions of lower Manhattan.

And so it went all through that horrible first day. At nightfall, fires could be seen all over the city, beacons of the violence that had prevailed and would continue.

A FRENZIED midnight conference was held in City Hall. Every newspaper in the city was screaming for Mayor Opdyke to "give the rabble grape and plenty of it." Opdyke, a bigoted man who had no understanding and little love for the poor of his city, gave the word. Cannons were moved into vital cross-sections. The riot, which had shown signs of fizzling out after one day, was inflamed to worse violence by the shortsighted mayor.

The next morning, trigger-happy militiamen who had been rushed into the city opened fire on any group they saw, whether innocent workmen or rioters. The battle was on in full sway.

In Hell's Kitchen, a huge crowd marched down 11th Avenue and wrecked a railroad depot and yards as federal soldiers rushed in, but the mob surrounded the troops and forced them to surrender their arms.

Barricades were erected by the rioters all over town. To smash them, the mayor swore in a force of "Volunteer Specials," mostly the sons of his peers. After being routed at the first barricade, however, the "Specials" never again led an attack. Instead, they would follow in the rear of federal troops and club to death any of the mob too badly wounded to resist.

AND SO IT WENT all that day, too, and the next and the next. An armory on Second Avenue was looted and burned. By the fourth day of violence, despite terrible losses, the mob actually controlled all of Manhattan except the extreme southern tip.

But now federal troops were pouring in, fresh from the battlefields of Pennsylvania and Virginia. Cannon with chain and grape shot were put in place. By nightfall of the fourth day, the deadly silence of defeat had fallen on the city—defeat for the rioters and, yes, defeat for the city itself. Nothing had been won by either side, and the only sound was the crackling of flames.

Two separate acts ended the violence on the fifth day. One was a gentle and spiritual deed; the other was an act of outright hypocrisy.

Mayor Opdyke prevailed upon Roman Catholic Archbishop John Hughes to address a great crowd of rioters from the balcony of his residence. The archbishop was the most beloved man in the Irish community, and his word was absolute law to the faithful. After he pleaded with the mob, citing the senseless slaughter of 4,000, the people straggled home, back to the tenements and the shanties.

BUT PERHAPS they would not have obeyed even the archbishop had it not been for an act of the Board of Aldermen that governed the city. The politicians announced that they had pushed through, in emergency session, an appropriation of $2.5 million to pay the $300 draft exemption for any man who needed it, and to provide an equal figure to the family of any volunteer. Hearing of this, the mob reasoned that it had won its demands and there was no further impetus to riot.

A few days later, Mayor Opdyke arrogantly vetoed the entire appropriation. Only the federal troops that now swarmed all over the city, and the weariness of the poor, prevented still another and far worse outbreak.

Five million dollars worth of damage had been inflicted on the city, a tremendous sum for those days. The draft proceeded without further trouble. New slums were constructed to replace any that might have been burned. City funds were used mostly to rebuild the Fifth Avenue clubs and cafes that had been wrecked.

Mayor Opdyke retired a few months later and his supporters tendered him a testimonial dinner. Among the toasts offered that night was one in which he was credited with refusing to give in to "the murder, robbery, incendiarism organized by northern allies of southern treason, and sustained by ignorance, cowardly depravity and a savage brutality which would disgrace the hyena . . ."

Many years later, Archbishop Hughes was to write that the mayor never did understand what really motivated the draft riot of 1863. To his dying day, Opdyke consoled himself with the belief that the entire episode had been organized and run by a Confederate sabotage corps.

IF experience is a key ingredient in successful, though huge, catered dinners, the Edgewater Inn has it, in a man whose scatter-gun talents seem always right on target.

Perhaps it's because new catering manager Edward Lohe served during World War II with the U.S. Army antiaircraft artillery?

The handsome Lohe began apprenticeship 40 years ago as a bellboy in his native Germany, launching a career in which he has shepherded President Eisenhower's own table at El Dorado Country Club, Palm Desert.

"I have served many important people," says Lohe, with clipped accent and obvious pride. Lohe, 10 years the maitre d' at New York's Statler Hilton Hotel, has multiple reasons to be proud. His hobby is elaborate hand lettering and he holds copyright on a particular brand of "Original American Script." He letters exquisite menus in various ink shades. And, though he served President Eisenhower's dinner, he serves President Abraham Lincoln's memory, with a book, purchaseable at Disneyland's Lincoln exhibit. It is a masterpiece of Lohe script.

Proud of his adopted heritage, Lohe has written a soon-to-be-published song, "Freedom's Flag," and belongs to the American Society of Composers. He has several patriotic awards, including the Valley Forge Gold Medal.

But you can't eat honors and his career centers on keeping groups of all sizes enjoying the best of one of man's greatest pleasures.

He stresses complete rapport with his executive chef, Barney Oliver, who is also a prideful pro when it comes to cuisine. Combine their talents and every face in a crowd of 750 can be spectacularly fed.

Envision this: a piledriver slams groundwork for renovation into the parking lot at 6400 E. Pacific Coast Highway, but inside, it is all muted music; the heavenly clink of iced salad service; the seductive crunch of fresh spinach greens and garlic cheesebread being dined upon. (One doesn't just eat. One dines.)

Whether it's a convention of 500 starved Sumo wrestlers or two cooing honeymooners, the Edgewater can supply each person with a glorious, gourmet-grade Chateaubriand. The classic cut of beef is always dressed formally in its true, traditional trimmings.

Q. I understand that Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. will shortly seek a divorce so as to be free to marry Jackie Kennedy. Is there any truth to that story? — D. D., McLean, Va.

A. At this writing the Arthur Schlesingers have separated. A reconciliation is a probability. A romance between Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. and Jackie Kennedy is not.

SOPHIA LOREN AND HUSBAND CARLO PONTI

Q. Was Cary Grant ever madly in love with Sophia Loren? Did he once offer to chuck his career and marry her?—Bern Altman, Chicago, Ill.

A. Grant fell in love with Loren when she was in Hollywood living with Carlo Ponti. He offered to marry her, but never to chuck his career. She preferred Ponti to whom she is now married.

Q. If an American serviceman marries a foreign bride, is it true that he cannot serve as an honor guard for the President?—Matthew Conklin, Ft. Bragg, N.C.

A. New security regulations bar servicemen whose wives are not U.S. citizens from any duty such as bandsman, honor guard, or aircraft crew for President Johnson.

Q. I was shocked at a recent teachers' convention to learn in what low esteem our Secretary of State Dean Rusk is held. Why is this?—Mrs. J. R. Logan, Rochester, N.Y.

A. It is based largely on Rusk's various explanations of our involvement in Vietnam. Although time has proven him wrong, particularly on his concept of monolithic communism, he remains intransigent. Since Rusk was for many years a teacher, his refusal to admit error under any circumstances, seems to many to reflect a closed, unprofessional mind. In some educational circles, particularly Ivy League schools, he is regarded as intellectually dishonest or academically unbright, or both. Those who agree with Rusk's Vietnam policy, on the other hand, are sure that he is one of the greatest Secretaries of State the nation has ever had.

Q. Is it true that when Judy Garland was married to Vincente Minnelli, she broke his nose one night because he snored too loudly?—Helen Caruthers, Columbus, Ohio.

A. Yes, according to her own admission, "his snoring drove me mad."

Q. When will that three-hour news-of-the-week program sponsored by the Ford Foundation, hit educational TV?—Ron Osgood, Providence, R.I.

A. The first program is scheduled for Nov. 5.

Q. Bing Crosby's oldest son, Gary—does he have a drinking problem?—Marsha Catlett, Oakland, Calif.

A. He did, and he's succeeded in beating it.

Q. They say the status automobile in Hollywood is a Rolls Royce. Which stars have one?—Joseph Greenson, Phoenix, Ariz.

A. Jerry Lewis, Jack Benny, Lucille Ball, Phyllis Diller, Andy Williams, Raquel Welch, Milton Berle, Peter Falk, Tony Curtis.

Q. Two questions about Harry Belafonte: (1) Is he really getting $50,000 to open the Statler Hilton Plaza in Miami Beach? (2) Is he supporting the children of Martin Luther King? — Neil Anderson, St. Paul, Minn.

A. Belafonte is getting $50,000. He has established a trust fund to assure the education of the children of Martin Luther King.

Q. How old is actress Helen Hayes?—Toni Bryan, Boston, Mass.

A. 70.

Q. Here in Idaho we've had two men, Gene Mileck and Ronald Delbert Rankin, sponsoring a recall movement to get Sen. Frank Church removed from the Senate because they disagree with his position on Vietnam. Who are these two men and who finances them?—T. L., Pocatello, Ida.

A. Gene Mileck is a dogcatcher and house painter from St. Maries. Rankin from Anaheim, Calif., is a paid political promoter of right wing causes, who filed for bankruptcy in Idaho last October, declaring debts of $23,377 and assets of $792. He is financed by William Penn Patrick, 37; of San Rafael, Calif., manufacturer of Holiday Magic cosmetics. Patrick was recently nominated as vice-presidential candidate of the so-called "Patriotic Party," running with George Wallace of Alabama for President. Patrick was nominated by Robert De Pugh, leader of the Minutemen who was arrested and convicted in 1966 of violating the Federal Firearms Act. Patrick is also financing the campaign of Max Rafferty, California educator who plans to run against Sen. Thomas Kuchel.

QUEEN ELIZABETH AND PRINCE PHILIP

Q. Can you tell me how long Elizabeth and Philip have been married? I would also like to know the relationship between Lord Louis Mountbatten and Philip's mother, Princess Alice. — K. T. Johnson, Deal, N.J.

A. Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip were married in November, 1947. Mountbatten is a brother to Princess Alice. It was he who arranged the marriage between his nephew, Philip and Elizabeth.

Q. What is the reenlistment rate of Negroes in the armed forces as opposed to the white reenlistment rate?—Nate Ashford, Detroit, Mich.

A. Negro reenlistment rate: 45.7%; white reenlistment rate: 17%, as of June, 1967, for the Army.

Q. Darryl Zanuck has tried to make stars of the following protégées: Juliette Greco, Bella Darvi, Irina Demick, Marayat Andriane. He has failed in all cases. Now I am told he has a new French protégée. Her name, please.—Marvin Schwartz, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. Paris model Genevieve Gillaizeau.

Frank Sinatra and Joey Bishop (both wear toupees above) are undergoing hair transplants in Beverly Hills. A New York dermatologist has finished the scalp-grafting technique on Hugh Downs, MC of the TODAY TV program. In contrast to Sinatra and Bishop, who do not like to talk about their cosmetic surgery, Downs had his dermatologist appear on the TODAY show and explain the techniques in detail. Above photos show Downs before and after transplant. The operation is simple and painless, requires only a local anesthetic.

THE "IN" OPERATION FOR BALDNESS

by Lloyd Shearer

HOLLYWOOD.

Last year the "in" medical procedure for show business personalities and others interested in perpetuating the illusion of youth was wrinkle removal and breast enlargement via silicone injection.

This year the "stylish operation" is the hair transplant.

In entertainment circles a hairpiece is called a "rug," and people who use hairpieces are known as "rug-wearers."

The list of rug-wearers grows longer each year. It now includes Frank Sinatra, John Wayne, Fred MacMurray, Rex Harrison, Noel Coward, Ralph Edwards, George Maharis, Alan Arkin, Lee J. Cobb, Tommy Smothers, Bing Crosby, Marlon Brando, Lorne Greene, Joey Bishop, Hugh Downs, Carl Reiner, Alec Guinness, Jimmy Stewart, Richard Harris, Bobby Darin, Fred Astaire, Charles Boyer, Gene Kelly, Jack Paar, many others.

Several of these men—Frank Sinatra, Joey Bishop, and Hugh Downs are three who come quickly to mind—are undergoing or have undergone the hair transplanting procedure, convinced that this will more adequately serve their purpose than the wearing of a hairpiece.

This procedure was developed by Dr. Norman Orentreich, associate clinical professor of dermatology, New York University School of Medicine. In the past five years an estimated 500 physicians throughout the country, many of them expert dermatologists and some not-so-expert general practitioners, have adopted and adapted the Orentreich technique of scalp transplants.

Essentially this is a method of transplanting small patches of hair from the rear of the scalp, where hair usually lasts longest, to the front of the scalp which is bald or from which hair is thinning.

It is a relatively simple office procedure requiring only a local anesthetic and a skin biopsy punch, which resembles a miniature cookie-cutter.

In Frank Sinatra's case, whenever he has the time or isn't out of town on location, the vocalist visits a dermatologist on Bedford Drive in Beverly Hills.

Sinatra, whose father is as bald as a billiard ball, began to lose his hair prematurely 20 years ago. Despite constant hair treatments and regular scalp massages, it continued to fall out. About ten years ago it became necessary for the crooner to wear a hairpiece for professional reasons. Without hair, Sinatra looks like a worried bookkeeper.

He realizes that he is now too bald for hair transplants to give him a completely new head of hair. "All he wants," says one friend, "is enough of his own hair up front at the crown so that he doesn't have to wear a rug every time he goes out in public. Wearing a rug all the time bugs him."

SINATRA TRANSPLANT

When Sinatra reports for a transplant, his physician begins by clipping some of the hair from the posterior portion of his scalp where it is still growing. This area provides the donor sites. The front of the scalp into which the hair plugs are to be transplanted provides the recipient sites.

The donor and recipient sites are washed. Then a local anesthetic is applied to both areas.

The physician takes his cookie-cutter, the 3.5 mm. biopsy punch, punches out a number of excisions from the bald scalp. These he discards.

He then punches out an equal number of follicle-bearing plugs from the donor sites, making sure that he doesn't cut across the hair follicles. He goes with the grain, so to speak.

After these plugs have been trimmed and cleaned, he transplants them in the recipient sites, making sure to position them carefully so that the hair grows in one pattern and blends with the surrounding hair.

I have examined the work of some doctors who do not position their transplants carefully enough, and the result is frequently an uneven crown with hairs growing in every direction, plus a bumpy scalp.

Sinatra's dermatologist is one of the best in the nation. His work is methodical and expert, and eventually Frank, if he continues the treatments, will end up with a natural-looking crown of hair.

After the physician transplants his plugs, there is some bleeding at the sites. This usually stops within 5 to 20 minutes. By then a fibrin clot has formed which helps anchor the grafts. When the bleeding has stopped, the donor and recipient sites are dressed, and Sinatra leaves the office.

In a few hours a scab, or what doctors call a crust, forms over each graft. These scabs fall off in two or three weeks.

Sometimes a swelling develops on the forehead a day after treatment, but it's painless and quickly disappears.

The six to 12 hairs in each transplant do not continue to grow. Generally they fall out sometime between the second and eighth week after the treatment.

The follicles in the transplant do not bear any hair for a period of 10 to 20 weeks. Then the new hairs start to come in, growing exactly as they did in their former locations at the back of the head. It takes from 2 to 3 months after autografting for the regrowth of hair.

This punch-out procedure is repeated to cover other bald sites. It is limited by the amount of donor area a patient has, because once a plug is taken from the rear of the scalp, no hair grows there, and the site has to be covered over by hair growing from surrounding follicles.

The number of transplants that can be performed in one office treatment depends upon the physician and patient. Usually, 10 is the limit, although I have known some physicians to do as many as 20 on a patient in one sitting. In fact, the trend now is to more rather than fewer grafts in one office session.

Although an increasing number of physicians are performing hair transplants — a relatively simple yet highly remunerative operation — few are willing to discuss it. They do not want their local county medical associations to accuse them of self-advertising. As a group, doctors not only insist upon high ethical standards; they are also envy-ridden and most suspicious of any colleague who gets himself publicized through self-promotion.

One physician who's performed hundreds of transplants and is willing to answer questions concerning the procedure is Dr. Robert Berger of the Orentreich Medical Group in New York City. One of Dr. Berger's prominent patients is Hugh Downs, emcee of the Today TV program. While his hairline was being changed, Downs received so many letters of inquiry from his TV viewers that he practically forced the reluctant Dr. Berger to appear on the Today show and explain the cosmetic surgery.

Following his appearance on the program, Berger was flooded with hundreds of phone calls from balding men, wanting to know what he could do for them.

Here are some of the questions most frequently asked, and here are Dr. Berger's replies:

How many men in this country would you say have already had hair transplant treatment?

"I'd estimate about 10,000 since 1956."

Are most of your patients younger men who have just started to grow bald or older men who are pretty nearly all bald?

"They are mostly younger men under the age of 40 or 45. The older men are better adjusted to their baldness. They've lived with it a longer time and have adapted themselves."

The cost of the treatment varies, of course, with the degree of baldness. But what would you say is the average cost?

"That's difficult to estimate. It varies throughout the country. I'd say from about $4 to $25 per transplant, depending on the doctor who's doing it. The average number of transplants is about 200, so I would say that the entire treatment about equals the cost of a good toupee and its replacements over a period of years."

Is this one of those operations that you have to pay for in advance?

"Generally that's true in all cosmetic surgery, and it's the practice here."

Is the treatment painful?

"No, it is not. There have been rumors about it, but they're not true. We use a local anesthetic and it's most effective. Pain, of course, is a relative thing. Some people start feeling pain just at the sight of a needle. But in this procedure there is no need for any sedation. There's just a little soreness which quickly disappears."

Are most of your patients from the world of show business?

"No, they're from every walk of life."

My degree of baldness is just about what Hugh Downs' was. There's a recession at the temples. I think they call it the "M" hairline. About how many sessions would I need?

"There again that's difficult to say. Each case is different. If you insist on a guess I'd say about seven or eight sessions would do the trick."

Isn't the operation unsightly? I mean after it's performed, doesn't your scalp become a mass of scabs?

"Scabs form, and they're conspicuous until they fall away; it takes between two and three weeks for that to happen. But some men deal with this by wearing a hairpiece for a while, then gradually, as the hair comes in, they discard the hairpiece."

Can you transplant hair to the head from other parts of the body, say, like the chest?

"It can be done, but such transplants aren't practical. They take, and the hair will grow, but the follicles in the area of the chest are too widely spaced to begin with, so that when they're transplanted you don't get a good cosmetic effect."

What are the limitations of the hair transplant technique?

"Certainly, it's not for everyone. It's not for the man who's almost completely bald so that there is very little to transplant. It's not for the man who needs a permanent hair replacement. The transplanted hair will fall out according to its own genetic time schedule. It's not for the man who wants a 'complete new head of hair.' It's for the man who's very much interested in his appearance, who needs hair for his occupation and his psychological well-being. It is by no means the definitive answer to male baldness."

These are candidates for hair transplants. They are known in Hollywood as "rug wearers."

As yet science has been unable to develop a cure for male pattern baldness. When and if it does, the solution will be medical not surgical, and it will likely have much to do with male hormones.

There are many excellent research studies of eunuchs which show that once a man is castrated, he stops losing his hair. There is some inexplicable characteristic about the male hormone which causes baldness, and yet in a recent experiment, Dr. C. M. Papa, a dermatologist at the University of Pennsylvania, tried rubbing testosterone cream into the bald scalps of 21 men, and 16 of them showed some improvement, growing fuzz. Testosterone is a powerful male hormone which is not practical for general use in baldness, but apparently it has both a beneficial and harmful effect on the 100,000 follicles in the average man's scalp.

WHAT CAUSES BALDNESS

Science suspects that there are two major factors in addition to androgenic hormones in the development of typical male pattern baldness. Possibly the most important is heredity, a susceptibility inherited from either the maternal or paternal side of the family.

The second is the age of the man in which baldness starts. Almost all men lose hair with advancing age, but those men who are destined to lose most of their hair do it early in the game. Frequently they start to shed at age 19.

General health, nutritional deficiency, inadequate blood supply of the crown areas of the scalp have nothing to do with ordinary male pattern baldness. Hair transplants have proven that conclusively, since one small plug of scalp can be transferred from one area to another and will heal and produce hairs despite the surrounding bald area into which it has been transplanted. Thus the vast majority of so-called "hair restorers" which are advertised as "revitalizing, stimulating, restoring, nourishing," etc., are worthless where the typical pattern of common male hair loss is concerned.

Yet men are extremely sensitive about their baldness and will do almost anything to hide or correct it. Gen. John J. Pershing massaged his head with dry cleaning fluid. Julius Caesar used a variety of fruit juices, finally gave up and wore a laurel wreath. Woodrow Wilson, one of our more brilliant Presidents, succumbed to years of fruitless head massage. John D. Rockefeller decided in his old age that a hairpiece was the best solution.

Today, however, the latest "in" technique is the hair transplant. It takes time, and it's expensive, but where male vanity is concerned, no price is too high.

"ROSIE" CASALS

5 Feet 2 Inches of Tennis Fight

BY HERBERT KUPFERBERG

COVER BY BEN ROSS

FOREST HILLS, N.Y.

Rosemary Casals says she decided to become the world's No. 1 woman tennis player when she was 9½ years old. Admittedly that's an early age to make so momentous a decision, but right now it looks as if Rosemary will reach her goal — maybe this week here, where she is now playing in the women's national singles championship.

Rosie, as she is universally known in the tennis world, is one of the youngest and smallest players ever to appear in the nationals. She's 18, stands 5 feet, 2¼ inches, weighs 115. At the beginning of the current tournament she was ranked third among American women players, behind Billie Jean King and Nancy Ritchie, and eighth in the world.

"I don't hesitate to predict that she'll be a great player with a little more experience," says Bill Luffler, the "pro" at Forest Hills' West Side Tennis Club and past president of the Professional Lawn Tennis Association.

Her game is exciting — slam-bang, never-give-up.

"She'll take a tumble and the next second be up at the net, firing away," Luffler notes. "She tries real toughies when she doesn't have to. And she makes them!"

The crowds love Rosie, especially when her ferocious attack topples a big-name opponent.

"She's spectacular, but her game is sound," Luffler adds. "She only needs to improve her volley and learn to slow down just a little."

A little more than a year ago Rosemary Casals was a high school girl in San Francisco, playing mostly in local and state tournaments. Now she travels around the world, cast in a starring role at all the big international matches.

She learned her tennis the hard way, playing on public courts and with no instructor other than her father. Thus she developed a natural, uninhibited style of play.

Born a Natural

Rosie knows she's a natural, but refuses to admit that makes it easier for her. "Some people are born with things, and maybe I was born with tennis in me," she says. "But sometimes it's harder for people to succeed when they have ability, just because things do come easily to them. They think 'Why should I go out and practice when I know I have it?' But just having it isn't enough. You have to go out and work for it, too."

Young as she is, Rosemary Casals has been working for it for a long time. She was 9 years old when she was first led out to a San Francisco public court by her father, Manuel, a native of the Central American nation of El Salvador who came to the U.S. about 50 years ago. The Casals family (distantly related, Rosie says, to the great Spanish cellist Pablo Casals, whom she has never met) wasn't affluent. Rosie's father, who is now 72, ran a used car lot in San Francisco and took up tennis as recreation. He was a natural athlete, having played a lot of soccer in his youth, and a natural teacher, too. Six months after he began instructing her, Rosie was playing in her first children's tournament, and while she was still attending San Francisco's George Washington High School had attained national ranking.

Since her graduation in 1966, Rosemary has spent full time on the tennis circuit, playing in tournaments in Europe, Africa, Australia, and South America. "It has been a big change in my life," she says. "There's no school to interfere with my tennis, and I like it that way. One of these years, maybe when I'm in my late 20's, I want to go back to school to study medicine. But right now, I'm kind of stuck with tennis."

Eighteen-year-old Rosemary Casals' scrambling, go-get-'em type of play has won fans and friends for her around the world. Here she makes a backhand return in a Wimbledon match.

"Rosie" likes to work with youngsters, like this group at Frank Brennan's Tennis Center, Upper Saddle River, N.J. At right is Larry King, husband of Rosie's rival, Billie Jean King.

To Rosemary, this means practicing four to six hours "just about every day of the year" whether there's a match coming up or not. "Sure, you get yourself all worked up for something like Forest Hills," she says. "But basically it's the same training and workouts all year. You can't cram for the big match."

In tournaments, Rosie almost always emerges as the people's choice. She is a particular favorite of the kids in the audiences. She's frank enough to acknowledge that she likes having the crowd on her side, too. "You can't help but be conscious of the people in the stands," she says. "When you know they're with you, it's an asset. It makes you feel better."

'Diamond in the Rough'

Dynamic as she is in action, off the court Rosie tends to be shy and silent when meeting strangers. "You have to figure her as a diamond in the rough," says one veteran coach who has followed her career closely. "Some people think she's surly when they first meet her, but she's really not. She's a sweet girl, always ready to help others with their games, to appear before groups interested in tennis, and especially to work with kids."

Either at home or playing the tournament circuit, Rosie is far from a recluse. "I'm not boy-crazy," she says, "but I like to go out with my friends." She admits to playing "a little guitar and piano" and adds, "If there's a party, I'll be there."

Her closest friend happens to be one of her keenest rivals, Billie Jean King, who is five years older. They help each other with their games during practice sessions, but as Rosemary puts it, "When we're out there playing each other, we know what to do." Billie Jean has been playing longer, but Rosemary has scored an increasing number of victories over her lately. More than beating each other, however, the girls like to team up in doubles. They're ranked as the nation's No. 1 women's doubles combination by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association.

Rosie Casals and Billie Jean King represent a kind of new breed among American tennis players in general. Both learned their games on the public concrete courts of the West Coast, rather than on the lawns of the Eastern private clubs. Neither had private instruction until they were experts, and the careers of both demonstrate anew that tennis has become a sport for all the people rather than the private pastime of a few.

Says Rosemary Casals: "It's a great game. It's given me a chance to play, to travel and to see things. If I had to give advice to youngsters starting out in tennis, I'd tell them to practice and to make sure they really want it. If you want something bad enough, you'll make it."

Like Rosie.

The Labor Movement's Old Grouch

BY JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Not long ago, a chauffeured black Cadillac rolled up to the southeast entrance to the White House. A guard, recognizing the passenger, waved it through the gate. A few moments later, a bear of a man piled out of the front seat where he had been riding in the copilot's spot. Scowling and chomping on a cigar, he stalked into the Executive Mansion, trailing puffs of smoke behind.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, had arrived for a routine conference with the President of the United States.

With another Labor Day coming up tomorrow and the 73-year-old labor czar not the least disposed to retire, other labor luminaries are asking privately whether Meany is still the right man to speak for them at the White House.

They wonder, too, whether he should represent the 13.5 million members of the AFL-CIO on Capitol Hill. The time has passed when Congress will jump at the bark of a tough labor boss. Meany still has the bark, but the response is now a cool shrug.

There is also growing concern inside the labor movement that Meany, who looks, acts, and talks like a backroom politician complete with the omnipresent cigar, may be hurting the image of organized labor with the public. In this affluent age, few Americans are disturbed over the plight of downtrodden workers, and some have the mistaken notion that all union leaders are racketeers. There is nothing in Meany's grizzled features to dissuade them.

Finally, younger labor leaders are worried that the old curmudgeon, a stereotype of the labor boss of the 1920's, has no appeal to the sophisticated, young, white-collar force which now makes up about half of the American labor market. Meany himself has admitted that the unions are failing to organize this new force. The AFL-CIO has seven-eighths of America's 18 million union members, but there are 32 million non-union members, most of them white-collar. The tactics that used to sway factory laborers won't always work with clerks, salesmen, and accountants.

Meany's friends say, sure, he's tough, but it takes a strong leader to hold the AFL-CIO together; sure, he's a backroom operator, but who is better qualified to deal with politicians? Anyway, they say, Congress would be down on organized labor no matter who was in command. As for the white-collar workers, no labor leader has come up with an approach that will draw them en masse into the union ranks.

Sure, George has his faults, his friends conclude, but who is there to replace him? A dozen hands shoot up from the opposition, but they are invisible hands, for George Meany doesn't like anyone to cross him.

Likely successor

Most often mentioned as a successor is the United Auto Workers' Walter Reuther, Meany's archenemy. He has more vision and more imagination and is more articulate than Meany, labor leaders generally agree. But they question whether Reuther has the power to pull off some of his imaginative proposals.

Another who could step into Meany's shoes is the Retail Clerks' James Suffridge, who has built up a lively, modern union that has come closest to attracting the white-collar crowd. But Suffridge is far too loyal to Meany ever to challenge the old man for leadership.

Another possible successor, the Steelworkers' I. W. Abel, is cast too much in Meany's own image. Both Abel and Meany have sharp minds and uncluttered logic. But they have never been accused of being intellectuals. "The labor movement is hurting for strong intellectual leadership," admits an AFL-CIO official.

For Meany's part, despite his 73 years, he doesn't seem to be searching for a successor. He is telling one and all that he never felt better. "He'll die before he retires," predicts one union chief.

Is Meany as mean as he looks? What is he really like, the man behind the image?

Let's go back to 1952. The scene is a gray November day in Coshocton, O. Leaders of the American Federation of Labor, then separate from the Congress of Industrial Organizations, have just left the funeral of William Green, their chief for 38 years, who died at age 82. As they are about to board the train, Meany bluntly announces that the Bakery Workers' William Schnitzler will be elected AFL secretary-treasurer the following day in Washington.

There are astonished gasps, followed by indignant and angry objections from the Old Guard. But the election is held the next day, and Schnitzler is elected. He's now secretary-treasurer of the merged federation.

Meany hasn't mellowed with the years. Out of the thick cigar smoke, the heavy-lidded gray eyes blinking through horn-rimmed glasses, he barks and grumps and snorts. His conversation is terse and tough, sprinkled with occasional cusswords, in the Bronx-accented language of the plumber he once was. He seldom, however, shouts. He simply turns cold when he's angry and ignores his annoyer as if the person didn't exist.

"I would rather be called on the carpet by McClellan than Meany," says one union leader, referring to the wrathful Sen. John McClellan (D-Ark.), the scourge of labor racketeers.

"Meany's a direct, blunt, outspoken person," admits an admirer, Evelyn Dubrow, lobbyist for the International Ladies' Garment Workers. "He doesn't use subterfuge."

A friend, who stopped by Meany's home unexpectedly on a recent Sunday afternoon, got a different picture of him. The old labor tyrant appeared at the door in a net sport shirt, baggy shorts and high-topped shoes. (Because of a bad foot caused by a dropped wrench when he was a plumber.)

Meany growled cordially that he had been practicing on the organ and offered to play for his visitor. The world's most unlikely looking organist then settled before the organ, swung his hairy legs into place, sought out the pedals with the heavy shoes, clamped his teeth on a smoldering cigar and attacked the keyboard with his ham-sized hands. Out of the instrument, remarkably, came the most tender melodies. Then the organist began singing Irish songs to his own accompaniment. The voice that went with the surly face and fat cigar should have been raucous, but it came out an astonishingly clear, melodic tenor.

"When Meany sings Galway Bay," says one who has heard him perform at intimate parties, " there isn't a dry eye in the house."

Meany's favorite Sunday recreation, however, is to load his grandchildren (he now has 13) aboard a golf cart he won in a union raffle and take them for wild rides around his curving driveway.

He plays a fair game of golf, despite an arthritic hip that sent pains shooting through his leg for years. Surgeons finally located the trouble and inserted a stainless steel ball in the right hip-socket last year. Since then, although he still has an almost imperceptible limp, he has thrown away his cane and now walks with a new briskness. It has also improved his mental outlook, a friend says.

If Meany seems harsh, his background can account for it. The second of ten children born into a devout Irish Roman Catholic family in New York's Harlem, he grew up in the Bronx, at 16, quit school to apprentice as a plumber.

He married Eugenia McMahon, a garment worker, in 1919. Though he rose in the union movement from the ranks, he never walked a picket line in those days except when he dated Eugenia and walked with her while she was on strike.

Still a plumber

To this day, Meany can still handle a mean wrench and size up plumbing with a professional eye. At a recent party in a friend's house, he began barging around the basement thumping on the pipes. "Good plumbing," he said approvingly.

From his green-carpeted office on the top floor of the eight-story granite AFL-CIO building, across Lafayette Park from the White House, Meany has quick and frequent access to the President. But even Meany's admirers complain that his truculence seems to soften when he comes under Lyndon Johnson's spell.

"George helps Lyndon," says one labor leader, "but Lyndon doesn't reciprocate."

Meany puts in the eight-hour day that he has championed for union members. His chauffeur picks him up at his $75,000 red-brick home near the famed Burning Tree golf course in the Washington suburbs. They have a leisurely, traffic-free drive, arriving about 9:45 in the morning. About 6 p.m., he heads for home. During the day he smokes "at least" ten cigars, says an aide. (He used to prefer Havana cigars. But, an ardent anti-Communist, he switched to various American brands after Castro took over Cuba.)

Though Meany is still firmly in charge of the AFL-CIO, he is facing increasing opposition. After Labor Day, his opponents promise, he can expect a fierce debate on the charge that the Central Intelligence Agency poured funds into the AFL-CIO. They intend to expose not only how the money was channeled into "all levels" of the labor movement but how it was used. Meany, who said he had no time for a PARADE interview, has said typically that the charge was "a damned lie."

On the walls of his office hang the President's Freedom Medal and other awards, including 17 honorary university degrees. There are also two paintings by none other than George Meany. One is a placid lake scene, the other a peaceful farm scene. If they reflect Meany's desire for a quiet, tranquil retirement, you would never know it.

Have a Cookie, It's Breakfast

by Beth Merriman
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Orange juice, cereal, bacon and eggs—sounds like a good breakfast, doesn't it? And that is why we named these cookies "breakfast cookies," because all these foods are used in making them! You can eat them for breakfast, although you'll also find them good for a snack, or for dessert at any meal. The finished cookies are crisply delicious with a subtle flavor. Don't take our word for it, however; make them and see. It's the kind of cookie that demands seconds and thirds.

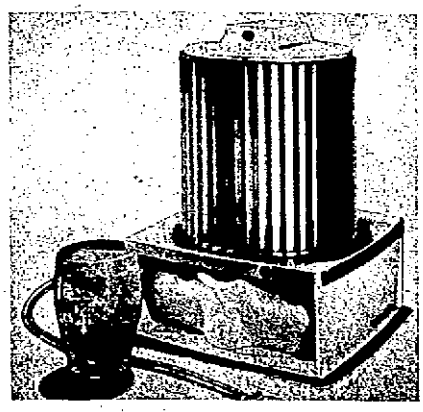

Breakfast Cookies

- 1 1/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup grape-nuts cereal
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 pound bacon, cooked and crumbled
- 1/2 cup soft-type margarine
- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel

Measure flour, sugar, grape-nuts and baking powder into mixing bowl; mix well. Add bacon, margarine, egg, orange juice concentrate, and peel. Mix until well blended. Drop by level tablespoons 2 inches apart on ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 350° for 10 to 12 minutes or until edges of cookies are lightly browned but cookies are still soft. Remove from baking sheet immediately. Makes 2 1/2 dozen cookies.

MAKE LIVING EASIER—TAKE A LOOK AT THESE SMART NEW IDEAS DESIGNED FOR YOUR HOME AND YOUR FAMILY ■ BY PETER DRYDEN

Water purifier: Here's an unusually compact appliance (above) that automatically converts any water, no matter how impure, into fresh distilled drinking water. The water, with all mineral impurities removed, is said to give new flavor to coffee, tea, soups, juice concentrates, and special diet formulas. No plumbing hookup is needed. The unit plugs in like a toaster, takes no more space than an electric mixer, turns out 1½ gallons a day. $49.95 postpaid. Home Safety Equipment Co., Dept. PP, 5206 Bridgeview Drive, Evansville, Ind. 47712.

Boat protector: When the time comes to lay up your boat for the winter, you can protect all metal accessories and fittings with a new liquid vinyl. When you brush it on a metal surface, it forms a tough, continuous skin that seals against corrosive action of salt water and extreme weather conditions. When it's time to put the boat back in the water, the protective coating peels off in one piece, taking with it any dirt and dust which may have been in joints, corners, and screw heads when the coating was first applied. A pint (enough for all chrome on a 25-foot boat): $5.95 in stores. Marine Development & Research Corp., Dept. PP, 381 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10016.

Something new in a shoe polisher: This electric polisher (above) uses two speeds—slow for applying polish, fast for buffing. It also has a magnetic feature that allows you to clean shoes, spread polish, and brush and buff without soiling your fingers. The attachments are picked up magnetically and released at the push of a button. Complete with wood chest containing storage drawers, footrest lid, applicators; brushes, buffers, mud brush and polish: $26.95. Ronson, Dept. PP, 1 Ronson Road, Woodbridge, N.J.

How low-income families can adopt children

by Sid Ross

Money subsidy bought this happiness: Adopted daughters Sandra and Wanda Bullock greet new daddy. Under new program Bullocks get $100 a month so they can support the girls.

CHICAGO, ILL.

"I know what 'adopt' is," says 8-year-old Wanda Bullock. "It means you take someone in to love who's got no mommy and daddy."

Wanda knows that she and her 7-year-old sister, Sandra, have found, after years of shuttling between orphanages and foster homes, parents who love them and a home of their own.

What the little girls don't know is that they are pioneers in a revolutionary concept of adoption—a system of paid subsidies for parents, which should enable many couples now barred from adoption by low incomes to take children permanently into their homes.

Economic considerations have hitherto played a decisive role among the public and private agencies that control adoptions. Most agencies won't allow poor people to adopt on a permanent basis. But they do use the foster-care system, whereby children board with a family which is paid expense money to care for them until permanent adoption —if it ever can be—is arranged. Often children go through a succession of foster homes until they reach age 18. This kind of subsidization is expensive to society in terms of dollars and cents, and even more costly to the children in terms of emotional tension and psychological upset.

The Chicago Child Care Society, a private, nonsectarian agency, is now trying to demonstrate that it makes more sense to subsidize adoptive parents on a permanent basis than to pay the higher price of foster care.

The idea of subsidized adoption, as C.C.C.S.'s director, Kenneth W. Watson, sees it, is to "help provide a good home for a child in a good family, where everything else is available except the money." Says Watson: "The usual pattern of a succession of foster-care homes and the resultant lack of permanence is far less desirable than a good adoptive home. In no situation should money—or lack of it — determine whether or not adoption takes place."

Wanda and Sandra are living proof that subsidized adoption can turn a tragic infancy into a happy childhood. The two little sisters were abandoned by their parents and given in guardianship to the Chicago Child Care Society in 1964. As with many parentless children, their path lay through orphanages and foster homes, and their story was written in their appearance — scrawny, skinny, wan, and painfully shy.

Had it not been for their economic status, the Bullocks might have been given a child for adoption years before. But previous applications to another Chicago agency brought the blunt reply that Mr. Bullock's income was too low. He is a truck loader by trade, a member of the Teamsters Union, who currently is earning $121 a week, of which $104 is take-home pay. "Even when the work is regular, we live with bills from week to week," says Mrs. Bullock, a patient, cheerful woman.

Undaunted by the refusal of one agency to let them have a child, the Bullocks three years ago legally adopted Charlie, the 16-year-old son of a relative. They also frequently boarded or gave day care to children of friends and neighbors. Then, at the age of 48, they decided to see if they could get approval for foster care of children.

C.C.C.S. thought the Bullocks would make good foster-care parents for Wanda and Sandy, and after an initial period of suspicion and fearfulness, the two little girls became happy and healthy members of the household, although only on a temporary basis.

Mrs. Bullock remembers how Wanda at first would scream in fright when she was separated even for a moment from her younger sister, how she would refuse to allow the bathroom door to be locked, how she pleaded for a light to be left on in the bedroom. But it wasn't long before the girls were calling the Bullocks "Mommy" and "Daddy" and talking openly about how they never wanted to leave their "new home."

Economic barrier

Sometime after the girls were settled down, their natural mother was located in another state and signed a paper releasing them for adoption — which of course would have meant the end of their stay as foster-care children at the Bullocks'. But neither Mr. and Mrs. Bullock nor the two girls wished to be separated. The only real bar to the possibility of permanent adoption was the Bullocks' economic level. So, Kenneth Watson began to think that this might be a perfect case with which to launch the C.C.C.S. subsidy program.

For their part, the Bullocks wanted to adopt the children, subsidy or not. "If they had taken the girls away from us, it would have been as if someone in the family had died," says Geneva Bullock. "We were planning to take them all on our own. We'd never heard of anything before like paying people money to help them adopt children."

And William Bullock adds: "It was an ache, not being able to have children of our own. I was willing to beg, borrow, or steal to get those two little girls. When they said they'd pay us $100 a month to keep them, I almost fell out of my chair. It's a darned good idea. We know friends who'd adopt children in a minute if this was done for them. They don't have big jobs or money in the bank, but they've got love and kindness. Kids don't need money, they need love."

Proud 2nd-grader Wanda demonstrates her reading skill to mother, Geneva Bullock.

Aside from the happiness it has brought to the parents and the children, the Bullock adoption case, according to Watson, makes sense from a sociological and economic standpoint. By the time Wanda and Sandra reach the age of 18, C.C.C.S. will have paid out between $10,000 and $15,000 for their care at a rate of $50 per month per child. This is considerably less than would have been expended at the going rate for foster-home care — the minimum payment runs $80 a month per child and is intended to cover food, clothing, and the other basic costs.

C.C.C.S. gives other, short-term forms of adoption subsidies in addition to its long-range program. It has a special-services subsidy, which is actually a contribution to provide such needs as legal or medical services, psychological treatment, and special education. It offers a time-limited subsidy, designed to help a family integrate the added expenses needed for care of a newly adopted child into a strained budget.

Other agencies have experimented with forms of limited subsidization. Philadelphia's Children's Aid Society recently began "Quasi-adoption," primarily for hard-to-place Negro children. It brings together children and prospective parents for a "tryout" period during which neither the agency nor family need make a final decision on adoption. Meanwhile the agency pays for the child's care. California's state welfare department and a private agency initiated a trial 12-month program to pay subsidies to families up to the time of actual adoption. The program was abandoned because most applicants had such low incomes that they would have needed extended support. Not long ago in New York state a bill calling for public funds for long-term subsidized adoption died in committee because several powerful legislators felt it would cost taxpayers more than foster care programs.

Family group: The Bullocks with son Charles, and two adopted girls. Before pilot project, Bullocks' $121-a-week income was too low to allow them to adopt.

The Chicago Child Care Society, which is supported by contributions, Community Fund, endowments, etc., is the only agency in the country with a long-term subsidization program. The pilot project began about two years ago. Of the first six children, four, including the Bullock girls, happened to be white. But the service is geared toward hard-to-place minority youngsters, especially Negroes.

The agency says it can afford to give long-term subsidies only on a "very limited basis." It feels strongly that adoption subsidies should be a public responsibility, paid from public funds. Watson supports his argument by pointing out the irony of federal, state, and county funds being available for dependent and neglected children only until such children are adopted. After that, the funds are cut off.

Federal officials, adoption agencies, and welfare authorities throughout the country are carefully watching the Chicago experiment, aware that a breakthrough in traditional adoption methods may be in the making. The United States Children's Bureau, a subdivision of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, says it "subscribes to the concept of subsidized adoption on the basis of an individual evaluation of a child's needs and the decision that the family can meet these needs in all areas, except the financial one."

The Child Welfare League of America has repeatedly called for new ways, including subsidization, to be explored to help provide homes for legally adoptable, but still unadopted, children.

Certainly on the basis of the Chicago experiment, there is strong reason to believe that the subsidy system works. And perhaps no more eloquent testimony to its success can be found than the reaction of one of its key participants — young Wanda Bullock—now leading the normal, happy life of a little girl in a suburban American town. "When I grow up," says Wanda gravely, "I want to adopt somebody."

Sisters Sandra, 7, and Wanda, 8, with friends. After years of orphanages and foster homes, the two girls finally have a home of their own.

Brother Charles roughhouses with new sisters. He wishes his parents would adopt more children.

Can't have salt?

If you've just been put on a low-sodium diet, then you know what a difference salt makes. There are a lot of salt substitutes around, and that's exactly what they taste like. Adolph's doesn't. It really tastes like salt. It even looks, seasons, and sprinkles like salt. In fact, it's so close to the real thing, you can use it in cooking without objection from the rest of the family.

It has no metallic aftertaste, and it's approved by doctors for low-sodium diets. Look for it in the dietetic section at your market, regular or seasoned.

PARADE'S SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

STRATEGY. The U.S. Marine Corps is one of the most elite groups of fighting men America has ever put together. Gallant, intelligent, well-trained, the Marines boast a spirit, a morale, an aggressiveness second to none.

They have been assigned the toughest fighting area in Vietnam, in and along the demilitarized zone, where they have been battling valiantly, taking heavy casualties.

Some military observers now believe that this cream of our fighting men is being needlessly sacrificed in some very questionable missions, and that such military tactics had best be revised.

The policy, for example, of ordering Marines to take valuable land at a high cost of blood, then to abandon that land to the enemy, then subsequently to retake the same land at a further cost of Marine lives -- is certainly open to question.

If the object is to keep the enemy off balance or to prove to the North Vietnamese that we can enter the demilitarized zone anytime we like -- these are two of the reasons the Marines have offered in explanation -- it might be more prudent to use South Vietnamese elite troops or a mixture of troops for those purposes.

The Marines are our finest assault troops, and they must not be wasted in wanting strategy.

BEATLES & POT. The London Times recently carried a full-page advertisement signed by the four Beatles, several members of the British Parliament, and 17 physicians. It called upon the Home Secretary, Roy Jenkins, to encourage research into all aspects of marijuana, asked him to remove it from the dangerous drug list, reduce the penalty for possessing the drug to a $28 fine, release people now in prison for possessing the drug or allowing it to be smoked in their homes.

Britain's younger generation insists that marijuana is less harmful than alcohol. The older generation agrees that this may be so but that experimentation with "pot" leads to experimentation with more dangerous drugs such as LSD, heroin, and cocaine. Alcohol leads some people into trouble via more alcohol. Pot leads some people into trouble via more harmful drugs.

MORALS IN MADRID. It is no secret that foreign blondes, touring Latin countries such as Italy and Spain, are frequently squeezed, petted, pinched on the backside by local Don Juans.

In Madrid recently three Dutch girls wearing mini-dresses sought refuge from a crowd of amorous men by hiding in a shoe store while the irritated owner bought skirts to cover their knees. Too much bare leg had aroused the passion of the Spanish lotharios.

Spain is a country whose contradictory morals have been shaped by 800 years of Islamic and 1400 years of Catholic domination.

Today the Franco regime, founded on the unity of church and state, is more interested in the preservation of taboos than in emancipation, so that Spain is no paradise for young lovers. Indeed the contrary.

To this day a girl who has submitted to the blandishments of local lovers will not find a husband and can only hope for a liaison with a married man. A young woman with a constant companion may be denounced publicly and with impunity as a loose woman. In residential districts the concierge, as a policeman of sorts, supervises morals and propriety, while the real police canvass parks and fields at night by flashlight. A couple, found parked on lovers' lane, is liable to three months in prison, and adultery is punishable by up to six years (divorce being of course impossible).

The government abolished prostitution in 1956. As a result the girls have only gone underground, and the prices up.

BURTONS' YACHT. Elizabeth Taylor who earns $1 million a film and husband Richard Burton who earns $750,000, have just purchased their first yacht. It's 130 feet long; weighs 270 tons, was built in 1906, served on patrol duty in the Mediterranean in World Wars I and II. It cost them $200,000, and they have changed its name from Odysseia to Kalizma, after their three daughters, Katie, Liza, and Maria.

The yacht boasts seven bedrooms, three bathrooms, and an organ room, currently being remodeled into a bar. Although this is his first yacht, Richard Burton is recognized as a veteran elbow-bender.

NO TEENAGE WEDDINGS. The population explosion in India is leading that country to national suicide.

There are now almost 600 million people in India. The official government forecast is for 800 million people 20 years from now. India cannot support its population. In Bihar province there are 40 million Indians on the edge of starvation. In other provinces it is almost as bad.

Desperate measures to reduce unlimited reproduction are obviously necessary.

Sriporti Chandrasekhar, India's health minister, plans to ban all teenage marriages and liberalize the abortion laws. In addition he will introduce a compulsory sterilization bill this winter. Under terms of that bill every Indian male who has fathered three or more children will be sterilized; this will mean the end of paternity for 46 million husbands.

Of India's 17 states, 15 are now in favor of compulsory sterilization.

"A great deal of anguish and soul-searching has gone into this piece of legislation," says Chandrasekhar. "We have to do it, because there simply is not enough food to feed the people we already have."

Until the legislation for compulsory sterilization is passed, Chandrasekhar is encouraging voluntary sterilization by offering a free transistor radio as an incentive to each man. In rural India a small transistor radio is the family's proudest possession.

My Favorite Jokes

By Buddy Hackett

EDITOR'S NOTE: Buddy Hackett, 42, a boisterous, short, chunky, mirthful, talented comedian, was born in Brooklyn where he starred on his high school football team and in his senior class play, What a Life! With acting as his goal, he made his debut as a comic on the borsch circuit. "I was a poor kid," he says. "I wanted attention. I got it by being funny, so I became a comedian."

Over the years Hackett has proved his versatility in all the show business media. His comedy is never confined to one genre of humor. It consists of stand-up gags, patter, dialects, monologues, pantomime, and such jokes as these which he rattles off at breakneck speed.

My wife said to me, "Buddy, if you could have any other woman in the world except me, would you?"

I said, "Yes."

She said, "Who?"

I said, "Brigitte Bardot."

She said, "Even if it meant I would leave you?"

I said, "Especially!"

Some guys are really golf nuts, like one guy who is standing on the first tee. He's in the middle of his backswing, and a girl comes running up to him. She's wearing a bridal gown and veil. She looks at him and anxiously calls out, "Sidney! Sidney!"

He looks at her and in exasperation mutters, "Cynthia, I told you a dozen times—only if it rains."

A 65-year-old dress manufacturer who had just married his 23-year-old secretary called for his doctor.

When the doctor arrived and observed the young, attractive, voluptuous wife, he perceived at once why his old patient was exhausted. He wrote out a prescription for some pills and handed it to the elderly man.

"What's wrong with me, Doc?" the patient asked. "Do I get pooped so quickly because I'm overweight?"

"No, Morris," the doctor answered, smiling at the wife, "just overmatched."

A little girl returns home from the first day of school. "What did they teach you today, darling?" said her mother. "Not much," replied the girl, "I have to go back again tomorrow."

How You May

Never Take a Laxative Again!

New Miracle Regulator Helps Relief Come Naturally

New York, N.Y. (Special)—Research has discovered a wonder-working substance that helps correct constipation without laxatives!

Doctors say most constipation occurs when waste loses moisture in the colon. To give relief, laxatives have to force action—flush, irritate or distend the intestine.

The new miracle substance works in a completely different way. It helps natural moisture in the colon work more effectively. Thus by working on the problem, not on you, it helps correct constipation as no laxative can.

This discovery is now available under the name REGUTOL. It is not habit-forming. No warning on the label—no prescription needed. Try REGUTOL—you may never take a laxative again!

MAJOR KISSOFF! WHERE ARE YOU?

THE ARRIVAL OF THE RUSSIAN V.T.O.L. CONVERTAPLANE PLACES KISSOFF AND BUCKY IN A DEADLY CHECKMATE!

SHALL I SHOOT THIS REVOLTING MARTIAN NOW, YOUNG WARBOW.

NOT UNLESS HE MAKES A MOVE, FRAPP!

YOU'VE GOT ONE SHOT LEFT, MISTER. BUY YOURSELF SOME TIME IN A COZY YANKEE JAIL. ORDER THAT AIR CREW TO LEAVE WITHOUT YOU.

YOU'RE A FOOL, WARBOW. THEY'D REALIZE I WAS ACTING UNDER PRESSURE!... IF THIS IDIOT SHOOTS ME, THEY'LL WIPE OUT YOUR PARTY IN RETALIATION.

MY OFFER STILL STANDS. ALLOW ME TO BOARD THAT AIRCRAFT, WITH MISS DERBY AS MY HOSTAGE TO INSURE YOUR SILENCE ABOUT THIS STUPID AFFAIR.

MISS DERBY WILL BE TREATED WELL—AND THE REST OF YOU WILL LIVE...

WHA...?! MRS. DERBY!

I WON'T STAND FOR IT! FIRST THE AMERICAN AIR FORCE BLOCKS MY RESEARCH, NOW THE RUSSIANS ARE PLAYING THE SAME GAME!

THE RUSSIANS STOP, PUZZLED AT THE UNEXPECTED APPEARANCE OF A WOMAN INSTEAD OF MAJOR KISSOFF.

AND TO THINK I TOOK THAT RIDICULOUS AIRPLANE FOR A SPACE VEHICLE!

YOU FRAUD!

"DADDY'S" MEN, ALL OF US, ARE TRAPPED HERE, UNLESS... BUT SHUCKS! "DADDY" ALWAYS SEEMS T'FIGGER SOME WAY OUT — STILL.....

AH-H! AT LAST! ON THE LITTLE GADGET, SEE? THAT IS THEIR NEST!

AN OLD SUMMER COTTAGE, SET APART. A PERFECT HIDEOUT! BUT BEWARE OF TRIP WIRES. THERE MUST BE NO WARNING OR ALARM!

AH-H, THEY HAVE SIGNED OFF TO THE SUB. NOW, EACH OF YOU KNOWS YOUR JOB. LET'S GO!

THIRTY MINUTES LATER...

AH, BOYS! WHAT LUCK?

THEY ARE GONE WITH THE MAG!; THEIR RADAR EQUIPMENT IS NOW STORED HERE IN THE SECRET VAULT!

MINUTES MORE, THE CARS ROLL OUT.

IN AN HOUR THEY'LL ALL BE SAFE ON THEIR PLANES. AND NOW, FOR THAT SUB!

QUITE SO, SAHIB!
